SOMETHING COMES ALONG AND LEVELS THINGS.

Were it not for raking in the ashes of dead men, and dragging to the surface dead men's bones, an interesting chapter could be written about the fates that have followed those powerful men in these United States who reared up and stood on their manly hind legs, and said:

"I am running my own business. I shall hire whomsoever I please, fire them when I get ready, pay them whatever wage I want to pay them, and I WILL NOT countenance any interference in MY business by the men who work for ME!"

Tragic ends have come to many such men in this country, men who would not deal in a business way with their employees, men who assumed full and complete control and authority over the lives of all those in their employ, and numerous cases are on record where such men have come to tragic end, so numerous that it is barely possible to lay it all to accident.

Recent instances of such an ending is that of a man who died in a Raleigh hotel one night last week. It was in evidence that this man had gone to Raleigh, engaged the room, and pitched a party. At least three women are known to have been in the party. His dead body was found in a dry bath tub, when fire was discovered in his room. A cigarette is said to have caused the fire. Just what caused his death is not given to the public in very clear manner.

This man was a big mill man, a manufacturer connected with several institutions. He was connected with one of the big mills at Marion where so much trouble occurred in the fall of 1929. He recruited "loyal" workers, and ran part time, but ignored the efforts of the organized workers to deal with him. He was successful in his stand against the workers, but fire from a little old cigarette, or some other insignificant cause, brought the big man to a tragic end.

We could recite many instances of like nature, where the levelling process came along and laid big powerful giants of industry and finance low in the dust of tragic and regrettable death. We are not attempting to state any cause, nor do we make effort to connect such tragic events with any given law of Nature. We are simply stating that any number of similar cases are familiar to us.

Once upon a time there was a great writer by the names of James, who addressed communications to the twelve tribes that were scattered about the earth, and in one of these letters he wrote something like this:

"Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days. Behold, the hire of the laborers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth, and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of sabaoth. Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth and have been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter. Ye have condemned and killed the just...."

The most unanimous sentiment ever witnessed in this state is the opinion that the $50 truck license provided in the last legislature against trucks coming into the State from South Carolina is just about the biggest piece of fool legislation ever enacted. What in the world our representatives were thinking about when that clause went through is more than one can understand. It may be that they didn't think at all, and this lack of thought on their part is responsible for the enactment of the most viciously foolish legislation ever placed upon our statute books.

The tobacco companies succeeded in keeping off the proposed luxury tax in the last legislature, and then immediately raised the price of cigarettes. That is adding insult to injury.

WELL, PUT 'EM THERE,
IF THAT'S YOUR IDEA OF A NEWSPAPER TASK.

Last Saturday's daily papers throughout the country "front paged" double column pictures of "Ma Kennedy" an her new husband, Rev. Edward Hudson. The pose showed the preacher, seated, wearing a lounging robe and holding a book in his hand. "Ma Kennedy" was perched upon the arm of the chair, leaning all over her new husband like a sick kitten to a warm brick. One of her arms about the preacher's neck, the hand encircling his head against which she pressed her downy fifty-year-old painted cheek.

The story with the picture, and apparently the only excuse for publishing the sickening sight, was to effect that the preacher's first wife had appeared upon the scene and informed her erstwhile husband that, according to all well regulated households, he was still her husband and, therefore, had no business lolling about with another woman, although he had gone through the forms and ceremonies of wedding that other woman.

"Ma Kennedy," mother of Mrs. Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson, has become noted, or notorious, according to the viewpoint, simply because she is the mother of the woman evangelist. Just what it is that causes great big he-newspapermen to fall for all this rot, and publish pictures of legalized libertines is more than a mere country editor can understand. But that seems to be the fad and fashion in newspaper row now. Just let some fellow leave his wife and take up with another woman, or let some woman leave her husband, and take up with another man, and presto! their beautiful pictures appear on the front page, just like that!

And then they wonder why flaming youth is filling the penitentiaries!

Do not build up too much hope on the fact that the state shows a reduction in the tax rate in Transylvania county of 41 cents on the hundred dollars. That would leave the rate to be set at $1.53. It cannot be done, dear friends, because of the amount it is going to take in the debt service item. There is no telling just yet how much the rate will have to be. It will be much more, however, than the $1.53, as suggested by the state figures.

"A hit dog hollers "is an old saying that retains its truth with the passing of centuries. That little feist that you hear barking at the heels of men has been hit. But the little Devil has been kicked about until he has the habit of yelping. Even those whose boots he licks turn upon him every two years and kick him with the same boot that he has been licking. Yet he keeps on licking, and yelping, and hollering. Some feists are like that, you know.

One of the next treats in store for the people of the community is the annual Flower Show, to be given under auspices of the Woman's Bureau in August. Much of the beauty of Brevard, that appealing beauty found in the carefully tended flower gardens of the town, is due, in large part, to the activities of the bureau in holding the flower show each year. It is in evidence that this year's display will be far greater and more beautiful than in any year in the past.

"Our business this year shows an appreciable increase over last year," says W. H. Grogan, Jr., district deputy of the Woodmen of the World. Wonder if this isn't true in a great many lines of endeavor. We can get in the habit of cussing dull times, and forget to make comparisons of business done and being done, and overlook some great facts, you know.

Can and preserve every mouthful of food that you can reach during the next few weeks. That is the greatest guarantee against the invasion of Old Man Hard Times during the coming winter—which is to be a long one, filled with snows and suffering. This summer season is almost half gone, and it will then be ten long months until the tourists come again. Can and preserve, preserve and can, then can and preserve some more.

Then, the insurance companies, always powerful in exerting influence over legislative bodies, saw the legislature enact compulsory insurance laws, in that if an automobile owner has a wreck, and has no insurance, and cannot pay the damages involved in the wreck, his license to operate a car are taken from him. Immediately after this became a law, then the insurance companies raised the premium rates on such insurance. It beats the Devil how the big boys can do just as they please with the common people of North Carolina.

And now comes the information that a great scientist has discovered and had patented a process, fixture, contrivance, harness, thingabob, what you call it, that prevents a man's shirttail from crawling upward and outward. May heaven bless this scientist, and shower upon him the richest and rarest of gifts and happiness!

Word comes that all Protestant churches in Charlotte are planning a city-wide, union revival. That is good. There are going to be a great many revivals and a general return to the faith of our fathers before this thing we call "depression" comes to an end.

SUGGESTS GOOD PLAN FOR MAKING SOME MONEY

Editor The Brevard News:

Why is there no "old rags" man here? Every house keeper has rags to throw away, or burn; old washcloths, dishcloths, towels, dusters, and so on. The paper mills of the country are crying for rag pulp. Why is there no "old rags" man in Brevard?

In Central New York, at the writer's birthplace, an honest village of 2,500 people the day she was born, one that did not ape the airs of a city, and an honest village of 2,500, or perhaps a few hundred more, today, the rag-man called every Saturday morning, took your rags, weighed them, gave you the money for them, leaving a red printed sign to put at the gate and show when you wanted him and save his time.

If an enterprising young Jew, like Solomon Levy in Edna Ferber's "Cimarron," should come to be Brevard's first old rag man, he would in the course of time, own Main Street.

Why should not a Brevard man or boy, black or white, reap the reward, not necessarily of Main Street, but most certainly of a competent living wage?

The writer has cleaned out two clothes closets and one kitchen cupboard "catch-all" this week and has a choice assortment of old rags with which to start a new man.

If he has any get-up-and-go to him, he will appear at her gate in what The Brevard News of 1925 summer (Mary Copeland Blythe, reporter, now Mrs. Robert Savage) called "the artistic suburbs of West Brevard," and say simply: "Have you any old rags this morning?" She will assent, but—if he does not come by next Saturday she will burn them up. Incidentally, the writer promises to devote the small proceeds of these sales to the cause of Home Missions, which we are told "begin at Jerusalem"—in other words, right at your door or mine, or else just around the corner. The need for Home Missions can be seen in at least three directions from the front porch of the writer, who has the honor to sign herself,

Faithfully yours,
E. L. R. SIMONS.

TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE
PROF L. B. HAYNES

Some weeks ago the papers carried the message: "Professor L. B. Haynes is dead." This news brought sadness to hundreds of hearts. The memories of his former students turned back and lived again their school days, some in Charleston, others at Columbia College, and many at Leesville College.

Professor Haynes was the founder of Leesville College, and his greatest work was accomplished there. Leesville College was the first coeducational college, and first industrial women's college in the state. This latter feature made it possible for many young women to receive the advantages of a higher education which otherwise would have been impossible.

Many of his pupils and friends would appreciate the privilege of doing something more than laying a few roses on his grave. They would love to engrave his name "with an iron pen and lead IT in the rock forever." Contributions are being received for the erection of a suitable memorial to Professor Haynes, and this means is being adopted to acquaint his pupils and friends with the object in view so that they may contribute to this fund.

It has been suggested that the memorial be erected at Professor Haynes' grave, or at Leesville, where he worked so faithfully towards the education of the youth of South Carolina. It has been suggested also, that the immediate family of Professor Haynes should have charge of the selection of the memorial.

Donations to this fund may be sent to: C. D. Barr, Leesville, S. C., James F. Barrett, Editor of the Brevard News, Brevard, N. C., or to Rev. J. J. Stevenson, Chesterfield, S. C. All names, with the amounts contributed shall be published later in the newspapers.

Fifteen people were baptized at Lake Sega last Sunday, converts at Glady Branch church. It is estimated that 400 people attended the rites of baptism. After these services at the lake, communion services were held at the church. Rev. I. N. Kuykendall, pastor, officiated at both services.
