Bows For The Belles

The bow once upon a time, was reserved as a slightly sentimental touch of ornamentation for lingerie and afternoon dresses. But not so now. It's winning factor of many a sports outfit. A house famous for its hand knitted costumes makes little crocheted and knitted bows in the brightest wools there are, attaches them to metal clips and you snap them on to the current sweater or dress for town or country wear. The milliners are almost incapable of making a hat without some sort of knitted affair. It may take one form or another but when the hat's finished it's pretty sure to have two pert tab ends veering off at a flip angle. Many of the new collars and the ubiquitous white capelets which have swept over young American's shoulders tie in place with neat bows, thereby simplifying taking them off for laundering. Bows

OAKLAND NEWS

Thanksgiving day was celebrated here extensively this year. Some of the young folks got tired of waiting for a real wedding to take place and staged a mock wedding Thanksgiving evening, with Miss Lula Reid and Miss Evon Sanders as brides and L. C. Sanders and Clifford Reid as the bridesgrooms. Clarence Norton performed the ceremonies. Those present claimed to have gotten quite a lot of fun out of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander gave a turkey dinner Thanksgiving day in honor of their two sons, Archie, of Wyoming and Otto, of Brevard, and had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Dan Reid and Miss Mae Cash.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Noland, of Asheville, spent Thanksgiving with their mother, Mrs. S. E. Alexander.

Miss Myrtle McCall and Miss Evon Sanders were joint hostesses at a social given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Sanders Thanksgiving night. Refreshments were served during the evening to about eighteen guests.

T. B. Reid was a Brevard visitor last week.

Wade Nicholson spent Friday night with Ford Reid and family at their home at Sapphire.

Leo Reid, Kile Galloway, Junior Hall and Cecil Sanders were all on the sick list last week but all are better, we are glad to report.

Miss Verona Fisher has returned home after a week's visit with her grandmother, Mrs. Fisher at Rosman. She is able to be out on her crutches.

Gus Galloway, of Glenville visited his little son, Kile, last week.

E. A. Reid attended the Father-Son banquet with his son, Leo, at Rosman High school last week.

Mrs. Wade Nicholson spent Friday evening with Mrs. Clarence Norton.

Miss Alberta Burgess called on Mrs. W. F. McCall Sunday afternoon.

Archie Alexander, who has been spending the past two weeks with his parents here, left Monday for his home in Wyoming.

Mrs. Herbert Hall is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Sanders.

Mrs. Lee Norton was honored with a surprise birthday dinner last week prepared by her daughters, Mrs. I. S. Sanders, Mrs. W. F. McCall, Mrs. Clarence Norton and granddaughter, Miss Evon Sanders and served at the home of Mrs. I. S. Sanders. The occasion was a great surprise and will be remembered and appreciated by the honoree for many moons.

If we ever have to express our belief in one thief being a greater thief than other thieves we would say the one or ones that took the lamps from Lake Toxaway Baptist church were the meanest thieves in the whole world. We had just recently bought a splendid lamp costing twelve dollars and about two years ago bought one just as good and both of these were stolen from the church last week.

W. F. McCall lost a fine fat hog Monday night with Cholera.

Clarence Norton made business trip to Brevard Tuesday.

There is lots of sickness among the children of this section now. So much that Lake Toxaway school closed on Monday for a week and perhaps for a longer time. Several families, we are told, were quarantined for Diphtheria at Lake Toxaway. Only one death so far as we have learned, that of Mr. and Mrs. Cole Lee's baby. Our sympathy goes out to them in their bereavement.

are incrusts in the bodices and skirts of some dresses. Chanel in her latest collection shows more than one evening frock with twists of the material worked as an integral part of the dress. There are tricky little fur bows made to put on bouclair slippers and mules.

Chanel Diamonds

The versatility of these Parisian designers! They are so inventive there seems to be no end of the things they turn their hands to. Now Mademoiselle Chanel is having an exhibition of diamonds. All Paris is agog to find that she has elected to show stones with the old cuttings. There are no baguettes, none of the modern square cuttings. Instead she has gone in for old rose type of faceting. Wax mannequins are used for the display and she emphasizes the ensemble idea, the jewels designed for special costumes. They are even used to circle some of her new hats. The settings are extremely simple. She stresses stars, sunbursts, fringes and the popular bows.

Hats

There's a new feeling to the latest hats. Manipulation of the body employed is of foremost importance, whether it be an intricately woven jersey or a fine toyo panama. There are deep creases across the crown or folds, casual in effect, elaborate in construction. This means that the hat is more important looking than it has been of late, a little heavier. The poke brim is very becoming when it is mounted on a decidedly shallow crown. It frames the face nicely. There are some very wide brims shown for resort wear which frequently have deep ripples in them. The whole movement looks like a reaction against the strictly tailored, rather severe sailor of last spring. To be sure there are some sailors in the present collection, but for the most part they desert the old stiff line. One that I saw swings up briskly in the back, dipping in the front to shade the eyes. There is less trimming at the moment than we have accustomed ourselves to, the intricacy of draping being the chief feature of the newest bonnets.

CANTRELL-McCRARY

Thanksgiving Day in Brevard was made more enjoyable because of the marriage on that day of Miss Ruth Cantrell to Mr. Charles McCrary, two of Brevard's most popular young people. The home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Cantrell, was the scene of the happy event, and many relatives and friends of the contracting parties were in attendance. Rev. Paul Hartsell, pastor of the Brevard Baptist church, officiated.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Leon English, Jr., presiding at the piano, played "Cauzone Amorosa," "I love You Truly," and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life, interspersed with two solos by Mrs. Carl McCrary, sister-in-law of the bride, singing, "Because," and "Oh, Promise Me." During the ceremony Mrs. English played softly, Nevins' "Buona Notte."

The reception room where the vows were spoken was effectively decorated in autumn leaves and evergreens, carrying out the unusual color scheme of red and gold. The vows were spoken before an improvised altar backed with mirrors intertwined with autumn leaves and evergreens. The altar was flanked with large drooping ferns and brass candelabra holding tall lighted red candles. The piano and mantles held brass candlesticks bearing red tapers casting their soft glow over the darkened room.

At the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. English, the bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Preceding the bride was Miss Elizabeth Mills, maid of honor, who approached the altar alone, followed by the groom and his best man, Mr. Milton Sellers.

The bride was attired in a Burgundy colored coat suit with white velvet blouse and a close fitting feather hat in Burgundy color with accessories to match. She wore a corsage of white gardenias caught with a velvet bow. As something old, she wore a gold brooch which has been in her mother's family for more than 150 years.

Miss Mills was dressed in Burgundy colored crepe, with close fitting hat of same shade. She carried an arm bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums. The bride's mother, Mrs. J. O. Cantrell, wore a crepe and velvet gown in brown, and the groom's mother, Mrs. J. A. McCrary, was dressed in black and ecru crepe, both wearing shoulder bouquets of red roses.

Following the ceremony, a Thanksgiving luncheon was served buffet style. The dining table further emphasized the prevailing color note with its brass candlesticks and red candles, and a three-tier bride's cake centering the ecru lace covered table. Mrs. D. L. English and Mrs. Iodema Robertson poured coffee, seated at either end of the table. Assisting in serving were Miss Margaret Barnette and Miss June Grogan and little Misses Mary Jane Walker and Janie Wilson, cousin of the bride. Mrs. H. L. Wilson, aunt of the bride, received the guests at the door as they arrived.

Immediately following the luncheon, the bride and groom left on a short honeymoon motor trip into the Great Smoky mountain section, after which they returned to Brevard to make their home.

Mr. McCrary is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCrary, and is also a Brevard High school graduate. He is connected in business with his brother, Carl McCrary, in the McCrary Tire and Battery company.
