

NATIONAL FARMERS MEETING TO BE HELD IN NORTH CAROLINA

conference here with the local committees, were highly laudatory in their praise of the progress the Grange is making in North Carolina. More than two hundred Granges have been established in the past year in North Carolina, which is a national record in that no State in the long history of the Grange has formed so many Granges in that length of time. At this time of progress, North Carolina will be one of the leading Grange States in the Union, thus helping to return the power and the prestige of the Grange to the South where it was first founded upon the close of the War between the States.

Among those who will take part in the Grange program next month are: Dr. Clarence Poe, Editor, Progressive Farmer; Hon. O. Max Gardner, Governor of North Carolina; James G. Stone of the Federal Farm Board; G. C. Moser, President, American Cotton Co-operative Association; Roy O. Bergengren, National Credit Extension Bureau; a representative of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association; Cully Cobb, Associate Editor, the Progressive Farmer; Dr. Frank P. Graham, President of the University of North Carolina; The Director of the Parcel Post System; Dr. E. C. Brooks, President N. C. State University.

The National Broadcasting Company will make a special nation wide hook up for the Grange session at 12:30, Saturday, November 19.

Many other prominent speakers have been invited but definite acceptance have not been received. Among these are Rear Admiral Byrd; Edward A. O'Neil, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and John Simpson, President of the Farmers' Union.

The tentative program, in full, is as follows:

WHY DO MEN SHAKE HANDS AS GREETING

When a man offers his right hand to an acquaintance he is unconsciously imitating the cavalier of the middle age, who held out an unarmed hand as token that his sword was sheathed and that he was friend and not enemy; and when he removes his glove to shake a lady's hand he is again the knight of old, who would never offer a lady a gauntleted hand.

A knight, when he entered a castle hall, always doffed his helmet, the most vital part of his armor, as evidence to his host that he came in peace, just as the man of today would never dream of entering a drawing room with his hat on; and just as the medieval baron would raise his hand to his helmet, as an indication that he was ready to unhelm out of politeness, his descendant of today touches or raises his hat.

At our meals we are similarly linked with the long-gone past the knife we use is the successor of the dagger or hunting knife with which our ancestors of long centuries ago cut up their food; our finger bowls had their origin in the days when fingers were used to convey food to the mouth; we owe the fork to the enormous ruffs which at last made it difficult to reach the mouth with the fingers; and the paper frills which adorn outlets, hams, and so on, were originally used to obviate soiling the fingers by handling the joints or portions.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. R. L. HOGSED

By MRS. T. P. GALLOWAY
I have waited hoping that a more gifted pen than mine would pay a tribute to the beautiful life and Christian character of this dear friend of mine. But so far I have only seen a short account of her death and burial.

Words cannot express the bitter sense of pain and loss that I feel personally at her passing. But her death was not only a loss to her family and friends. But to her church and the community at large, for she was friend alike to the high and the low and had the same cheerful smile and word of greeting for the humblest man or woman with whom she came in contact that she had for those in the higher stations of life. The poor and needy were never turned away from her door empty handed, but were fed and clothed and sent on their way with new courage. She was a great Christian worker, and seemed always happiest when she was engaged in the work of the church. She was president of the W. M. U. from its organization and taught for years, a class of young ladies in the Sunday school. Always present when it was at all possible for her to be.

We still seem to feel her presence in the church she loved so well. Her home and her church shall know her no more. But we shall treasure always the happy hours spent with her and the privilege of having known her and the wonder of having loved her, will cast its radiance down through the years for the fine qualities and the lofty ideals which she had. The love and devotion that she gave to the cause of Christ are things that will not die but live on and on. And may we build on the foundation that she has helped to lay, a finer and richer Christian fellowship. We know that death is the golden key that unlocks the gates of eternity and "that in our Fathers House are many mansions" and we believe she is there with Him.

The period of life is brief;
Tis the red of the red rose leaf
Tis the flight of the bird on high,
Tis the gold of the sunset sky,
Yet one may so fill that space
With such infinite grace
That the rose will be red all the time,
And the gold through the ages shine,
And the bird fly swift and straight
To the portals of God's own gate.

Raleigh, Oct. 5.—Preparations are being made this year for the largest crowds in history at the North Carolina State Fair, in Raleigh October 10-15. A group of boosters recently traveled 600 miles through Eastern North Carolina and contacted more than 25,000 people, giving each an invitation to the exposition, which will be the fifth annual event under State control.

MODERATE WINTER PROMISED COUNTRY

(Mooresville Enterprise)

The chief of the agricultural section of the United States Weather Bureau is out with a statement that ought to cause a lot of joy for those who dread the winter months. He says that as a result of the upward swing of the thermometer since 1926, and other observations, the country is in all probability to have a mild winter.

He also says that records show the weather moves in currents of a few cold years. In the past, a change from one cycle to another has come gradually and while not forecasting positively a mild winter, he says indications point that way and that there is no evidence yet that a change to abnormal temperatures has begun. The present upward trend in temperature really began after the hard winter of 1918, he asserts. Since then abnormal weather has been dominant, with the trend particularly noticeable since the winter of 1926.

Every month this year except March has brought temperatures ranging above the 50-year mean average. Only New England, southern California and a small area on the north Pacific coast have had sub-normal weather during the past summer. This, says the weather chief, is taken by weather experts as another reason for believing that a mild winter is ahead of us. All of which is certain to be received as cheering news by those who, along about this time of year, begin to look toward winter's arrival with more or less dread.

WINTER FARMS AND GARDENS

(Mecklenburg Times)

Most every week we have called to the attention of our readers the necessity for a fall and winter garden. county who have something in their And there are many farmers in this garden all during the winter. There should be more winter farming in this county. Many of the grain crops will grow in this county and have as much value as the summer crops. And most of these winter crops will grow without cultivation. We need more oats, wheat, rye and barley.

George L. Pate of Robeson County is grazing 40 breeding cows, 39 calves, 56 yearlings and three herd bulls of the Hereford breed on 200 acres of lespedeza, carpet grass, dallis grass and bermuda pasture.

When the Leaves Begin to Fall.

Then the Fires begin to rage, and ere one knows it, all that one has worked for and saved up in a lifetime is reduced to ashes, and Despair, bitter, dark despair comes to that one.

"Fully Protected by Insurance"

Is the only SAFE way, and, we may add, the only SENSIBLE way to meet a situation. Falling leaves in the Autumn provide the tinder for the sparks that go up through chimneys unused for months, hence the greater liability of fire risk during these first weeks and months of the changing seasons.

Are You Properly Insured?

If not, call us. It may be the best you ever did in your life. It will show you the kind of insurance you need, whether it be Fire Insurance, Accident Insurance, Liability Insurance, it may be. We have it, and want to see you in the Insurance Field.
