Vacation Bible School at the Baptist Church Reports Capacity Enrollment

(By Mack Grogan)

The Daily Vacation Bible School began its first regular session Monday morning at 9:00 o'clock, with a capacity enrollment. The success experienced at the registration period on Friday afternoon drew large numbers of children to the Baptist church Monday to discover for themselves the cause of the enthusiasm of the children who attended on Friday. The attendance increased from 150 on Friday to over 200 on Monday. More new students came Tuesday.

Several minutes before the opening time Monday morning the church grounds were filled with playing children. At nine o'clock the Juniors and Intermediates attended a worship period which was followed by the regular department work.

The class rooms were equipped with tables, chairs, and materials for work, suitable to the pupils of each age. Many of them enjoyed the work done in the morning session so thoroughly that they expressed regret that there was no session in the afternoon.

The children came and saw and were convinced that the Daily Vacation Bible School was worth their time. Once they had come they were there to stay. Joyous laughter rippled over the playgrounds during the recesses and the buzz of serious work filled the rooms of the Sunday School building in which the school is housed. The entire building is being used for the activities of the school.

Perhaps the most interesting period of work in the school was the handwork period. During the handwork period the Junior boys used the base-

The event is to open Friday morning, at which time especially fine bargains are offered for those first to attend the sale.

Economists say that merchandise is selling today at prices much lower than can, under any circumstances, be expected to prevail 60 days from now. Many people are taking advantage of the low market to lay in large supplies of merchandise against the advance that is expected before very long.

WELFARE BOARD IS ANXIOUS FOR AID

A call has been issued by Welfare Board Workers for all cases of dire need to be reported to the central office at Brevard or to W. A. Wilson, field worker. In order to avoid duplication it is also requested that the charity cases which are being aided by individuals and organizations be reported to the welfare board.

Nearly 200 families are now receiving Red Cross flour, investigation being made as rapidly as possible in each case. However it is pointed out, it has been impossible to check each case in the short period of time available. Citizens of the various communities are also requested to give any information in regard to cases that are being helped by the welfare organization to the board, direct.

This work can be materially helped if citizens of the communities will report general conditions of the families to the board, giving such information as: Assets of applicants, crops and gardens being cultivated, willingness to work, with special emphasis being placed on the last named.

Rumors of many kinds are said to be floating around over the county concerning the distribution of Red Cross flour, and workers state that they will appreciate reliable information on any case, but that mouth-to-mouth rumors are handicapping the work.

She served as dietitian for the Girl Scout camp which was held at Camp Sapphire several weeks ago.
