IN MEMORY OF JAMES THOMAS GILLILAND

In the quiet hours of Saturday evening July 12, 1930, God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to remove James Gilliland from our midst. With a smile on his face he closed his eyes and folded his hands for a quiet rest, because God who doeth all things well will do so.

Mr. Gilliland was the son of Mrs. John Dunlap of Siler City, N. C. He had made his home in the Swananoa Valley since his marriage in June, 1923. He married Miss Nancy Raines of near Brevard and visited in this section many times, gaining a host of friends who were made sad to hear of his passing.

While working at an electrically driven saw, in the Beacon manufacturing plant a piece of lumber was torn from his hands and flung into the air striking him in the abdomen. After spending several hours in the hospital where the best medical aid was rendered his condition proved fatal. He said his time had come and he was ready to go.

He joined Love's Creek Baptist church in his early teens and later transferred his membership to Swananoa Baptist church where he was a member until his death. He had a host of relatives and friends throughout the eastern part of this state and many other states to mourn their heavy loss.

"He came forth as a flower and was cut down."

"But there is yet hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will sprout again and that the tender branches thereof will not cease."

Life has been lonely since his departure, and there is a vacancy one seems to fill. Yet we know life has been made a little better for his having passed through and Heaven a little brighter through his entrance there.

He was laid to rest in Pine Grove cemetery beneath a bed of roses under the overlasting shade of God's trees and under the sod of God's earth until the resurrection morn.

A Sister-in-law,
MYRTLE RAINES.

KISSING
Lincoln Times

Every so often some learned doctor—whose best friends it is to be suspected, won't tell him what his trouble is—has his fling at taking the joy out of life by issuing solemn warning against the perils of kissing.

Now comes Dr. O'Leary, of Minnesota, who declares, as many have done before him, that kissing is likely to spread a wide variety of disease germs, ranging from tuberculosis to housemaid's knee. Says he: "Even the healthiest are liable to disease from infection through careless osculation."

Like others of the killjoy tribe, the good doctor doesn't know just what can be done about it. In spite of all warnings, the ancient art of kissing still flourishes. It is even suspected that in some quarters it is on the increase.

Yet few will deny that kissing has its dangers. One of which, in certain cases, is that of getting caught.

"MOTHER TAYLOR"

Back in the early nineties there came into the mountains of Western North Carolina two persons seeking a place wherein to found an Institution that had for its principal aim and purpose the development of Christian Character and training for Home making.

Fortunately for Brevard, there were those living in the town who sensed a vision of what such an Institution would mean for the general up-lift of this great mountain section, and these envisioned persons were instrumental in having these two people visit Brevard and Transylvania County and they saw a "field already white with harvest" where laborers were few.

Leasing for a season the house erected by Mrs. E. T. Henning at the present Rail-Road cut on West Main street, one room was set apart for school work, and if memory is not at fault, Miss Dovie Hamlin of Selica, was the first pupil. Other girls came from time to time and larger quarters became necessary. Miss Delia Gash, the then occupant of the "Red House," and one of the choice Christian spirits of the community, turned her Home, which was then and still is one of the landmarks of the town, over to these Heaven-sent Christian workers who had not despised the "day of small beginnings" and who saw the work of the Master prospering in their hands.

A large increase in attendance of girls from various sections of Transylvania came and lived in this Home which was indeed "as a city set on a hill" and gave forth a radiant light of character training which has increased with the passing of the years. Many people in the town, having become convinced that the school was one of remarkable influence for good, began to patronize it by sending their boys and girls to it. Soon it became apparent that the Institution had become fixed as an indispensable part of the County's Educational system, and additional room for growth became a pressing necessity. Six acres of land were purchased where the girls dormitories and Administration buildings are now located, and on April 9, 1901, ground was broken, with appropriate ceremonies, for the erection of "Taylor Hall."

Soon thereafter, by constant and persistent efforts on the part of these two path-finders in Christian and vocational home-training, aided by their loyal supporters and friends who had seen the horizon pushed back by this helpful and wholesome Institution of learning, interested The Woman's Home Mission Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the work which had been brought through years of struggle and hardship to a place where there was needed additional power and resources beyond that which these two faithful founders, limited as they were in the things of the world, could command, and into the hands of this great Religious organization of a great Church, Fitch Taylor and Sara Taylor, with confidence and faith in the future of the Institution, committed a great trust. That which had been to them a dream in the long ago had become, under a Providential guidance, a reality, and in its destiny for a wonderful and uplifting work among the children of men of this Southland, and especially of the great mountain section, they had an abiding faith that lasted for each of them until life's sun-set gates closed.

From the "one room" and the "one girl," these two had seen hundreds of boys and girls come to a well equipped Institution with modern dormitories and other necessary buildings surrounded by broad and fertile acres for vocational development. Truly these two faithful founders had seen "their dreams come true."

After many years of useful benevolent labors, Rev. Fitch Taylor, passed to his reward in 1909. His saintly companion remained for 23 years to see larger things accomplished, and on July 25, 1932, she wrapped the drapery of her couch about her and lay down as one to pleasant dreams.

What a lasting monument to the sacred memory of these departed saints of earth. Neither brass nor stone piled high is necessary to keep alive the memory of these who have labored and passed on, but far better than this, the influence for good set in motion by them is and will ever be as a pillar of cloud and fire leading this and other generations from the low-land bogs of earthly and unkept homes to the up-lands of better citizenship and Christian character.

If some one shall stand in Brevard in the years to come and ask where is the monument to Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, he will only have to be told, as was the visitor who stood amidst the wonders of Westminster Abbey looking for the monument to its builder, Sir Christopher Wrenn: "Look around you." Is he yet unsatisfied? Let him find his way into the homes of those who have gone out from "Epworth School" and "Brevard Institute." Let him visit the Campus, the Carpenter shop, the Farm Demonstration Department; the Domestic Art Department, and the Marthas in the Kitchen, and then let him sense the Christian atmosphere pervading the entire work of the Institution.

Here this saintly couple labored and others have entered into their labors. They builded better than they knew, and the glorious work which they began and which is being continued lives on in the lives of thousands who have gone out and will go out into all sections of this great country to establish Christian Homes which constitute the only bulwark to our disturbed and tottering civilization.

Beside her departed husband who sleeps amid the charms of a Sylvan Valley, the body of this aged saint rests from her labors and when He cometh to gather up His jewels these

It was a mistake about the revival going on at Catheys Creek church through last week as it closed Wednesday night. Much good preaching was done but very little interest was shown by the congregations.

Summer Time
During these hot summer days many sovereigns have been planting and cultivating vegetables and grains expecting to harvest this fall. The result of their summer labor will provide food for the long winter months. Now is the summer time of your life. Buy Woodmen insurance while it's still summer time in your life. It will provide for you during your old days.

Excess Paid
During May 1932 the Woodmen of the World paid to widows and orphans $14,059.66 more than the certificates called for. President Fraser and other national officers deserve much credit for the financial standing of the Woodmen of the World. While others have failed through poor management and leadership we have grown in resources and usefulness and are now paying thousands more than beneficiaries expect because it's more than certificates call for.

Hickory Camp
Hickory Camp No. 80 held their annual watermelon feast Sunday July 31. For several years this camp has been enjoying these annual affairs. We thank Sovereign Miller for the invitation. Sorry we could not be with you.

Canton Camp
We attended meeting at Canton Camp No. 391 Friday 29th. Two candidates received the protection degree. Thirty members were there to greet us. Around twenty applicants to be initiated during August.

SOME PEOPLE WOULD DO WELL TO BECOME MOUNTAINEERS
Waynesville Mountaineer
It seems that everyone outside of this mountain district takes it for granted that all the citizens in this section are poverty-stricken, and live in little cabins stuck on the side of hills. Of course years and years ago when the early settlers came to this country, that was true, but today it is entirely different.

Recently a nationally known cartoonist in his regular Sunday comic section sketched some views of North Carolina. These were taken from coast to the mountains, and in the mountain section he showed a mountaineer's cabin on the side of a steep hill, with the forest coming down to the very door steps. Even if that condition did exist as he tried to show in his cartoon, the mountaineer's home would at least be filled with the purest of air and his well filled

MUTUAL EXCHANGE OF VALUE TO FARMER

Mutual farm exchanges as operated in a number of North Carolina counties have great value and more of them should be organized and the whole family welded into a state association or organization, believes J. W. Johansen, extension economist at State College.

Mr. Johansen says there are some 50 county mutual exchanges now in operation. They are simply small co-operative buying and selling organizations owned and operated by the farmers themselves and incorporated under the Mutual Exchange Act of North Carolina. Under this type of set-up, the farmers are permitted by law to collectively pool their farm products for the purpose of assembling, grading, processing, packaging, advertising and selling the products to the best advantage. The Act also permits the associated farmers to buy their supplies collectively at wholesale prices.

This volume purchasing and selling has saved the farmers of the State considerable money in recent years so much so that a number of county farm agents who have organized such exchanges have been the targets of attacks by certain business interests which have disguised their attacks under the head of saving taxes. There is one exchange, says Mr. Johansen, now in its second year which will save the farmers of the county for 1932 between $15,000 and $30,000 in fertilizer costs alone. Another mutual exchange did a volume of business amounting to $375,000 for its farmers in 1931. The bulk of this business amounting to $225,000 was from farm products sold for farm membership and $150,000 was for farm supplies bought in pooled orders.

"As the farmer sees his way to affiliate his local exchange with the State Exchange and this in turn affiliates with national marketing organizations, the farmer will have an improved outlet for his products," Johansen believes.

with the best of water in the world, while within two miles of where that cartoon was drawn, we venture to say, there was a slum section where conditions were much worse than inside the mountaineer's cabin.

The idea has gone abroad that mountain people are victims of being shut off from the rest of the world and do not know how to improve the existing conditions around them. Of course, we, who live here know, that this is not true, and the best way to convince the rest of the world is to just keep on improving the many wonderful blessings that have been bestowed upon us by nature. The glory will come later.
