WELCOME, WOODMEN OF THE WORLD, THRICE WELCOME!

We have with us this week a large number of Woodmen of the World, and their sisters, the Woodmen Circle. Brevard and Rosman are joint hosts to the visiting men and women, and no finer group of citizens ever gathered in this fine section than this group that is made up of Western North Carolina's finest.

Perhaps the public will see, in this log-rolling session, only the lighter side of Woodcraft. There is much play being enjoyed in this meeting, and that is good only for those who attend, but for us who entertain the visitors. Not so much of the serious side of Woodcraft is in evidence here during the convention. But there is a serious side, you may rest assured, in the great work carried on by the Woodmen of the World.

The majority of the members of the Woodmen of the World are men of modest means and moderate income. As a class, they are not rich men as we speak of rich men. They are men who do the things that are worth while—farmers, mechanics, business men, lawyers, doctors. Neither one of them, generally speaking, could lay up any appreciable amount of money to leave with his loved ones when the member is called upon to go away forever. But working together, pooling their interests, creating one huge general fund for all of the members, there is a goodly sum available for a member's family when he goes away.

That is the serious side of Woodcraft. That is the real purpose of the order. What we see here in the convention is the social side, the good fellowship that comes from association one with another. Go with W. H. Grogan, Jr., some day, when he is taking a big check to the widow and orphaned children of a deceased member of this order. See the gloom and dark despair driven from that home, when the widow and the orphans realize that the man who had provided them with necessities of life during his lifetime, had also prepared for their comfort and well being after he had been called away.

Let us enjoy the fun and frolic with the Woodmen here at convention, but at the same time let us understand that behind this outward show of fine fellowship and jolly good times there is the finer, greater, purpose of caring for those whose breadwinner is no longer with them.

Of course this community welcomes men and women of this kind, and honors them, and feels honored in having them here for their convention.

THAT ARMY OF FAITHFUL WORKERS—THE TEACHERS

Schools are out; the children are another year on their way in pursuit of education; the teachers are scattered to the various homes.

Throughout the school year our teachers have labored against odds, and smiled through it all. Receiving their compensation at irregular periods, and leaving for their homes at the end of the year with balances still due them on the year's work, our teachers have set an example that all of us would do well to study.

None of us can have the things that we should like to have. It is a condition, and it cannot change until conditions in general experience big changes. It would have brought no profit to the teachers to throw down their work simply because the harassed officials could not pay them promptly, so the teachers worked on, with just as great zeal as if they had not experienced a cut in pay, and get slow pay of what was left. If the officials could have obtained the money any place on earth the teachers would have been paid in full, and promptly. The teachers knew this, and accepted the situation in splendid manner.

So it should be with the people in general. But some of us are not as patient, pains-taking and loyal as the teachers have shown themselves to be. There is a good lesson for all of us, and we could avert the experience of many weary hours and days if we would profit by the example set by the teachers.

EFFORTS TO OBTAIN WELFARE WORKERS

Want County To Employ Full-Time Superintendents—May Do It.

Special effort is being made this spring to induce a number of counties, including Transylvania, to employ full-time superintendents of public welfare according to Miss Lois Doshier, Director of the Division of County Organization of the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare. She has recently visited a number of these counties and feels encouraged in her efforts to have the welfare work included when June budgets are made up.

The fact that the state now pays half the salary of the welfare worker makes the service cost only half as much as formerly. Many counties could employ a full-time superintendent of public welfare with an outlay of only a few hundred dollars in addition to what they are paying the superintendent of schools to do the work in an ex officio capacity. The majority of the counties would put on a worker without an additional tax levy.

Numbers of superintendents of public welfare have saved more than their salaries by investigating the pauper list of their counties. The welfare officer in Surry, for instance, has more than saved his salary by reducing the pauper dole. He found relatives who could care for certain ones who had long been charges of the county and purged the list of all who were not in real need. With private donations and funds from organizations he was able to take care of others. In addition, he insisted that every pauper raise a garden so that he will be self-supporting for a part of the year at least. Usually when a superintendent of public welfare starts investigating a pauper list he finds a number of actual grafters. One county, for instance, had unwittingly supported a woman for years who was no longer a resident of the county as she had a job in an adjoining county. But each month she returned for her pauper's check.

When the legislature of 1931 provided for state maintenance of the six-month school term, it also provided that the state pay one-half the salary of the superintendent of public welfare according to a graduated scale based on the county's population. The reason was that the superintendent of public welfare has always received one-half of his salary from the board of education because he is the chief school attendance officer. Ashe, Tyrrell, and Pamlico counties, realizing that they could get state aid in employing a trained worker for the welfare job immediately filled the office, making 52 full-time superintendents of public welfare and two part-time in the State. Others might have followed suit, but budgets were made up. Seeing the wisdom and economy in employing a welfare officer, many more counties are expected to make provision for them this June.

Because of the unusual calls that have come during the depression, it is especially important that a trained worker handle the welfare job. Miss Doshier pointed out. First, because funds for poor relief are limited and should be expended as wisely as possible; second, because families never appealing before are liable to become chronic paupers unless given the aid and encouragement that will assist them to become independent again.

One county commissioner in a certain county told Miss Doshier: "Last year I told you I was going to fight your plan, but I want you to know that I am going to fight with you. If we had not had a warm winter I don't know what we would have done. So many people have been in need."

FOR PROHIBITION

Editor Brevard News: We have been reading several pieces in your good paper on Prohibition and the 18th amendment. While a few say that it is a failure, the law is OK and the best law of the land. It is the people that are a failure.

Now good people and church workers, you know very well that we people who are opposed to whiskey in any way should wake up and let the rum runners know that since they are calling for a vote to try to get the whiskey back, that we are going to make it bone-dry.

Now good people everyone, man or woman, knows every one who sells or buys whiskey in your section. Let's get busy and see what can be done. We have Federal officers who are ready to catch any and all who fool with it in any way. But as long as we don't put them wise they can't do much.

YOU go to the federal men, get right down in your heart and tell them who and what you want done and see the results. Now good people we hear some say, pray and pray. But we must try and our prayers may be answered. Many times we are required to work to help get our prayers answered. Now we notice several clubs at work, but no club formed against making or selling whiskey will be of value unless we say that we are going to have a good and dry country for our boys and girls from now on.

Get busy, we can have it, but as long as we wait on the other fellow there will be no good results. Now readers stop and look back and see where we have been doing our duty and where we have not. See if your boy or girl has been out with rum runners or bootleggers or in company with a dram drinker, which is all the same in the end.

A Supporter of Prohibition.

PROCLAIM MAY 1 AS CHILD HEALTH DAY

Brevard To Join In Movement Looking to Better Care of Childhood.

Gov. O. Max Gardner has released a Proclamation, proclaiming May 1, 1932 as Child Health Day in North Carolina and he has called upon all the Governor's of the union to make a like proclamation to their state.

Measures are being taken by organizations of Brevard at this time to mark the day with a fitting celebration.

WHEREAS, the President of the United States, in accordance with an Act of Congress of May 18, 1928, requesting him to thereafter proclaim May 1st every year as Child Health Day, has proclaimed May 1st 1932 as Child Health Day, and called upon all Governors of the States of the Union to make such a proclamation to their people; and

WHEREAS, Point Five of the "Children's Charter" claims the right of every child to health protection in his home, in the school he attended, and in the community in which he lives; and

WHEREAS, the responsibility for the welfare of children is recognized today as a community responsibility as well as an individual duty;

THEREFORE, I, O. Max Gardner, Governor of North Carolina, do hereby proclaim Monday, May 2, 1932, as Child Health Day, to be observed in conjunction with other States of the Union; and

I urge that all the agencies of the State adopt as their program this year the American Child Health Association theme, "Support Your Community Child Health Program—It Protects Your Home," and the State Board of Health program this spring to get all children immunized against diphtheria, typhoid and smallpox.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of North Carolina.

Done at the Capitol, in Raleigh, this 8th day of April, 1932.

O. MAX GARDNER, GOVERNOR.

GREAT SCHOOL YEAR AT LITTLE RIVER

Graduation exercises for the Seventh Grade pupils in Little River school last Friday afternoon were greatly enjoyed by the students and a large number of parents and friends of the graduating class. One noticeable result of the school year's work was the happy spirit of cooperation that has prevailed throughout the year here. Principal H. P. Nicholson and his assistant teachers, Miss Julia Wood and Miss Flora Allison, expressed deepest gratitude to all the patrons of the school and the citizens of the community for the splendid support given the school.

Many patrons declared that the year just closing had been one of the most successful years in the history of the community, and many kind expressions were heard among the patrons for the splendid work done by Prof. Nicholson and Misses Wood and Allison.

James F. Barrett and O. H. Orr were the speakers of the day at the commencement exercises. It was explained by Prof. Nicholson that the graduating class unanimously selected these two men to appear on the program.

Diplomas were awarded to Earl Cantrell, Azalee Hamilton, Robert Kilpatrick, Malvin McGaha, Hall Merrill, Helen McCrary and Theodore Merrill.

Edward Duncan won the prize for perfect attendance, while Marvin Taylor won the D. A. R. history medal. Rev. Walter Hottelzclaw conducted the devotionals.

MOUNTAIN BROOKS ATTRACT ANGLERS

Large Numbers Of Lovers Of The Sport Flock To This Section.

Clear mountain brooks tumbling down through picturesque mountain valleys are attracting many anglers from all parts of the country, to Western North Carolina, following the opening of the trout fishing season on April 15. The stocking of the Western North Carolina streams with brook and rainbow trout each year is adding annually to the population of the brooks and to the luck of the angler.

The streams of the Pisgah National Game Preserve on the slopes of Mount Pisgah, opened to fishing for thirty days during the season, usually during May and June, attract many fishermen. Over 60,000 young trout have been added to these streams this season, the new stock being placed in rearing ponds at John Rock and in the Pink Beds Area of the Preserve, to be liberated next fall in the streams. Nearly 100,000 trout have been added annually to these streams for a number of years, and the strict supervision over fishing has increased the supply of the finny tribe in the waters of the Preserve. The opening date for the Preserve streams, this year, has not yet been announced.

Trout brooks in the 18 Western North Carolina counties offer 3,000 miles of fishing waters. With the exception of streams in game preserves, the fishing waters will be open to anglers from April 15 to September 1. Fishing for muskellunge in the upper waters of the French Broad River will be legal during the same period. Small mouth bass may be taken from the streams, from the artificial lakes and other bodies of water in the region from June 10 to October 1. Fishing for other species is allowed from June 11 to May 1 of the following year.

The development and protection of public fishing waters in the national forests, the protected and stocked streams of the five large game preserves and the newly created Great Smoky Mountains National Park, give promise of making Western North Carolina in the near future, a paradise for the trout fisherman. The sixty or more artificial lakes add interest for the angler who likes variety in his sport. Our fishermen of the section predict good fishing for the angler in this region, this season.

IN MEMORY OF BILLY PRINCE CANNON

Farewell! sweet child, farewell! 'Tis sad from thee to part, Although the Lord hath called thee home it almost breaks our heart. Farewell! sweet child, farewell! 'Tis hard to give thee up; "It is God's Will."—we humbly bow and drink the bitter cup. Farewell! sweet child, farewell! Thy sinless soul is free; Thou are saved by Christ's atoning blood, so freely shed for thee. Farewell! sweet child, farewell! Thou are only gone before; In heaven we shall meet again, Where partings come no more. MRS. PRINCE CANNON
