BREVARD HIGH NEWS

One of the most entertaining events of the year was the program given Tuesday morning in assembly by the Junior girls. The program was carried out successfully in the scheme of a big broadcast.

Our high school talent imitated the favorite radio stars. Mabel McNeely playing the role of the renowned announcer of the air, Jimmy Walington. First were introduced the most famous Boswell Sisters singing "Fif As A Fiddle," and from the expression carried out in the song we were inclined to believe that they were as the song stated. The Boswell Sisters were Zebbie Grooms, Christine Young, and Sue Jennings. Then came Christine Younge as Connie singing "please." And it didn't take any pleases to get us to listen. Tony's soft, mellow voice followed bringing a little advice and a poem called "Success" this part was carried out by Frances Jenkins. Next came Ruth Etting singing "You've got me in the Palm of Your Hand." And when she had finished we were all admitting that she had us in the palm of her hand.

Then Alice Joyce singing "How Deep is the Ocean and how High is the Sky." When she had finished we were in doubt as to whether it was Velma Sharp or Alice Joyce. And next came no other than Bing Crosby, singing "We Just Couldn't Say Goodbye." And then Grace Duckworth then made us realize how hard it must be to say goodbye.

Then one of the most famous and favorite of all the stars, Lowell Thomas, brought by special request the School News. And when Margaret Fullbright had finished if Lowell Thomas had been here he would have received some good ideas for a world hook-up.

And last but not least we heard the "Songbird of the South" really wonder if Helen Erwin borrowed star of the program be another Kate Smith. The popular of her selections was "Mother's Eyes."

Combining the stars together sang to Mickey McIntosh "American Girl." If you ever tune in on Station B.H.S., McNeely introducing our again.
