COTTON—CHILDHOOD'S CURSE AND THE SOUTH'S MOST DEADLY ENEMY.

Governors of many states are devoting long days and agonizing nights to a study of Cotton. The newspapers are filled with news of the cotton crop, the low price of cotton, the cotton mills, the stagnated cotton market.

Down in an obscure corner of a great North Carolina daily newspaper there appeared last Sunday morning the most intimate news of all concerning the cotton question.

In this little dispatch, sent in from Forest City, N. C., the information was given that school in that county closed for two weeks so "the children could help pick cotton."

There you are! "So the children could help pick cotton!"

Cotton has been the children's crop, and the cotton mills have been the children's industry, ever since the Negro was set free, and the first cotton mill was erected in the South-land.

From generation to generation the children have chopped the cotton, along with the father and often along with the mother, while other children over in the cotton mill took this product of the child in the field and with their fingers finished the product in the factory.

Cotton has been a crop that required the services of all members of the family to produce, and has fed an industry that required all members of the family to convert the raw material into the finished product.

Is it any wonder that cotton is piled high about every town in every cotton growing community in the country?

Is it any wonder that the warehouses and storehouses are filled to the bursting point with the finished product of the cotton mills?

King Cotton has always been crowned by the tender hands of child labor, which prevails in the field until this good day, and would have prevailed in the factory but for an aroused public opinion which took the child from the mill and placed it in school.

In no other activity in American life is there to be found a like condition. You never see a doctor's wife and children practicing medicine with that doctor. You never see a lawyer's wife and children in the court room helping that lawyer-daddy conduct a case.

And what's the result? Just what you read about every day—over-production of cotton, and no price for it; over-production of cotton goods and no price or demand for these goods.

MARRIAGES FALLING OFF, WHILE DIVORCES INCREASE.

Bureau of census, Washington, makes announcement that there were 40 marriages in Transylvania county in 1929, and 25 marriages in 1930, a falling off of fifteen matings here in one year.

But there were many more Transylvania couples married in 1930 than are shown from the census records. Many of our young people hop over the hill, and have the knot tied in South Carolina.

Many young people object to the State law here which requires a physician's certificate of good health before a marriage license can be procured. Young women especially should be glad that this law was enacted and is enforced.

We wish that our young people would stop going to South Carolina to get married. Some of them, too, may wish some day that they had not gone away from this state to get married.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SHOULD THANK MR. JONES

That a friend is really worth while has been demonstrated in forceful manner by Ora L. Jones, former editor of The Brevard News, but now working on a newspaper in Key West Florida.

Capt. J. T. Rice, wife and two daughters are here now, and will remain throughout the Indian Summer. They have been accustomed to spending their summers elsewhere, and came to Brevard only because of the urging of Mr. Jones.

Mr. Louie E. Pierce and family spent the month of July here, coming here because of Mr. Jones. They returned to Key West, told Mr. Emory L. Pierce, capitalist, that Mr. Jones had not exaggerated at all; that the place was more beautiful than Mr. Jones had been able to tell, and Mr. Pierce came with his wife and daughters.

Hon. Curry Harris, leading attorney of Key West and friend of Mr. Jones, is now here, enjoying his vacation. All of these fine people are stopping at the Radford House, and express themselves as being highly satisfied here.

The Chamber of Commerce is to meet Thursday evening, and we make motion that a special letter of appreciation be sent to Mr. Jones, thanking him for sending such splendid people to this beautiful section.

At a meeting of approximately 25 men, leaders of business and industry, from all sections of North Carolina in Raleigh recently it was planned to carry out a definite program for relief of the unemployed.

JUST ONE MAN HERE ALL OUT OF GEAR

Transylvania county is made up of fine citizens—all but one. The men of this county are willing to do all in their power for the advancement of the community—all but one.

There is just one man in the county who does everything he can to hurt just as many people as he can, and do all the harm to the county that he can—just one. He knocks everybody and everything.

You know him. You heard him bleating away yesterday. He never does any work—just stands around and criticizes others.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE TAR HEEL STATE

(By Mark Taylor Orr)

THIS IS THE LAW: Live Cleanly. Eat Wisely. Sleep Adequately. Exercise Regularly. Study Methodically. Save Systematically. Invest Judiciously.

No exceptions can, or will, occur. No half-way measures will suffice. No intentions, however good, will compensate. None but those who obey these dictates may live—happily.

Oh, Citizens of Carolina! The law is the law. Wherein have we failed? Place a question mark after each of the seven laws and search yourself for the answer.

Cotton farmers from the principal cotton counties of Eastern North Carolina are planning to meet together to discuss their views on the cotton acreage reduction question in 1932.

Secretary of the Cotton Farmers organization announced that the meeting would be held next Thursday. He also said that the sentiment of all cotton farmers with whom he had discussed the matter were in favor of average curtailment by the legislature.

James Davis is the father of printing and journalism in North Carolina. He organized a shop in New Bern on June 24, 1749. He was chosen public printer by the citizens of the town with an annual salary of 160 pounds.

History tells us that Davis followed his literary career for nearly 33 years. His career ended when Andrew Steuart of Philadelphia brought a printing press to North Carolina. The state decided not to have a public printer and Davis ceased his labors as the pioneer newspaperman of this state.

Records of grain surveys show that the 1930 wheat, barley and rye crops of Western North Carolina are possibly the best ever produced in that section. Sufficient grain has been harvested to supply the farmers with their own grain for stock and chickens.

Many killed and injured and considerable property damage resulted Monday when Japan's most severe earthquake since 1924 shook Tokyo and adjacent regions.

At a meeting of approximately 25 men, leaders of business and industry, from all sections of North Carolina in Raleigh recently it was planned to carry out a definite program for relief of the unemployed.

Though he has never sought public office, Captain Nathan O'Berry, state treasurer, one of the oldest and yet one of the spryest state officials, has held many public trusts and is recognized as a student of finance and economy.

Capt. O'Berry was appointed State Treasurer in 1929 to succeed the late Benjamin Lacy who held the post for 28 years, by Governor Gardner. In November 1930 he was re-elected by one of the largest majorities ever polled for a state candidate.

It is the fair season! County and community fairs are being held over the entire state. Perhaps one of the most interesting will be the Cherokee Indian Fair held at Cherokee, N. C. on October 6, 7, 8, and 9.

The Graf Zeppelin arrived at Pernambuco, Brazil, Sunday night from Germany on her third visit to Brazil after a 70 hour non-stop flight across the South Atlantic with ten passengers, mail and freight.

Three Lisbon to New York airmen, after floating 148 hours on the wreckage of their plane, were picked up by a small Norwegian motor ship, near Halifax, N. S., Monday, Sept. 21.

BIG EVENTS TOLD IN LITTLE PARAGRAPHS

(Gleaned by Clifford Montieith)

The capital city of Manchuria, Mukden, China, is the scene of the latest clash between the Chinese and Japanese. Strongholds have been bombarded, city seized, and many Chinese killed—and it all started over the killing of a Japanese officer by Chinese.

The senate last week unanimously ratified Mexico's acceptance of an invitation to join the League of Nations.

A vein of anthracite, believed to be the first coal deposit ever unearthed in Maine, has been discovered near Peru by Fidelity Bourdage and Marjol St. Pierre.

A threat of national bankruptcy of the Newfoundland Government may result in Canada buying several thousand square miles of territory to increase her own area.

Wasps by the millions are being transported from the Peruvian Andes to Miami, Fla., for use in fighting the destructive sugar cane moth borers of Louisiana.

Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor-emeritus of Stanford University and dean of American university of Presidents, died Saturday, September 19, at his home on the university campus.

Governor R. S. Sterling of Texas and the Texas Railroad commission have agreed to a program for curbing the nation's oil production to 2,376,000 barrels daily.

Poaths of over 300 firms, from Germany and foreign countries, displayed their radio products during Berlin's annual radio and phone show, held the last week of August.

Don Moyle and Cecil A. Allen, fliers who failed in an attempt to make a non-stop flight from Japan to America, arrived at Nome, Alaska, Sunday, September 20, after a flight of about 600 miles from Miano Pilgrino, Siberia.

The Goodyear-zeppelin corporation, builders of the mighty airship Akron, turned over their finished product to the United States Navy representatives this week.

More than 400 collectors from 30 states contributed stamps to the forty-sixth annual convention of the American philatelic society, held at Memphis, Tenn., last week. Stamps worth more than $1,000 were on display.

Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh have gone to the inundated section of northern Kiangnan province, China, to offer their services to the Chinese government for flood relief work.

Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar submarine Nautilus, on its way to the United States, arrived at Bergen, Norway, Monday. The commander has refused to discuss any plans he has for future voyages.

It is now possible to change methane gas to gasoline by bombarding the gas with electrons from an electric current of between 17,000 and 20,000 volts.

Many killed and injured and considerable property damage resulted Monday when Japan's most severe earthquake since 1924 shook Tokyo and adjacent regions. The acute fear instilled into the people by former earthquakes caused thousands of persons to flee from their homes at the first disturbance.

Vincent Aster has returned to New York after having taken his big Diesel engine yacht to England, France, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, and North Cape, and through the Baltic Sea. The yacht returned from the 12,000 mile cruise carrying much of the fuel she started with.

More than a dozen cities and towns in portions of Ohio and Indiana were severely shaken Monday by subterranean tremors, the most pronounced in that section since the entire Ohio river valley was affected in 1811.

The Graf Zeppelin arrived at Pernambuco, Brazil, Sunday night from Germany on her third visit to Brazil after a 70 hour non-stop flight across the South Atlantic with ten passengers, mail and freight.

Heavy withdrawals of gold from the Bank of England over a period of months have forced Great Britain to suspend, temporarily, its gold standard of monetary exchanges.

Walter Lippman, author and editor, has been awarded the $2,000 "Yale Review" prize for his article, "Two Revolutions in the American Press." This award is offered annually for an article in the Yale Review on a question of public concern, social, economic or political in national or international affairs.

James Doolittle, trans-continental record breaker, set a new record Monday, Sept. 21, when he flew from New York to Memphis, Tenn., in four hours and 57 minutes, at a speed of 205 miles an hour against a 25 mile headwind.

Three Lisbon to New York airmen, after floating 148 hours on the wreckage of their plane, were picked up by a small Norwegian motor ship, near Halifax, N. S., Monday, Sept. 21.
