John A. Parris Home For Brief Rest From Europe

He came back to North Carolina to Winston-Salem, where he held a position on the Winston-Salem Journal-Sentinel as a roving reporter. He was given assignments all over the state. One of the most important was the time he accompanied President Roosevelt from Washington to Manteo to see a performance of "The Lost Colony."

In April, 1939, he returned to the United Press as night manager of the Bureau at Memphis, Tenn. In December of that same year he was sent to New York to the cable desk of the United Press. Here he rewrote stories from cables that came to the office from all parts of the world.

Then in 1941 the big break in his life came when he was assigned to the London Bureau of the United Press. At first he worked on the desk that handled cables to New York regarding American news. Later he was commissioned to follow the developments in the underground governments of the Allied countries in Europe and he became a United Press diplomatic correspondent. During the two years and four months he has covered the European governments he has been considered by editors as an authority on underground Europe.

It was a revelation to learn what is taking place among the Allied nations in Europe from Mr. Parris. He said that the recent Allied victories are having a great effect on the underground governments. Now that they are losing faith in Hitler's victory their morale is better. They are beginning to feel that Hitler will definitely lose. He also stated that the underground European groups are better prepared to defend themselves than Americans realize. He feels that when the second front is opened the Allied Nations will meet with unexpected strength. In England he has talked to hundreds of Europeans who are pouring into London.

In spite of his urgent assignments with the United Press he has found time to collaborate with others in writing, "Springboard to Berlin," one of the best books, according to the critics, that has been written about America's part in World War II. A recent review in the New York Times stated that it "was one of the finest pieces of battle reporting ever written." The Philadelphia Inquirer labeled it as "the best of all the books about America's active participation in World War II."

It is not surprising that the book has found such high favor, for with Mr. Parris' background in the field of foreign situations coupled with the fact that he was one of only five United Press correspondents selected from the London Bureau to cover the news of North Africa, are proof that he had much to tell in his book. He was the first American correspondent to develop news of the Allied governments in England.

He has spent sometime in Yugoslavia and has written many feature stories of the Balkans. He is a personal friend of King Peter, and had the inside story of his romance.

Twenty hours after Mr. Parris left England he was in America. When asked about his reactions to the America he found after his absence he replied:

"I am amazed at the attitude of the American people, at least those I contacted in New York and Washington. They do not seem to realize there is a war on. Wherever you go into a restaurant there are between 40 and 50 varieties of food. It is a paradise from that standpoint. In England we have the necessities, enough to eat. You see I do not look hungry, but food conditions in Europe are bad. In Greece the people are dying at the rate of 500 a day. The Greeks have lost one-ninth of the population of 10,000,000 from starvation. While in the Spanish war, the loss was 1,000,000 out of the 20,000,000 population of Spain, you see the ratio in Greece from starvation is higher," he said.

"This war has not touched America as it has the other Allied Nations. A slight wave of optimism seems to be over the country that the war is over. Our land has not been bombed and it is hard to realize war unless you hear the guns and feel their danger. In defense of the people who do live in the cosmopolitan centers like New York, this is natural, and it is hard to get a true picture of things. I believe it is easier to get the real meaning of it all in towns like Sylva and Waynesville and in the middle West. The people are not so confused by noise and they read the papers and think things sparker was. He approached, grabbed his hand weakly, and said: "Remember me? I'm the man who spotted that U-Boat just before we landed in France in 1918."

There stood the man who had been scared almost to death. He was then a patient at Otten. The government had had the man in numerous hospitals in an effort to help him regain his health, which he had lost when he spotted the periscope beside the hull of his ship.

Food For Freedom To Be Discussed

Although American farmers are setting a new food production record this year, there is still not enough food to satisfy all the demands," said Dean I. O. Schaub, director of Agricultural Extension work at State College, "and since America's food supply represents perhaps the greatest potential weapon in our fight against the Axis we must produce more."

In outlining the objectives to be accomplished in the 1944 "Food Fights For Freedom" program which will be launched in every county in the State between November 15-19, Director Schaub points out that it is up to our people to cooperate in every way possible in the production of more of the right kind of food; to conserve this food, and avoid waste.

"The demand for food has increased from both civilians and military authorities. Civilians are doing more work and have more money than they have had in the past. We are taking new territory from the enemy every day. This territory has been stripped of every vestige of food and the natives are starving. We must feed them," until they can again produce their own, Dean Schaub said.

Food—American food—can be the deadliest weapon of all. Plans for producing the right kind of food will be discussed at a meeting held on November 19 at 1:30 p. m., when those in charge of the program in this section will draw up the county plans.

Since the course and length of the war may depend on how successfully we produce this food, how willingly and widely we share it, how carefully we save it, how wisely we use it, every person able to produce a single item of food should cooperate fully in this program, Director Schaub concluded.

Sergeant W. R. Enloe Home On Furlough

Sergeant W. R. Enloe, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Enloe, who is stationed at Camp Barkley, Tex., is spending a furlough here with his parents. He was inducted at Fort Bragg and from there was transferred to the Aberdeen Proving grounds, Md. From the latter out," he continued. "Our boys are doing a magnificent job. Their morale is high and when they make mistakes, they rectify them fast. It has been my good fortune and pleasure to meet some of the boys from Sylva. I have seen Lt. Malcolm Brown, pilot of a flying fortress who has many missions over Germany to his credit. The Europeans call the air force 'The Big League.' It is the toughest defense in the world and the Germans maintain anti-aircraft protection constantly," he explained.

"I have met Private Andrew Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson of Sylva, Major Jack Warren, another Sylva boy, Sergeant Earl Ezell, one time linotype operator on the Sylva paper and the Waynesville Mountaineer, Private Joe Higdon and Private Wade Messer, also of Jackson county," he said.

"The American people are the best informed of any nation in the world. We have the best newspapers with the best men in any field," he said in comparing the press of foreign countries with the United States.

When asked how the people of England and Europe felt about America he rather hesitated to express his views, but regarding Italy, he was very frank as to their welcome of Americans in taking over things. He said they were tired of Mussolini and his ruling. He told the story, in illustration of how they felt, of the truck load of Italian prisoners, who were passing American troops. The Americans were laughing about something and the Italians thought it was at them so one spoke up in perfect English and said:

"We are going to America and you are going to Italy, the laugh is on you."

It was a temptation to stay longer and ask Mr. Parris question after question that he knew would have to be off the record, but he is to be home such a short time, and neighbors were coming in and the phone was constantly ringing to welcome him back so, we brought the interview to a close with his plans after leaving Sylva.

He returns to New York, where he will give a radio program, "Date Lin Europe" on Nov. 26, and then back to London to work with the United Press.

Glenville Powerhouse Club Holds Meeting

The Glenville Powerhouse Home Demonstration Club met Thursday evening, Nov. 4, with Mrs. Edna Simpson.

An interesting demonstration lesson was led by Miss Margaret Martin our Home Demonstration agent. "Repair it and Wear it," was the topic demonstrated.

After the demonstration Mrs. Simpson served delightful refreshments.

The next month's club meeting will be omitted in order to accept an invitation to our club members and their husbands, to a supper served by the Cullowhee Home Demonstration Club. This is to be held at the Cullowhee luncheon room on December 7.

Cullowhee Club Hears Discussion On Books

Members of the Cullowhee Woman's Club interested in reading current fiction and non-fiction books met on Thursday evening in the parlors of Moore dormitory at Western Carolina Teachers College with Miss Leonora Smith, chairman of the department of literature for the year. Mrs. C. C. Buchanan and Miss Smith discussed with the members a number of new books from which they might choose. Each member will contribute one book which will be passed on given dates to other members.

Enloe H. Deitz, of the United States Navy, is spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richmond Deitz.

Lloyd Cowan who is serving with the Navy, is spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Cowan, of Savannah.

he was sent to Camp Claiborne, and then to Camp Polk, La.

From the latter he was transferred to his present post. Prior to entering the service he was the distributor of Gulf Oil in the Sylva area.

Ervin Anzel Hooper Is In Training In Florida

Ervin Anzel Hooper, son of Mrs. W. H. Hooper, Cowarts, is now training at the U. S. Maritime Service Station in St. Petersburg. Hooper attended high school at Cullowhee. Prior to his enrollment, Hooper was a shipfitter's helper.

Seaman Hooper is now in his preliminary period of training; during this time, he will be given general courses in first aid, firefighting, lifesaving, general seamanship, physical development, mental fitness, etc.

Robert Glenn Long Is Taking Maritime Training

Robert Glenn Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Long, East La Porte, is now training at the U. S. Maritime Service Training Station in St. Petersburg. Long attended high school at Cullowhee. Prior to his enrollment, Long was a plumber.

Upon completion of his basic training, Long hopes to enter the Stewards Department where he will receive specialized training in cooking and baking, butchering, pantryman and waiter training, and all practical courses that will prepare him for ratings either as a Cook and Baker, or a Messman on board one of the new ships of our Victory Fleet.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back.
