

GREAT CROWDS HEAR CYCLONE'S SERMONS

Asheville, N. C., June 29—Cyclone Mack, noted and powerful evangelist, is preaching twice daily at the Carolina Tobacco Warehouse, on Valley Street. According to the average daily increase in attendance, it is calculated that the Rev. McLendon will accomplish by the coming Sunday Services, a feat that many thought, three weeks ago, an impossible undertaking. Sunday will be the third consecutive Sunday in which the Cyclone has preached in Asheville. The task of filling the immense seating capacity of the warehouse-tabernacle with people in attendance at a church service, was one that many people considered impossible in the face of present conditions. Nevertheless, Cyclone Mack drew an audience on last Sunday night sufficient to utilize a fraction more than two-thirds of the seating capacity of the mammoth tabernacle. Already the evangelist and others interested in the meeting, are ready to believe that with the coming Sunday Services, a full demand upon the capacity of the house will be made.

"I am deeply appreciative and keenly thankful in a personal way for the splendid support and the very fine spirit which the citizens of Asheville and nearby communities have manifested, that my efforts and purpose in conducting a religious campaign in Asheville may result in a great blood-red, snow-white, and Calvary high revival," said the Cyclone.

Beginning on next Monday night, Cyclone Mack will preach to the colored people on Monday evenings for the remainder of Mondays throughout his campaign here. "White people can come, if they like, said the Rev. McLendon, but on Monday nights, I am going to preach to the colored people; and colored people will fill the choir and do the singing, everything but preaching."

Each service shows, it is said, a marked degree of growth in attendance and interest and already, people of Asheville are known to be fasting and praying for a great revival. Services twice daily—10 a. m. and each evening at 8 o'clock in the new tobacco warehouse on Valley street and all christian people are requested to spend much time in prayer and attendance at the meetings.

Means Is Refused Bail

Declared to be without sense of moral obligation, Gaston B. Means was denied bail by the District of Columbia court last week, when Means attempted to give bond pending an appeal from a 15-year sentence imposed for stealing $104,000 from Mrs. Evelyn W. McLean. Justice Proctor said Means still has the money and might flee if released on bond.

Enmeshed

For those who recognize the need of supporting their various pet charities a little more heartily this summer and bow with grace to the resulting curb on their summer wardrobe budget, there are many new and exciting accessories in the shops to plunge on—accessories that will brighten up last summer's dress, or add that last touch of chic to the new dress. Not the least of these is the mesh glove. Gloves are always an important detail to the costume and the new crocheted mesh gloves from Paris are especially interesting. Woven of cotton or linen thread that makes a flexible but well fitting glove, with snug wrists and flaring cuffs, these gloves come in both white and pastels. Agnes, ever original and smart, has sent over her newest mesh glove with a matching scarf, both in natural linen color. Contrasting meshes are employed, a coarse mesh for the glove cuff and scarf end, with a finer mesh for the hand of the glove and the scarf center. With the stockings mode becoming stronger every summer the brief little sports stockings are basking in popularity and there are a variety of mesh effects in lisle and wool to complement the mesh gloves or mesh hat for sportwear.

Jacketed for Evening

No evening gown seems complete without its accompanying jacket this summer and with no particular governing silhouette great latitude is given in style. While the majority of the figure closely and are only waist length, there are many other styles offered. Most of the fashion interest diversified and original. As to collars, the prevailing popularity of scarf collars has invaded the evening jacket field and we have observed many variations of this. The ever flattering roll collar is another favorite, but bearing out our statement above that great scope in style may be enjoyed, we point out the number of chic jackets that are collarless too. The sleeve treatment is interesting. Collarless jackets frequently have leg o'mutton sleeves, or puffed puffs from elbow to wrist. Sometimes the sleeve only reaches the elbow, giving a capelet effect. The newest jacket fashion is the ringless armhole, which is a loop of flowers cut from the jacket material outlining the armhole and leaving it quite sleeveless. This is a flattering style, and the only treatment that shows any relation to the present trend toward bigger and broader shoulder effects.

ROOSEVELT WINS IN ALL TEST VOTES

Senator Thomas J. Wash, of Montana, was elected permanent chairman of the National Democratic convention in Chicago Tuesday night, indicating the strength of the Roosevelt forces. Chairman Shouse was the choice of the anti-Roosevelt group, and Wash defeated him by more than one hundred votes, yet the test did not show that Roosevelt has sufficient strength to obtain the required two-thirds vote to be nominated.

North Carolina's delegation is taking active part in the convention. The convention was to hear the platform at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, and it is not expected that a nomination will be made before Friday. It was believed that most of the day Thursday would be taken up in consideration of the proposed platform, as indications to the submission of a minority report, demanding repeal of the 18th amendment.

"I Had to Take Some Kind of a Laxative Every Day," He Says

"This new Sargon treatment brought me the first and only relief I ever got for stomach trouble and constipation that I suffered with for twenty years. I had to take some kind of purgative nearly every night. Four bottles of Sargon made me feel like a new man. I now eat with a hearty appetite and the pills regulated me thoroughly. I am now in better shape physically than I have been in twenty years."—Myron D. Harwood, 70 Lenox (Chestnut), N. Y.

What Sargon did for Mr. Harwood it has done for many thousands of other grateful men and women throughout America. To wonder it is called the medicine with a million friends!

CITY GARDENS AID JOBLESS GET FOOD

Jobless Negroes in Winston-Salem are being fed from 2,300 small gardens scattered all over the city on vacant lots and open land about in the suburbs, while others find work as well as food laboring in the 30-acre community garden established this spring.

"This project of helping idle Negroes to help themselves is a cooperative project established by the Mayor, George W. Coans, Jr., and the Negro Division of Agriculture Extension Service at State College," says C. R. Hundson, state agent. "The college and city are cooperating to pay the salary of a special Negro agent, H. C. Jones, who is spending his entire time in this work. When the project was first begun this spring, the city used its teams and implements to prepare the land for cultivation. Local merchants then cooperated to help supply seeds and fertilizer and the tobacco companies gave great quantities of tobacco stems and dust as a further fertilizer."

Altogether now, 2,300 gardens are being cultivated and the Negroes are securing fresh vegetables from the plots in addition to canning and drying the surplus. The local Negro home agent, Elizabeth Tuttle, assisted by Dazelle Foster-Lowe, district home agent, is giving demonstrations in how to conserve the vegetable supply.

Hudson says idle Negroes are also employed on the 30-acre community garden and are paid from the proceeds of vegetables sales. Some of the surplus is also being canned for winter.

In this way, the jobless people are being taught to help themselves and the charity expense of the city is being reduced materially under the plan.

TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS ANSWERED AT STATE COLLEGE

Q. How can I make my old colonies finish filling their supers after the bees swarm?

Ans. The swarm should be hived on the old stand after moving the old colony to one side. The unfinished supers are then placed on the swarm above the queen excluder and the parent colony moved to a new location. This condition is caused by the field bees going with the swarm and leaving a weak force with the old colony. This may be remedied, however, by proper management so that the storing instinct is dominant during the honey flow.

Q. Will it pay me to continue heavy feeding of my old hens during the summer months?

Ans. Yes—it is just as important to maintain high production during the summer months as at any other time. Egg prices usually begin to rise in July and this continues through August. Heavy feeding makes it possible to secure highest production from the old hens before the pullets come into lay. It also keeps the birds in good condition for proper culling and the selection of high producers for breeding.

Q. Does it pay to have the poultry flocks blood tested?

Ans. Poultry specialists at State College say that it does pay and a letter received this week from Mrs. J. E. Broom of Union County proves that it does. This is the second year that Mrs. Broom has had her flock tested and the mortality this year
