

MAY BE FIGHT OVER THE CHAIRMANSHIP

Raleigh, July 14.—When the State Democratic Executive Committee meets in Raleigh the latter part of this month, at call of Chairman O. M. Mull, one of its most important tasks will be to select a State Chairman to take active charge of the campaign this fall and guide the destinies of the party for the next two years. Chairman Mull, holding this post for four years, has indicated that he will not stand for re-election.

The committee of 132 members will do the selecting, but will listen to the principal candidates, for Governor and U. S. Senator. J. C. B. Ehringhaus and Robert R. Reynolds, these candidates, have conferred together and with Governor O. Max Gardner, titular head of the party, and it is believed that a leader suitable to all factions will be selected.

Major L. P. McLendon, Ehringhaus manager, and C. L. Shuping, Bailey manager two years ago, have been mentioned, as has Thomas C. (Tom) Bowie, defeated in the first primary as candidate for the Senate. Objections have been made to all of them. Reynolds has indicated that Walter H. Woodson, Salisbury, is acceptable to him. Governor-Nominee Ehringhaus has made no indication of his preference. J. Wallace Winborne, Marion, might be a compromise. He is said to be on proper terms with Ehringhaus and Reynolds. Governor Gardner and Senator Bailey. Others will be suggested. Harmony is expected.

ONLY BEST COWS CAN PAY THEIR OWN WAY

The North Carolina dairyman making money on his herd at this time is the person who knows how to feed, how to cull low-producing cows and how to raise the best calves from the highest-producing animals. The best way to find out about these things is to have a cow testing or herd improvement association in the community.

Fred M. Haig, in charge of the State College dairy herd, gives five sound reasons why dairy farmers should associate themselves into such an organization. First, he says, a cow testing association takes the guess out of dairying and puts the herd on a business basis. Nothing will point out the low producing cows more quickly or accurately than a pair of scales and a Babcock tester. Second, by knowing what each individual cow is producing, the dairyman may cull out his unprofitable or boarder cows. A few boarders can soon place a herd in the loss column. Third, yearly figures will show from which cows to save calves so as to build up a high-producing herd. Fourth, members of an association receive benefits from buying and selling collectively. Fifth, the aid of the official tester will help the dairyman to feed his cows more economically and to cut down overhead expenses.

For three years, Prof. Haig was tester for a herd improvement association which was composed of 24 dairymen owning 600 cows. During that time the cows gained 24 percent in their production of milk and 32 percent in production of butterfat. The profit above cost of feed was $97.52 greater per cow in the third year than it was in the first year. This increase was secured despite an increase in feed prices at that time.

Mr. Haig says the small cost to each dairyman in such an association makes the investment well worth while from the standpoint of money returns alone.

Eleven Edgecombe County farmers received $33.86 for a carload of 133 hogs sold last week.
