A STENOGRAPHER'S DISPLAY OF SPLENDID LOYALTY.

"Were you talking about my boss in that editorial last week?" a certain lawyer's stenographer asked this poor and sorely tried scribe one day recently. Five was in her eye and ire was in her expression. Always more or less bashful in the presence of ladies, we couldn't answer for a moment, so the impatient stenographer continued her tongue lashing, and said: "If you were talking about my boss, I shall never read your paper again, and you may remove my name from your mailing list, if you were referring to MY boss in that editorial."

When assured that no mention had been made of her employer, no intimation, even, of taking her boss to task, then she became her own friendly self again.

There is nothing particularly interesting in relating this story, nor is there any news value in it, because we are taken to task so often, and jumped upon by so many people because of editorials and news articles, that this one incident was but one more of its kind.

But there was something fine and grand in this woman's act. There was a manifestation of loyalty to her employer that was most refreshing and deeply impressive. Here was a stenographer, an employee, who was willing to do battle in protecting her employer. It was fine; it was grand; it was rather unusual.

That woman can be trusted. She can be trusted with anything on earth, of whatever value. No finer mark of honor or honesty can be found than that of an employee's loyalty to an employer. On the other hand, no meaner spirit can be displayed than that of disloyalty to one's employer.

In this connection it might be well to let Elbert Hubbard speak on this subject. Hon. Don S. Elias, in speaking to the Kiwanis club in Brevard recently, climaxed his fine address by reading the following words from Hubbard:

Horse Sense

If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him. If he pays wages that supply you your bread and butter, work for him, speak well of him, think well of him, stand by him and stand by the institution he represents. I think if I worked for a man, I would work for him. I would not work for him a part of his time, but all of his time. I would give an undivided service or none. If put to a pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage, why, resign your position, and when you are outside, damn to your heart's content. But, I pray you, so long as you are part of an institution, do not condemn it. Not that you will injure the institution—not that—but when you disparage the concern of which you are a part, you disparage yourself. And don't forget, "I forgot" don't do in business.

LET THE LINDBERGH ENJOY THEIR BABY IN PEACE.

That was a piteous appeal made by Col. Lindbergh to the press of the nation Tuesday evening. Another baby boy had come to them, and immediately the wires of the world became busy, and a great army of news-gatherers, cameramen and curiosity seekers began the trek toward the Morrow home, where the mother and new-born babe are living. Col. Lindbergh, knowing full well that it was due in large measure to the publicity given his first born that resulted in the tragic death of the little fellow, issued a statement Tuesday evening, pleading with the people to let him and his wife and his baby alone.

What is the matter with America, that her citizens who have accomplished a fortune, cannot live in peace? After all is said and done, there is no news value in the fact that Anne Morrow Lindbergh has had another baby. It is no more important in news value than the birth of any other baby boy, even in the humble home on the mountainsides of the Carolina hills or on the plains of Texas.

This is supposed to be a democracy, this republic in which we live, yet there is no other nation on earth where people worship at the shrine of wealth or at the foot of the hero like that witnessed in this land of the free and the home of the brave. The over-zealous newspapers are largely responsible for this state of affairs.

Mrs. Lindbergh gives birth to a baby, and off goes the whole top of the pot in America, and reporters go crazy. Countless millions of women in the world have gone down into the valley of the shadow, and come up smiling, with little babes on their bosoms, just like Mrs. Lindbergh has done. She was surrounded by every luxury, watched over by the best of physicians, attended by the most proficient nurses. Her act cannot be compared in heroism with that of tens of millions of mothers who have brought human life into this world under circumstances that would chill the heart of even Col. Lindbergh himself. Our own mothers, here in these great mountains, have performed the miracle unaided by physicians and unattended by nurses, and there were the heroic acts.

Col. Lindbergh and his excellent wife are just human beings. They are happy in the birth of their baby. Our greatest help to them would be to let them alone, to live and love with their own. A few silent prayers to Almighty God that His great protection be thrown about the new babe would be infinitely better for the Lindberghs than all of our newspaper hip-hurrahs about the little fellow.

If this publicity continues, the week will not be ended before there is another plot being laid to kidnap this second child of the Lindberghs, and if it happens let no one charge the act up to the 18th amendment and the prohibition laws. Charge it up to the infernal newspapers that make such an ado about the birth of a baby boy.

BETTER TIMES SEEN IN ALL PARTS OF NATION.

From every direction and in every day's news dispatches there come the news of renewed business activities, of resumption of work in manufacturing plants, of better prices for farm products. We people in Transylvania County know what it means for the silversten interests to resume operations. Then let us get a glimpse of the national picture by thinking of the fact that in every section of the country the manufacturing business is starting up, putting men back to work, and placing new men on the payroll.

We should not make the mistake, however, of expecting a complete recovery over night. It takes a long time for a man who has been sick to fully recover his strength. He must take good care of himself, watch his step at every turn. This nation and every other nation in the world have long been sick. The recovery is to be much like that of the individual who has suffered a long illness. The process of recovery will be gradual, and care must be exercised all the time.

When the state begins its increased highway work with the huge sum of federal money sent into North Carolina, added to the renewed activities in private business, then we shall really feel the beneficial effects of starting upon the road to recovery.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM DR. ZACHARY.

Dr. J. F. Zachary, reared in the great mountain section of Cashiers, and living most of his life since attaining his majority in the friendly town of Brevard, and who left here several months ago to practice his profession in Seattle, Wash., has found the Big City a most undesirable place in which to live, and has moved to Snoqualmie, Wash., a town about the size of Brevard. In a most interesting letter to the editor of The Brevard News Dr. Zachary tells something of his longing for the friendly places where folks are folks and fishing is within easy access of all.

A portion of Dr. Zachary's fine letter deals with the liquor question, for he has long been an advocate of prohibition, a real church worker, and one of the best citizens this town ever claimed. In telling about his removal from Seattle to Snoqualmie, Dr. Zachary says:

"I had a good place there in normal times, but the office overhead was so much that I decided that somebody else would have to worry as to whether the owners of the building as well as the gas and phone companies pay dividends or not. My office telephone was $10.00 per month with rent and other overhead in proportion. Living expenses are low there but business operation is terrible.

This place is a combination of three little towns, with a total population about that of Brevard. There is a tremendous saw mill here with a capacity of 500,000 feet a day when in full time. At the present they are way down but they won't always be that way. The surrounding country is a rich farming and dairying region. I am too much of a hill billy to have to dodge city traffic. The folks about here are the kind I think most of—countrymen.

This section is known as the Snoqualmie Valley. It is about thirty miles long but not as wide or pretty as the French Broad. For that matter few are as beautiful as that. The river is larger than the French Broad and runs within 200 yards of my office. It is full of fish, so you see I'll be satisfied on that score. The entire section is dotted with natural lakes and there is a good trout stream over every ridge. The Snoqualmie falls are only a half mile below town. It is a wonderful thing. Has a sheer-drop of 270 feet and you can get steel head trout, salmon or what have you at the foot.

I went to one of the near by lakes last Sunday p. m. and tried to learn to swim. The most noticeable results of the effort were high water, when I got into the lake and a nice case of sunburn on your truly. Also, I was nearly as stiff and sore Monday as you were after falling of the mountain up at the Narrows towards Gloucester two years ago. One fellow told me that he did not see how I could sink since fat is supposed to float, but it must have been my feet that pulled me under. The people here are absolutely dippy on swimming. When the time comes they just about quit work and live at the beaches. There are only eight or ten weeks when the water is warm enough. The weather is not cold, but there is so much snow in the mountains it takes it a long time to melt when spring does come. So long as snow water is running into the streams they are too cold for swimming.

The sun does not get very hot here on the coast and the nights are cool enough to call for two or more blankets. It does not get cold in winter, due to the Japanese current that runs up the coast.

I think I will enjoy the hunting out here too. The mountains are full of deer and bear, although I have not lost any bear, and the valleys are thick with birds, most Chinese pheasants. They find them in their yards right here in town, except during open season.

Dr. Zachary, active in Masonic circles here for years, is finding much comfort and consolation in the Masonic field in his new home. As to this phase of life in the State of Washington, he says:

"This immediate section is very much given to Masonic and Eastern Star activities. There are more members of each to the population than any place I ever heard of and that part won't make me think any the less of them.

I suppose you are all busy while the tourists and camps are there. I always enjoyed the hustle and activity that went along with that season.

I would surely like to be with you for awhile. One thing I would enjoy would be to go up to Roy's or Mack's and get a real, honest to goodness Coca Cola. The people here think about as much of a "dope" as they would shoe blacking, and, after drink-just one of the kind they serve, I can't say they are to be blamed. The one I drank reminded me of my boyhood days in the long ago when I mixed sorghum lasses with water and tried to drink it.

Dr. Zachary's comments on the liquor question are most timely, and should be read by all people, more especially by the young people in the community where the well known dentist was so dearly beloved and had so many friends. He paints a picture that should be a warning to all who are so anxious to rush into repeal of the prohibition laws. It is hoped that all young men and women in the homes where The Brevard News is received will read and study Dr. Zachary's statements on this all important question. He says—

"I suppose the top has long since blown off the political pot down there. I was slightly surprised at the result of the North Carolina State Primary. Still, I suppose one can't blame the voters who are not old enough to remember the days when liquor was on top in every block. They have certainly had to read and hear enough filthy propaganda in the past few years to make them believe every saloon owner and bartender in the past had a diploma for Sunday school and Church attendance as well as Missionary contributions, Lay service, Prayer leading and most everything else sacred and fine tacked upon the wall behind the bar. The sad part of it is that it looks as if they are going to fix things so that they will learn better three bitter experiences, watered with oceans of tears and learned with the destitution of Myriads of children and wives whose husbands and fathers visit the "liquor store" under government control with wage envelopes in their pockets on pay day. However, I suppose we can comfort ourselves with the old, old saying "truth crushed to earth shall rise again." I feel that it won't take very long for legal liquor mixed with the gasoline of millions of cars upon the concrete roads of this country to so smear the blood of innocent people upon those same roads that the present cry for, will turn into a savage warfare against, booze. It may be wrong, but "turns my sentiments."

"Well, I think I have rambled along far enough. Please tell C. M. to change his paper to my new address too, will you.

Mrs. Zachary and the children are well. The youngsters have been huskier than ever before since we came west.

Give my regards to your family and try writing me a letter. I read your sooth sayings in the paper every week and enjoy them but I would appreciate a direct communication.

Sincerely,
J. F. ZACHARY.
