

EDITOR FAIN MAKES APPEALING SPEECH

Declares Repeal Fight Is Led By Those Who Want In Business.

(Hendersonville Times-News)
The W. C. T. U. organization of Hendersonville met in the First Baptist church Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, with the president, Mrs. W. C. Powell, presiding. After singing and a prayer by the Rev. W. Smith Martin, Methodist minister, Mrs. Powell presented J. T. Fain, editor of the Times-News, who spoke on the prohibition issue as it confronts the country at this time.

Mr. Fain said that present day opposition to the 18th Amendment and the prohibition laws which has turned some former friends of prohibition into opponents, has been manufactured by the liquor crowd of the country, composed of men who desire to have the manufacture and sale of liquor legalized in order that they may start the breweries and distilleries again and re-establish the saloon system of retail distribution. This condition has been brought about by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and similar "wet" organizations, organized and financed by men who expect to engage in the liquor business if the amendment and prohibition laws are repealed. This condition, the speaker said, has been brought about by expenditure of large sums of money for publicity and propaganda, by endless and tireless work by the "wets," and by the circulation of false statements and misleading newspaper and magazine articles.

The speaker then proceeded to show by facts and figures that prohibition has not been a failure; that it has greatly decreased the consumption throughout the country of fermented and distilled liquors and that is the reason why the "wets" have determined to kill the amendment and the prohibition laws, with the additional reason the desire of many citizens of the country to have the manufacture and sale of liquor legalized so they can engage in a semi-respectable (so they think) business instead of one that is outlawed.

Mr. Fain concluded his talk by urging the sincere friends of prohibition to stand their ground and fight for enforcement of the laws, instead of "lying down" before the moonshiners, bootleggers, racketeers and other law-breakers of the country with the admission, "You control the country; our laws cannot be enforced against you. Take charge and run the country."

The speaker said that the position of President Hoover and that of Candidate Roosevelt, on this issue, are entirely unsatisfactory to prohibitionists; and that the same is true of the "wet" planks in the platforms of the Republican and Democratic parties; that the issue was dragged into this campaign by the "wets," who manipulated both national conventions and sought to tie the hands of both loyal Republicans and loyal Democrats who are prohibitionists, by forcing them to vote against their convictions.

The speaker said that the 18th Amendment can be repealed only in the way it was adopted; and advised his hearers to give their chief concern to the election of prohibition legislators and a prohibition congress, which can prevent repeal. The speaker said he did not believe the issue would ever be submitted to State conventions; that course has never been adopted in this country, all constitutional amendments having been submitted to State legislatures for ratification or rejection; and that the convention plan is now advocated by the "wets" because they believe conventions can be manipulated and controlled with much less difficulty than legislatures.

BREVARD HIGH TO HAVE FUND SHARE

Brevard High School has been allowed the George Reed Home Economic teacher in the high school for the year 1932-33.

This fund will enable Transylvania county to have a Home Economics teacher who will be on duty ten months of the year. Eight of these Miss Wilcox will work in the high school and two months general work among the homes of the county.

Miss Margaret Garrison, a graduate of the Brevard Institute plans to leave next week for Albany, New York where she has accepted the position as Dietetic of the Orphans Home of Albany.

The girl who says she loves you more than anybody else in the world has been experimenting.

MRS. LEWIS MOORE CALLED IN DEATH

Mrs. Lewis Moore, who has been such a patient sufferer for several months, died at her home Wednesday night, August 17, 1932. Funeral services were held at the Brevard Baptist church Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. B. N. Rogers, pastor of Carrs Hill church, conducted the rites. Burial was made in the Oak Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Moore was born May 6, 1903, and joined the Baptist church when she was eleven years old. She was a dependable church worker as long as she was able to attend church. As a devout and consistent Christian she was greatly loved by all with whom she came in contact.

She is survived by her husband, Lewis Moore, and four children: Euna Leigh, Lois, Frankie, and Farrell. In addition her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Allison, of Brevard, four sisters and two brothers survive. They are as follows: Mrs. Lynch Moore, Flora and Dorothy and Madison Allison, of Brevard. Mrs. V. C. Orr of Little River and Mr. Carl Allison of Cherryfield.

Flower girls: Lillie and Edna McCrary, Marjorie and Mildred Hamilton, Mrs. Ira Galloway, Mrs. Harley Merrill, Mrs. M. M. Feaster, Mrs. Roland Owen.

Pall bearers: Gertha and Luther Shipman, Roy and J. R. Neill, Willie Neill, and T. C. Hamilton.

UNCLE MACK REESE DIED LAST TUESDAY

"Uncle" Mack Reese, 91 years of age, died at his home on East Fork at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, and funeral services were held at Carson's Creek Baptist church Wednesday morning. The deceased was born in East Fork, and had lived there throughout his long and useful life, highly respected and greatly loved by all who knew him. He was a farmer and stock raiser, having been most active in his work until the creeping years made it impossible for him further to pursue his work.

He was first married to a Miss Hines, who died several years ago. To this couple were born the following sons and daughters, who survive: Emanuel Reese, of South Carolina; Mrs. Furman Cison, of this county; Hampton Reese, of Georgia; Tilden Reese, of East Fork, and Rev. C. C. Reese, well known minister of the county.

Some years ago Mr. Reese married Miss Emma Rains, who also survives. A great host of friends attended the funeral services and paid their last respects to their departed friend.

COMPLETING LINK IN HIGHWAY NO. 28

Work has begun on Tuesday on the paving of Broad street from the corner of Main street extending to Kings Creek, according to information given out by Mr. Ferguson, state highway engineer. Until it is finished it will be necessary for motorists to detour around this section. Crushed stone was placed on this link several weeks ago.

THE UPWARD TREND

(Little paragraphs which show that business is on the up-grade)
The following items, clipped from the newspapers throughout the state testify to the fact that business is getting better and this pet depression is about to give way to better times. It will be noted that no one locality or section is showing this improvement but that it is general.

Wages up in Carboro

For the first time in a long time the Durham Hosiery mills are operating on full-time schedule and announcement has been of a ten per cent increase in salaries. Orders have been received for several weeks in advance which justifies the increase.

Large Lumber Order

The Depine Timber Company, of Orangeburg county, reports that it had received from a New York firm an order for 25 cars of lumber. The order was described as being the largest in several months.

DR. LYDAY'S BURIAL LARGELY ATTENDED

Woodmen of the World Have Charge of the Burial Ceremony.

Last rites over the remains of Dr. W. M. Lyday were conducted Sunday afternoon at the Gillespie cemetery, with the local camp of the Woodmen of the World, using the beautiful burial service of the order, in charge of the rites. Dr. Lyday died Monday of last week, funeral services being held the following Wednesday, but burial was postponed until the arrival of a daughter, Mrs. Wells, from the far West.

A large number of the members of the Woodmen of the World met at Woodmen Hall at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and formed the procession. Rev. Mack Grogan directed the work, while A. B. Galloway recited the ritualistic work of the order. A great host of friends attended the burial service, including physicians from Asheville and other cities and centers.

Casual survey of the assembled crowd of mourning friends showed the presence of the rich and the poor, white and black, old and young. Flowers covering the newly made grave also marked the universality of the departed doctor's service to mankind. There were wreaths prepared by florists that bore evidence of the sparing of expense; there were other wreaths made up of the choicest flowers in home gardens; still others were made up of the flowers of hill and vale, gathered by loving hands and wreathed with tenderness care. Regardless, however, of the kind of wreath, each spoke in eloquent manner of deep love and sweet recollections of him who had been a friend to all—the rich and the poor, black and white, old and young.

J. A. Simpson, Miss Geneva Neill and George Simpson sang two numbers, both of them being favorites of the departed physician. The first song was "Rock of Ages," and the other was "Nearer, My God to Thee," and as the last words of this song were wafted upon the air the solemnity of the living crowd there in the City of the Dead was most marked. He who had cured the afflicted, brought ease to the suffering, stayed the hand of death by his thorough diagnosis and careful treatment, had now succumbed to the Grim Reaper, and as his body was lowered into the grave to be covered by the silent clouds of the Sylvan Valley the people realized that their friend was gone—a friend in every sense of the word.

But his work is not ended, for gathered about this last resting place of all that is mortal of Dr. Lyday, there were sons and daughters, grandsons and grand daughters, carrying on his work. Present for the rites were: his widow, three sons, Dr. Russell Lyday, Greensboro; Dr. Hall Lyday, Greenville, S. C.; Dr. Emmett Lyday, of Gastonia; two daughters, Mrs. A. F. Mitchell, Penrose and Mrs. Frank L. Wells, Mayville, N. D.

In addition, four brothers and three sisters survive, these being G. T. Lyday, A. B. Lyday and L. F. Lyday, of this county, E. O. Lyday of Bradenton, Fla., Mrs. J. A. Surret, Penrose; Mrs. J. P. Allison, Pickens, and Mrs. R. L. Morgan, Asheville.

A grandson greatly loved by Dr. Lyday, Dr. Harry Bradley, also survives, and is now an interne in a hospital at Atlanta, but had completed arrangement with Dr. "Bill" to become associated with him here in the practice.

Men Who Make Our World

There are those who ridicule Prof. Auguste Pittard, the noted scientist for what they term his foolish flights into the top of this old world of ours. There is nothing to be found there they contend. Just space.

Perhaps they are right. This great scientist may be wasting his time trying to see how high up in the air he can rise and what he will find there. But look what possibilities would have been overlooked if some one had not experimented with the radio. The air is filled with music, speeches and song. We can not see it and we would not know of its existence if it were not for the radio. These things have been placed there by man. But what is there that man knows nothing of and has had no part in we cannot say. So it is up to such men as Prof. Pittard to determine this for us.

It is the research work of such men as he who has made it possible for us to live the lives of ease and comfort now possible. Their contributions to our more thorough enjoyment of life; to our knowledge of how to live are not all accidental. Many a man has devoted his life to the development of his inventions without hope of reward. There are those who have been rewarded in a financial way but there are others who have departed this life unknown and unrewarded until the value of their great services to mankind were finally realized.

When it is considered that many of the little items which contribute to our comfort and to our well being in general are the result of what may, at one time, have been termed foolish experimentation we will be more careful about how we ridicule these men. It is through such as these that we have the automobile, radio, electric lights, electric refrigeration, talking pictures, aeroplanes and countless other things which we now accept as a part of our every day existence.

We may not be able to determine just what good will come of the experiments of Prof. Pittard and his colleagues but in time to come we may look back on his present experiments as the beginning of something which will contribute to our life on this sphere immeasurably.

Take Time for Reflection

In the hustle of modern life men and women do not take as much time as they should for thought. No time is given to intro-spection, which, according to Webster means looking into one's motives. We are always doing things, going places and saying things without stopping to ask ourselves why. And too often it is found that we would have taken an entirely different course if sufficient time had been given to consideration of the thing we planned to do.

Stop for a moment and ask yourself why you are affiliated with a certain religion, political or fraternal organization. You may find, if you go into the matter thoroughly that you were prompted to join this or that organization by motives that you might not be willing to admit and that if you had gone more deeply into the matter you would, perhaps have taken an entirely different course. Force of habit is not sufficient excuse for most of the things we do. When it is borne in mind that it is much easier to acquire the wrong habits of life than it is the right ones it will be readily seen that force of habit will be more than likely to cause you to take the wrong steps.

Now, as never before it is necessary that we learn to cultivate the thinking habit. Learn to think constructively. Learn to determine just why a decision is made. Life will be far more profitable if this method is followed in the every-day life.

VALUE OF CHEERFULNESS

If everyone realized the value of cheerfulness in the daily life this world would be a much better place in which to live. Cheerfulness is contagious. Even the installment collector gets better results if he assumes a cheerful attitude. The fight for existence in this life is hard enough at its best and the man or woman who tries to lighten the burdens of others with a smile is worth more than all the ministers, philosophers and writers in the world.

This is the campaign year. The chances are ten to one in favor of the candidate who has a smile for all whom he meets and spreads sunshine wherever he goes.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to our dear friends for their help rendered during the illness of our mother and wife, also for the beautiful floral offerings.

MR. LEWIS MOORE and children.

DR. HARRELL TO OCCUPY METHODIST PULPIT

Dr. Coston J. Harrell, pastor of the Monument Methodist church of Richmond, Va., will speak at the eleven o'clock hour at the Methodist church here next Sunday.

Dr. Harrell is widely known and a forceful speaker. His message Sunday will be of much interest and the public is invited to hear him.

YOUNG FARMERS TO STAGE COUNTY FAIR

Friday and Saturday, September 30 and October 1, have been set as the date of the Young Tar Heel farmers fair, according to announcement made by J. A. Glazener, leader of the movement. This is an annual affair.

Agricultural and home economics students of the Brevard high school, together with patrons of the Brevard school district will be participants in the event. Among the principal exhibits in the fair will be the pure-bred livestock and diversified farm crops, which will play an important part. There are more purebred cattle and hogs in the county than at any other time in years.

W. H. GROGAN, JR. District Manager

Lyday Funeral

Sovereign Dr. W. M. Lyday was buried Sunday at Gillespie cemetery with Woodmen funeral ceremonies. Consul Commander A. B. Galloway and Master of Ceremonies Rev. Mack Grogan handled the funeral in fine style. More than five hundred Woodmen and friends attended the funeral.

Sovereign Lyday held the office of Camp Physician for more than 27 years and will be greatly missed members of Camp No. 116. He was also a member of Grove No. 39 Woodmen Circle and was Physician for the Woodmen Circle also.

Ruby Unveiling

Sovereign J. K. Kenney, Financial Secretary Camp No. 631, Balsam, N. C., deserves much credit for the successful unveiling of monument erected to the memory of Sovereign Charles A. Raby Sunday 21st.

Sovereign Kenney acted as Master of Ceremonies. Members from Brevard, Franklin and Waynesville attended. W. H. Grogan Jr., of Brevard delivered the address.

Hendersonville Meeting

We have invitations to attend public meeting of White Pine Camp No. 213 Thursday night August 25th. When Hendersonville Woodmen and Woodmen Circle ladies send out invitations, they always have something good in store for their guests.

Will Visit Camps

It is my intention to visit every camp during September and October. I'm sure if we get lined up right we can work together and materially increase the membership of most every camp. Will be glad for camps to write me for special dates any time I can be of assistance.

Unveil That Monument

Camps having monuments that have not been unveiled should arrange to hold unveiling during September. I will be glad to assist you in arranging the details.
