LET US DO YOUR JOB PRINTING

As Newspapers Were Printed 81 Years Ago

By Judge Robt. L. Gash

"Asheville News, April 17, 1850 Vol 1. No. 42"

While going through an old file, I ran across a copy of the Asheville News, printed 81 years ago, and so I scanned its pages, it struck me that a description of the paper, and brief account of its contents might be of interest, the similarities and the differences from a modern paper.

To begin with it is a four page eight-column paper. The top of the first column contains the card of the printer and publishers,—"Printed weekly by Wm. D. N. Sherwood. At Kings and Potest, Editors and Proprietors." Then the card for "Terms"—"Two dollars per annum in advance; otherwise, Three dollars." The above, with advertising rates and advertisement of blank forms takes up less than three inches.

All of the rest of the front page and the first two columns of the second page are taken up with part of a speech of Daniel Webster, delivered the previous month in Congress, and copied from the Congressional record.

"THE NEWS" begins at top of third column of second page.

The first item follows: "Rev. Mr. Pickett will preach in the Methodist Church, in this town, tomorrow evening, at early candle-light."

The second item is about a term of Superior Court just closed. The whole item takes up less than seven inches, and includes the account where Judge Caldwell (1) called an extra term of Superior Court, to be held ten weeks later, (2), granted a charge of venue, and removed a case to Henderson County for trial, (3), sentenced a man to death in usual legal form, (4), exhorted the condemned man to repent, and prepare for death, in such feeling terms that the judge and many of the spectators were moved to tears.

The next item takes up a little more space, and gives an account of the organization of a section of "The Cadets of Temperance," the junior adjunct to the old organization "The Sons of Temperance."

There is comment on "A letter of condolence and sympathy, signed by all of the principal men of Cambridge, presented to the family of Prof. Webster, convicted of the murder of Dr. Parkman."

Nearly two columns is taken up over politics, anent published letters, Whigs, Democrats, Abolitionists, representation, right to meet in conventions, etc., etc.

There are about six columns of exchanges, or clippings from other papers, about seven columns of advertising.

Several of the clippings refer to the case of Prof. Webster, mentioned above.

There is an account of the Assayers of the U. S. Mint at Philadelphia, giving the values of the Bechtler gold coins (minted in this state by A. Bechtler). The $5 gold piece is valued at $4.94, and the $1 pieces at from 95 1-2 to 97 cents.

Part of a comment from Washington, D. C., might almost be perpetually stereotyped—"There has been no settlement of the exciting questions which have so long agitated the country, but it is believed that a better spirit is gaining ascendancy, and that some satisfactory adjustment will speedily be made."

A Mrs. Partington asks,—"If the bills before Congress are not counterfeited, why there should be such difficulty in passing them."

The sheriff of Buncombe inserts an advertisement that he has committed a negro to jail, said to be the property of a farmer in Stanley County, and requesting that the owner come forward, prove his property, pay the charges and take the negro.

A full column advertisement of Pyfer & Co., Lottery Brokers, appears.

A plough advertisement, by Patton & Summey, is for "A good article manufactured at the shop of W. Bryson, Esq., of Henderson County."

The North Carolina Railroad company places a half-column advertisement, telling of the amount of stock subscribed, the amount yet to be subscribed, and that the subscription books will again be opened in the various counties.

An advertisement for an administrator's sale, offers to sell "8 negroes, 1 jack, 2 or 3 jennets, 7 or 8 horses, 30 or 40 cattle, pigs, sheep, household and kitchen furniture, road wagon and gearing, family carriage and harness, wood work of a wagon, farming tools and other implements of husbandry, corn, oats, fodder, hay, bacon, and other articles too tedious to mention."

The Poetry corner has some verses written on the death of John C. Calhoun.

666 Salve for Baby's Cold

A lengthy article is copied from "Godey's Lady's Book," entitled "Woman's Best Ornament," comments lengthily on the petty frailties of the sex, pertinently asks what are they made for, and winds up with the argument and statement that "Goodness" is her greatest and best ornament.

A special advertisement by Rankin, Pulliam & Co., for the "Spring Trade," names "Steel Hoes, Trace & Wagon Chains, Straw Knives, Bramble Scythes, Grain Scythes, Pocket and Table Cutlery, Locks, Tea and Brass Kettles, Sauce Pans, Well Wheels." Then follows the recital,—"Because every other article of dry goods and hardware is not designated by name and character, do not therefore conclude that we haven't it."

T. K. Cureton, of Lancaster, S. C., offers a reward of $100 for the apprehension of a runaway negro slave.

Another advertisement announces the formation of a partnership of "Doctors Hardy, Lester and Hilliard." The advertisement sets aside Saturday for office consultations. They undertake the treatment and cure of all surgical cases, also DISEASES OF THE EYE of every kind. They are prepared to operate for those natural deformities, Club Foot, Hair Lip, Cross Eyes, etc. etc. The advertisement winds up with the statement,—"Very poor persons attended gratis."

Other advertisements offer to buy Feathers, Wool, Beeswax, Tallow, Beef Hides, Corn, Wheat, Rye, Oats, Corn Meal and Flour, Eggs, Butter, Chickens, etc. Prices are not named in these ads, but offer to give goods in exchange.

An Apothecary's advertisement proclaims "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—a certain cure for all diseases."

An advertisement of T. S. Stradley, Secy. pro tem. of the Western Baptist Convention, is a bit out of the ordinary, and reads:

"TO THE CONCERNED: The Minutes of the Western Baptist Convention are printed and ready for delivery, but the Secretary being at a loss to know the most cheap and prompt mode of conveyance, would be thankful for any advice on the subject."

One ad. starts off,—"We have been delayed somewhat in receiving our stock of Fall and Winter goods by the destruction of the ship Charleston, etc."

The advertising is all on the third and fourth pages.

The editorial matter is principally missing, unless some of the political matter might be called editorial.

Verily the newspaper of eighty years ago would have a hard job to either recognize or understand its numerous descendants of the present day.
