HOW ARE THE PEOPLE TO PAY BONDED INDEBTEDNESS?

Just what is to be done in the matter of this county's public indebtedness is a problem that staggers the best minds of the county.

Many of us have already lost our homes through sale under mortgage or sale for taxes.

There is a task here confronting us that calls for the very best thought and most patriotic spirit of which the citizenship is capable of giving.

temperance on the altar of greed?

The need is not so much for increased revenue as for more efficient legislation. The man who has an income does not try to increase that income to meet the needs of an inefficiently managed home.

The people have been taxed in every conceivable manner and there is always the cry, "We must have more revenue."

HANGING OUT ON MAIN STREET

By A. Lounger

Henry Henderson says those hotel bell hops in Raleigh (He's just back from the State Fair) are something awful. When he was retirin' Saturday night he told the boy to set the alarm for two and the boy says, "For you and who else, Sir?"

Our old friend, Mark Taylor Orr has turned out to be quite a poet. Here's one of his latest. Ain't it expressive? Must have been writin' about an old flame. We don't know who he's writin' about. (Somebody says "O, yeah!") but it's good, ain't it? Read it.

TO MOLLIE BY MARK TAYLOR ORR

Oh Mollie of my yesterdays With beauty of the dawn; Thou whose beauty claimed my heart And strangely led me on.

I can see you now, my dear As once you stood by me, A dainty creature on the hill With all the world beneath.

We planned to face the world, my dear Its plains and woes to share But now you've gone away, my own And left me lonely here.

I tried to hold your love always But laughing gay, midst song, You quickly fled across my life And much too soon were gone.

Without a word, a nod or smile You tripped away, Divine, Placing in another's arms A love you said was mine.

A shattered soul, a broken heart Are all you left for me, A world of desolation, dear My all has gone with thee.

Little Helen Galloway was crying! Mrs. Orr tried to soothe her by saying "I wouldn't cry like that if I were you."

Voices of telephone operators is usually "just voices" so when we heard one that was distinctive we investigated and found it was Reba Kitchens.

Census taker in Brevard's a cinch—all you have to do is sound the fire siren and count 'em as they rush out into Main street.

Englishman: Scotchman, what nationality had you rather be? Scotchman: To be polite said, English.

Both asked Irish Pat which he had rather be and he replied, Faith, I would be ashamed of myself if I were English or Scotch.

Fifty gambling devices were closed at the State Fair Friday for robbing the public. According to this there are lots of merchants in cities who sure have got the small town people biting their hooks and they bite hook, "line" and all—They should be closed for gambling and influencing the small-town people, making them pay double the price that they pay in their own town.

As it has and was said in the olden days, "There is a Sucker Born every minute," and so continues the people, being sucked out of their riches by the city merchant.

Do charity work at home before going abroad, giving your money for products that are of far less value than you can get at home.

All persons who have friends and relatives buried at Mt. Moriah Baptist Church cemetery Calvert, N. C. are requested to meet Saturday Oct. 22, 1932 at 8 o'clock A. M. to clean out the grave yard. Don't forget to bring tools.

FORCED LANDINGS

By R. J. Poole

TODAYS NUISANCE—To go to the State Fair and not have to pay... Having Carlton Parker to issue us passes to the football game.... Riding passenger trains free.... Movie owners giving us free passes to shows.... Relatives doing everything in their power to give us a good time, giving us plenty to eat and places to sleep, galore—It pays to have friends like these people and if this is not coping with depression I would like to see someone do so.

George Simpson says if people would bestow one-half of their fortune in learning how to spend the other half, it would be money extremely well laid out.

The depression sure must be when you see Mary O. Wilkins, Willie Kate Waters and many more wearing "Empress Eugenia" hats—the cost of hat material is not being cut at all but the size is cut, therefore bringing prices down to cope with depression.

Heard and seen Mrs. Wilkins wasting time, energy and swell music trying to make Oper. Singers out of a few boneheads who strike a tune occasionally and get so thrilled that they have to stop to listen to it—Why they would do good to carry a tune in a bucket, then probably would have to seal the bucket.

Charlie McCrary says if you don't know what a dollar is worth, try to borrow one.

Recently Ed Wike asked Doc Long why he did not buy those tooth brushes that the salesman sold Macfie Drug Store so he could have such an advertisement in his window to create a disturbance over. Doc said he did not have to buy a hundred dollars worth of tooth brushes to fool the public because he had a clock in his window that fooled them enough, stating that it did not keep correct time.

Believe it or not—J. S. Bromfield has never seen a football or basket ball game, shot Pool, Bowled or even smoked cigarettes.

After topping down to Raleigh over the week-end and seeing practically all the Textile mills in operation we are forced to say that "old man depression" has been rocked up on the hill and "old man prosperity" elected to take his position.

While journeying back from down in the lower belt Sunday I happened to be glancing over one of the papers and to my surprise I happened to see Ruth Cantrells picture perched in the right-hand corner of the society page.

TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS ANSWERED AT COLLEGE

Q: How can I prevent dahlias from wilting soon after they are cut?

A: The best way is to cut them early in the morning while they are still wet with dew and sink the stems immediately in a vase or bucket of cold water. Then place them in a cool cellar for one or two hours.

Q: Is it advisable to feed yellow corn in the scratch feed in preference to white corn?

A: Yes. Yellow corn is much more valuable for scratch feed than white corn. It not only contains Vitamin A which is so necessary for poultry growth but it also contains a pigment called xanthophyll which produces a rich, yellow color in the yolk of the egg.
