Work Is Play for Rhode Island Senators Refuged in Massachusetts

Wide World Photos
During their exile at Rutland, Mass., the twenty-one Republican senators of the Rhode Island Upper House are devoting most of their time to perfecting their physical condition as shown in the illustration above. Senators Drew, Weaver and McMechan are hard at work dressing up the lawn of the Bartlett Hotel where they are living at Rutland.

Largest Waves.

From a series of observations made of waves of the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans by a French naval officer, it was found that the largest waves occurred in the Indian ocean, where thirty different waves averaged 29 feet, the largest being 37 feet.

Looking Through the Fence

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

IT WAS an interesting crowd at the game, but those who filled the bleachers to the topmost row and followed the cheer leader in wild shouts were not more interesting than were those outside the field trying to see the game without paying the customary tribute to the gatekeeper.

There were delivery boys perched on top of their wagons, middle-aged men on stepladders, out-of-town sight-seers standing on their cars, and scores of the local riffraff swarming in the trees or looking through the fence in an endeavor to see the game without paying for it. Occasionally, more's the pity, one could detect a stray student, impecunious, or frugal, or imprudent, whose face lighted up as Jack caught a difficult foul, and once I caught sight of a high-browed instructor, stoop-shouldered from the heavy books he was carrying, craning his neck as he paused to satisfy his curiosity as to why Phil Armour was jumping into the air and waving his arms so frantically.

It was a popular sport, this trying to get something for nothing, but it has its dangers. A young chap who was balancing himself on the top of a motorcycle, unable to restrain his enthusiasm when the "ump" pronounced "Safe" safe on second, lost his equilibrium and in falling pulled the stepladder from under one of the middle-aged gentlemen and they both fell in the dirt.

It has its dangers, I say, it does not always win one's respect, whether it be the man looking through the fence at a ball game or the student getting a passing grade by copying from the neighbor's paper.

There are various ways of looking through the fence. The man who is always broke when it is his turn to pay, the fellow who borrows and forgets to return the amount, the man who accepts an office or an honor without assuming the accompanying responsibilities, the employee who loafs on his job, are all watching the game through the fence.

"It is easy for the man to talk," you say, "who has the money to get into the game; but how about the fellow who is broke?" An old neighbor of mine never saw a baseball game nor held office, yet he lived an honorable happy life and died respected. One can walk to Savoy or stay at home and read O. Henry or work in the garden. It is more honorable not to see any of these games of life at all than to see them through the fence.

Modern Blouse Features Fanciful Collar Effects

The modern blouse specializes in novelty collar effects. Very unique is the collar and rever combination designed in this blouse. The yoke and long sleeves are also distinguishing characteristics of the newer blouse modes. The pin-plait plaided panels inset at each side of the front give a dressy aspect to this model of flat crepe, which is developed in that highly favored color, powder blue. The blouse worn with side plaited skirt is a favored ensemble this season.

No More Fooling

Nowhere did Abraham Lincoln show his shrewdness of judgment better than in that famous utterance which ended, "You can't fool all the people all the time."

In the past, there were a few misguided advertisers who thought they could sell their wares better by misrepresentation. But those advertisers have long since gone out of business or mended their ways. Hard experience taught that Lincoln was right. Untruthful advertising doesn't pay.

Other advertisers proved that the only way to advertise successfully, make regular customers and build up public good-will was to tell the absolute truth about their goods.

So, you can be sure that every consistently advertised product is good. The advertising test has proved it. The very fact that it is advertised is your best warranty of satisfaction and true quality.

The concern that tells you frankly what it is doing is a good concern with which to do business. That is why it pays to read the advertisements, to patronize advertisers, and to buy advertised merchandise.
