SMOTHERING SPELLS

Lady Says She Suffered from a Burning Sensation, Headache, Dizziness, Until She Took Black-Draught.

Signal, Miss.—"For a year or longer I had indigestion, and had it bad," says Mrs. E. S. Holman, of this place. "Everything I ate hurt me. I would have burning in my stomach and smothering spells, and after meals feel right dizzy. My head would begin to ache, and I would want to lie down, but felt I couldn't for I would smother. "Unless one has had such trouble, they don't know what it is. I was talking to a neighbor one day and told her how I had been affected. She told me it was indigestion and to try Black-Draught, which I did. I took a few large doses and then a pinch after meals, and for fully four months now I haven't had indigestion. I eat whatever I please and when I please, but keep up the Black-Draught—just an occasional dose."

When you have a feeling of discomfort after meals, try the suggestion above. Thousands of people have found that Black-Draught promotes relief in indigestion by stimulating the liver and stomach to perform their normal functions.

In Memory of Mrs. Nina Garland and Little Tom

The death angel had been hovering over Nina and little Tom for several months, and crept into the house and carried them away. They were laid to rest together June 30th, at Lower Tesenta cemetery. She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, two children, two brothers, one sister and her mother, and many dear friends.

Nina was so kind, and always had a bright smile. She would always smile to everybody until about two weeks before she died, when she couldn't move her head. She said all the time she was going to get better until about three weeks before she went away. She was so cheerful, kind and good that everybody loved her.

We are all in deep sympathy for the father and two little children, but our loss is her eternal gain.

A FRIEND.

HOW MUCH FEED FOR BEEF STOCK

Extension Expert Gives the Requirements Needed to Feed Beef Cattle—Plenty of Pasture Necessary.

Raleigh, N. C., July 12.—One of the first things to consider in planning to grow beef cattle is to have pasturage so that the animals may be kept on pasture from six to eight months each year. "If this is not done," says R. S. Curtis, Chief of the Animal Industry Division of the North Carolina Experiment Station, "there is no reason for trying to profit by raising beef cattle."

Mr. Curtis gives the following requirements needed to feed beef cattle for one year:

Stock cattle wintered for the average period of four and one-half months, will require 300 pounds of ear corn and 1,250 pounds of corn stover or hay, or 700 pounds of corn silage and 2,000 pounds of the stover or hay.

For maintaining breeding animals in good average condition this ration should be increased from 25 to 50 percent per animal depending on the breed and size of the animal being fed.

For fattening cattle for the market, it will require 1200 pounds of cottonseed meal and 2½ tons of corn silage as one ration or 1200 pounds of cotton seed meal, 1½ tons of corn silage and 1500 pounds of good hay. If corn is raised on the farm in sufficient quantities, the grain part of both rations may be made one-half of cottonseed meal and one-half of corn.

Mr. Curtis states that sheep, like beef cattle, should spend from six to eight months on pasture. During the four months' wintering period the requirements per sheep per day are two pounds of legume hay and from one-half to one pound of concentrates, one-fourth of which may be cottonseed meal. Thus the total requirements will be one-eighth of a ton of hay and from 60 to 120 pounds of grain for each sheep. The larger breeds will require the heavier feeding of grain.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our kind neighbors for the help that they gave us during the sickness and death of our Uncle Marion Ammons. He had lived a member of our family for fourteen years, and his going touched our hearts deeply. The genuine sympathy and practical helpfulness of our neighbors during this period of sorrow will always be remembered.
