

TYPHOID CLINICS TO BE HELD AT TWO PLACES IN COUNTY

neighborhood. Authorities assert that some people are natural carriers of typhoid germs, while but few such unfortunate are ever aware of the fact, and that any person coming in contact with such "carriers" is almost certain to fall victim to the disease, hence the importance of being vaccinated against the awful thing. It is said that three treatments will absolutely guarantee one against contracting the disease for a period of at least three years.

Local conditions cause typhoid to spring out, it is said by the health department. It comes from water, when springs, wells or water systems are exposed to matter that create the germ; it comes from milk when it is handled in certain uncleanly manner, and it comes more often from the "typhoid carrier," explained above. One other condition, if improperly maintained, creates the germ and that is the matter of sewerage disposal.

The department urges every home owner using water from springs to ditch above and around the spring, turning all water on the surface away from the spring. Then the spring should be completely and thoroughly covered, preferably by cement, with a drain pipe in use carrying the water from the enclosed spring to the bucket. This protects the water from contamination, and prevents any typhoid germ from entering the water. Premises about the house should be kept free of all refuse that would prove a hatching place for typhoid germs.

But science's best method is that of vaccination. The state is conducting these clinics free of all charge, and it is the expressed wish of the authorities that as many citizens as so desire will present themselves for the treatment at the places and dates above named. Men, women and children, from any section of the county, are included in the state's invitation to avail themselves of this opportunity to guard against typhoid.

There is no epidemic of typhoid in any section of the county, it is pointed out, and these precautions are being taken to make Transylvania county stand at the head of the list in the health column. The presence of a few cases in the county is looked upon as a challenge to the citizenship, hence this ready action against any disease that threatens the men, women and children of Transylvania county.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE TAR HEEL STATE

(By Mark Taylor Orr)

Nanathala Gorge, near Robbinsville, became the scene of excitement and mystery several weeks ago when a party of hikers found parts of a human skeleton deep in a cave there. A native of the section reported recently that the cave has been visited by many of the people living in that vicinity but they had always held the opinion that it was bottomless. He assured authorities that the skeleton was that of an Irishman who made his appearance in Nanathala over thirty years ago. The Irishman mysteriously disappeared and his identity and disappearance was never solved.

The terrible and destructive fires in the forest areas in this and other states should have focused the public attention on the problem.

Thousands of acres of timber have been devastated—families left homeless, human and animal lives destroyed—streams polluted and beautiful forests turned into useless wastes. Many of the losses by fire may have been laid to arson—really the most despicable of all crimes. The vacationist, the smoker, camper, hunter, all have become responsible for the serious fire tolls taken each year. We hear big talk over forest conservation; yet the work of many years is often wiped away by the dropping of a small match or cigarette. Let's work together and actually outlaw the forest fire problem.

Do you realize that fire prevention begins in the individual home and that if North Carolina is to succeed in lowering the annual fire toll; the direct cooperation of its homes will be necessary.

If we guard our homes and business houses regularly and safely against fire, then the forest fire problem will be lowered accordingly. Eight out of ten fires may be placed to the carelessness of the individual. And when citizens awake to the fact that they themselves are directly or indirectly responsible, then we will be able to control preventable fires more efficiently.

Plans for the second annual state-wide Industrial Safety Conference are being perfected and it has been announced that the meeting will be held in Charlotte, November 5th and 6th, under the auspices of the North Carolina Industrial Commission.

The first conference was held at High Point last year and approximately 900 delegates acting as safety officials from various firms and organizations, were present.

Problems peculiar to certain types of industry will be discussed and theories as to their solution, studied and perfected.

A recent farm bulletin expressed the opinion that North Carolina landowners are seeking sources of additional income and market place for surplus forage and other feedstuffs. It further said that such landowners might find it profitable to turn to sheep on the farm flock basis.

There are very few farms on which there is not a small amount of waste land, some pasture or extra forage grounds where sheep might be raised to an advantage.

Alert farmers of the state are already investigating in small flocks to start them on the new enterprise, when other measures have failed.

Autumn weather, beautiful in its clear snapping mornings, cool refreshing evenings and with crisp atmosphere throughout the day, is luring large number of nature lovers to the Great Smoky Mountains. Excels by none, the Smokies still remain a popular rendezvous for tourists and natives. Beautiful Indian summer is arriving, the most wonderful season of the year, and its charms lead the nature lover to enjoy its short session with us.

The U. S. Commerce department is shortly to make an intensive economic study of Carolina's turpentine industry, as part of a nation-wide survey of the entire turpentine trade.

A large volume of the national output of turpentine is produced in this state. The results of this survey will be of great value to the producers and distributors of the state as well as the entire south.

Have you noticed the employment situation during the last few weeks. Land owners from various sections are reporting that the unemployed are refusing jobs. Cotton farmers say that they cannot get men or women to pick their cotton, even though they are out of positions; the unemployed are refusing such jobs as picking cotton, working corn, road work and street jobs.

It may be pride, false pride! But such a spirit will never do anything to aid in this depression.

The man who is willing to help his family, his community, his state and himself will avail himself of any job that might tide him over until better times.

Cooperation is the word we want. Cooperation is the only key word to relieve depression. Cooperation is necessary if we are to secure better roads, lower tax rates, lower illiterate ratios, realize Carolina opportunities and in every way aid the state of today. What are you going to do about it?

Regular school attendance is one important factor of education which should be emphasized. Some of the principal causes of poor attendance are sickness, poverty, weather, work, parental indifference and truancy. Of course, sickness cannot be prevented in many instances, but in thousands of cases it can, at least it should and can be kept to a minimum.

Weather has long been a bad cause of lowering attendance, but the majority of the schools have such splen-the stations at all points in the State except Winston-Salem, where the local motor club handles the plates.

Motor vehicles sales in September, 1931, numbered 2,991, or 34 more than the 2,957 sales in September, 1930, and 143 less than the 3,134 sold in August, 1931. Trucks increased from 541 to 907 and passenger cars decreased from 2,416 to 2,084 last September, as compared with September last year.

Ford passenger cars sold in September numbered 699 and trucks 353, while Chevrolet passenger cars numbered 691 and trucks 473. Dodges came third, only 72 cars and trucks, Mr. Harris' figures show.

Aunt Sallie is 93 years of age and has been an invalid for 3 years. She is now confined to her bed and would be glad to have her old friends visit her.

did means of transportation that this should be lower than it is. Individual effort is again needed in any movement to secure a high rate of school attendance.
