WHAT DOES THIS SCHOOL YEAR MEAN TO YOU?

With the beginning of the new school term on last Monday thousands of young people with varying purposes, ideals and aspirations will take up the work of the new term where they left off last year.

It is not always that we have the opportunity of going to school. There is always the likelihood of being forced to leave for one reason or another.

You may be inclined to point to this or that individual and say, "He made good without an education, why can't I?" But bear this in mind.

Everyone at one time or another, comes to a realization of what an education really means.

Those who have the opportunity of attending school should do so and get all they possibly can out of it.

Come on boys and girls. Make every minute of this coming school year a little more productive than the minute just passed.

Folks who are still in these mountain breezes should not think about going home until the heat wave is broken.

BRAGGING ON BUNCOMBE COUNTY'S JAIL.

Prof. C. L. Curley, retired member of the big show troupes of the world, spending his vacation in Brevard, is bragging on Buncombe county.

"Why, good gracious, man," the Colonel said, "it is finer than any hotel."

Col. Curley was in Asheville over the week-end and visited the Buncombe bastille, hence his inspiration for singing the praises of that institution.

WHY DO WE HAVE FAMILY REUNIONS AND HOMECOMINGS?

One day recently a visitor in this community asked why it is that there are so many family reunions and home-comings held here in the mountains of Western North Carolina.

One evening, in early September, a weary lad was slowly plodding along a New England highway.

Asleep, with grass-covered ground as his bed, a rock for his pillow, and the canopy of Heaven as his only covering, this lad had a dream.

He awoke and found it was all a dream. But this dream had inspired him with new hope, with determination, and rising to his feet, as a man smile played about his lips said:

Men and women, regardless of station in life, long for home and a sight of the old home-place.

BAR-TENDER JOE AND THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER.

Bar-tender Joe met the Sunday School Teacher the other day, and the following monologue was recorded:

"Hello, Teacher," said Bar-tender Joe, "I am glad to see you looking so fine. You know, I will soon be helping you in your Sunday School work."

"Then, too, Mr. Sunday School Teacher, when we get the saloon back on the corner, the women and the children will be so much better off!"

"Then another thing, Mr. Sunday School Teacher, you know that the pictures and the paintings that we saloon fellows always keep on the walls of our saloons, they will inspire the men and the young men to high ideals, and not degrade them like this old prohibition law degrades them and drags them down."

"Yes, sirree, Mr. Sunday School Teacher, just in a short while now I will be in position to help you out with your Sunday School work."

Bar-tender Joe strutted off down the street, while Mr. Sunday School Man stood there and scratched his head, and wondered—wondered how such cranks as Bar-tender Joe could escape the insane asylum.

JOE NEELY HAVING THE TIME OF HIS LIFE.

No better engineer-conductor ever piloted any mode of transportation than Joe Neely, handling the bus line from Brevard to Asheville, via Hendersonville.

The highway force closed No. 28 at Horseshoe Monday morning, while the finishing touches are being given to that new link in the highway where the new bridge was placed across the French Broad river.

Some of the curves are sharp, the road is narrow and the going rather difficult.

laugh, and then talk to himself, and to his bus, and about the highway, country lanes, wooded paths, gulleys, and so on.

It is a beautiful drive, and one sees some sections of the country that the average citizen does not know is laying so near the main highway.

Buying school books is the order of the day and the horror of the hour.

People I Meet and the Lessons I Learn by Harold Brennon

I have come to like tramps and hoboes. I never pass up the opportunity of talking to one when I get the opportunity.

One of the principal lessons we can learn from them is that we should profit by our mistakes.

A young man, shabbily dressed and none too clean, stopped me the other night and asked if I supposed the police department would provide him with a place to sleep.

During the course of his conversation while drinking the coffee and eating a sandwich I had bought for him, it developed that he had at one time had a good job and was doing well.

Whether his story is a true one or not I do not know.

"I don't know whether the Republicans have got anything to do with it or not, but I do know that more men are being put back to work every day and things look a lot brighter than they did thirty days ago."

What Other EDITORS SAY

"...I don't know whether the Republicans have got anything to do with it or not, but I do know that more men are being put back to work every day and things look a lot brighter than they did thirty days ago."

Both parties are reported by the Daily News' Washington bureau to be worried over the market's rise.

The fact cannot be too strongly impressed on local cotton mill officials that a resumption of night running and cut-throat competition will put the business back in the dumps again.

The world must be financially conservative when Russia proposes to sell bonds instead of wheat in the world market.

The world may owe a man a living, but this debt, like all others, is difficult to collect.

Corn grown after lespedeza turned under has not fired nor suffered severely from the prolonged drought.

The Practical Religion.

Little applications of Religion to the Daily Life.

"Thou believest there is one God: thou doest well. The devils also believe and tremble."

What a wealth of meaning there is in that statement.

We believe there is one God. We are proud of that belief.

This verse is found in James 2:19. This chapter of the Bible is devoted to a discussion of faith and works.

Christianity is not a cloak to be worn on the Sabbath and discarded during the week.

The lives we live must not be lived for self alone.

Am I My Brothers Keeper

When you see some one doing something you know to be wrong are you inclined to feel that it is his business and that you should not interfere with him?

On first thought this would seem to be the only thing to do.

The whole trouble is not in doubting or accepting the fact that you are your brother's keeper.

Christ gave the admonition that we should go out into the world and preach the Gospel to every nation and kindred and tongue.

We are our brothers' keeper. We will be held accountable to God for him to the extent that we have to wield the proper influence over him.

A good income from his grape vineyard from which the fruit is sold in small baskets is reported by Fred Pyrowal.

Corn sold to hogs by J. G. Carpenter of Catawba County was paid for at the rate of $1.04 a bushel.

The Upward Trend.

Little News items that offer conclusive proof that business is on the upgrade.

Industrial Situation Improving

Merchants here also seem to be in an optimistic frame of mind and are placing orders in anticipation of a brisk business this fall.

Chicago, Ill.—With eighteen railroads reporting increased freight business, leaders of the rail industry predicted car loading reports for the last week would show an increase of 10,000 cars.

Oregon City, Oregon—200 employees of the Oregon City Woolen Mills, idle since the plant was shut down early this year, returned to their jobs Thursday.

According to a report of the auditor, the Western Pacific Railroad, during the month of July, showed an operating profit of $28,719.

Cone Mills on Five-Day Basis

Officials of the company are optimistic as to the future.

Hosiery Mill Employs 2,000

The other plants of the company will soon be operating on full time, according to a statement made by E. L. Rieve.

Big Construction Project Under Way

The project is furnishing work directly to over 300 and indirectly to 100.

TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS ANSWERED AT STATE COL.

Question—With my feed crops ruined by the dry weather what can I plant that will give me feed next spring?

Answer—Both a hay and grain crop should be planted this fall.

Question—I have been trying to improve my land by planting cowpeas.

Question—How much acreage planted to temporary pasture should I allow for each cow in my herd?

Question—The acreage allowed per cow depends to a great extent upon the productivity of the soil.

Allegheny farmers recently sold 41 head of steers at an average price of six cents a pound.
