Most Successful Fair in History of County is Held

Agricultural subjects. Three model "Pig Homes" were on exhibit. They were made according to scale, showing the proportionate amount of light and ventilation, necessary to raise pigs, conveniently and successfully. The models were made in the local high school shop by the boys, studying Agriculture.

A former prize winning model chicken house was also on exhibit. It was made by Prof. Julian Glazener. The house gave the comparative evidence of necessary ventilation, for the chickens health and sanitation.

Around the room which enclosed the poultry, swine and special attraction departments, corn stalks had been placed in attractive rows, as if a corn field were really growing there. Shocks of corn stood in various parts of the rooms giving a pleasing, farmlike effect.

In one corner of the building set aside for the department of household arts, directed by the Home Economics department, a very large number of canned goods were on exhibit. These had been prepared by the Agriculture boys and Economics girls in their movement to aid the Associated Charities, who will give the food to the needy during the cold winter months. They expressed fine spirit, by giving of their time and produce which had taken many weeks to grow, for this purpose.

Dr. R. L. Stokes had a large Soy Lima Bean vine on exhibit in the Farm Crop department. This bean is similar to the soy bean, however, it is said to be a better feed crop and of greater value to the fertility of the soil in which it is grown, since the roots collect more nitrogen.

A hand carved fiddle was included in the Department of Special Attractions. It was made by Owen Orr. He spent his spare time in its construction for over a year, using only a pocket knife for the work. It is a unique instrument with a sweet tone and fine musical qualities.

O. B. Jones, Farm Agent of Henderson was kind enough to act as judge in the fair. He judged all exhibits, except the Rabbits and Department of Household Arts. Mr. Jones is making a wonderful record in Henderson County. He is said to be the best informed man, in his line of work. He edits farm articles which are used in many leading newspapers.

Mrs. Flax Lawrence, who was a county home demonstrator for several years, judged the department of Household Arts. She is an expert in the study of economics.

With two such experienced judges, all entries and officials in the fair were confident that the judging was done, exact and as fairly as possible. The fair officials wish to extend to the judges their thanks and appreciation for the time and skill they afforded the fair exhibits.

Citizens of Transylvania County, who witnessed the fair, were of the opinion that this exhibition will encourage farming and that the fair next year will be on a larger and more efficient scale.

FARMERS GATHER AS GARREN'S GUESTS

A number of Transylvania farmers met at the Brevard High School on Sept. 24, at the invitation of H. Garren, local VSS dealer, and elected an advisory committee composed of T. C. Henderson, C. R. Sharp, Paul Glazener, A. P. Bell and R. A. Merrill.

Included on the evening's program, at which Prof. J. A. Glazener presided, was music by the Simpson Quartet, with "Monkey Stuff" as their feature song; a guessing contest in which Isaac Freeman won first prize, a bag of VSS mixed feed, and T. B. McCrary low prize, 25 pounds of feed. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program on which L. E. Raper, field representative of the feed and seed company was chief speaker. It is planned to make the event an annual one.
