Mrs. Howell Weds Edward J. Doyle In Washington

Mrs. Carolyn Gibson Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gibson, Sr., of Sylva, became the bride of Edward J. Doyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel D. Doyle, of Boston, Mass., in an impressive ceremony at Holy Trinity Church in Georgetown, D. C., last Saturday morning, November 8, at ten o'clock.

Rev. Hugh J. McCarran officiated. The altar was arranged with white chrysanthemums against a background of evergreens.

Lawrence Barlow, organist, presented the wedding music playing "Panis Angelicus", Cesar-Franck; "Agnus Dei", Bizet; "Ave Marie", Schubert; and "On This Day, Oh Beautiful Mother", traditional, during the taking of the vows. The traditional wedding marches were played as processional and recessional.

The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Howard G. Leatherwood of Washington. She wore a brown wool suit with accessories in harmonizing shades. Her hat was of Alice blue ostrich plumes and her corsage was of white orchids.

Miss Mary Doyle, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a suit of Nile green wool with grey accessories and her hat was also of ostrich plumes. Her corsage was of white camellias and talisman roses.

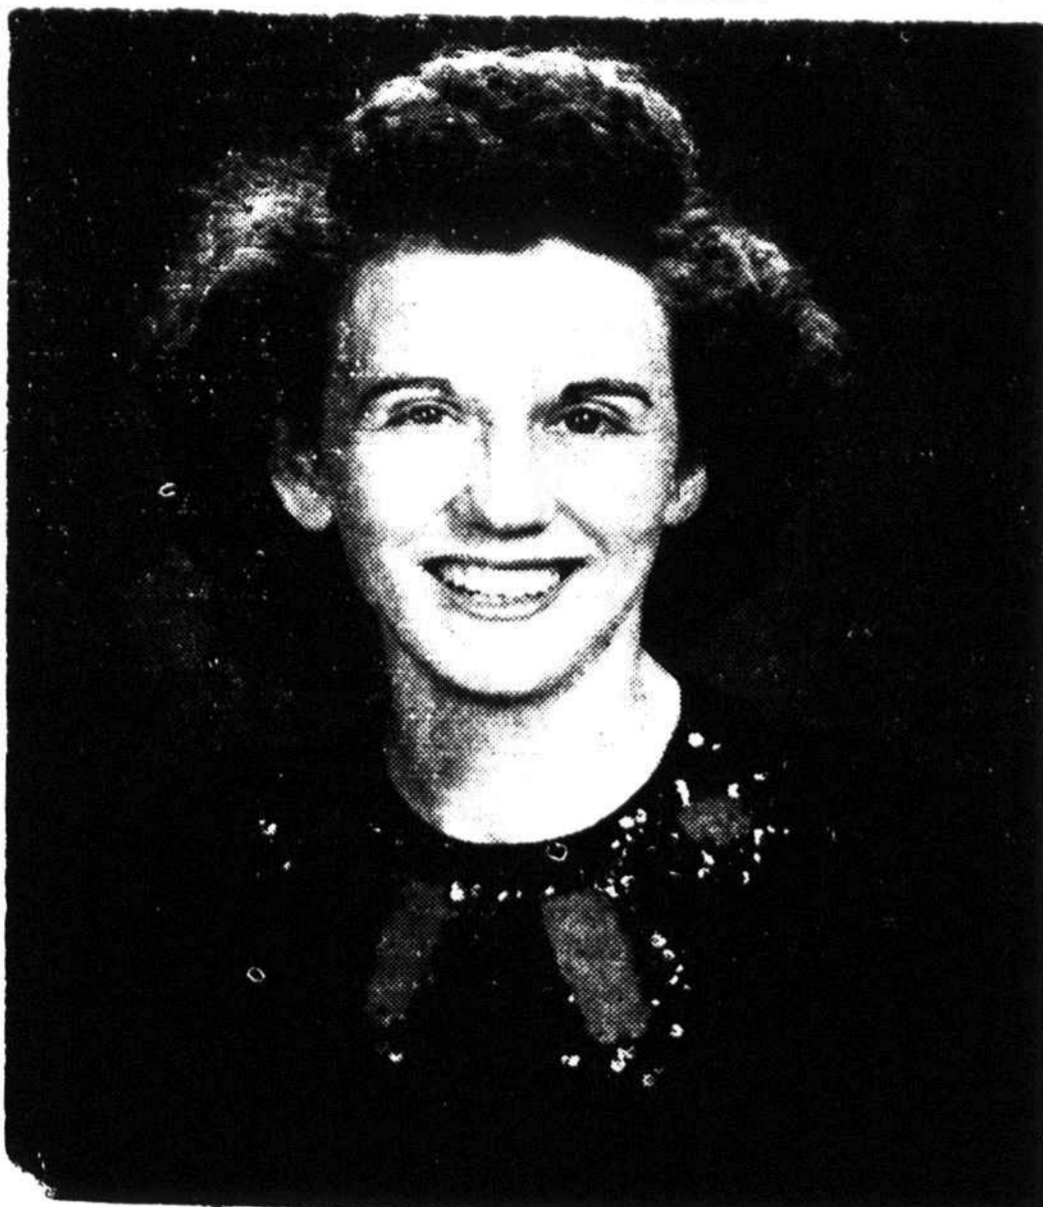

Charles Barth, of Washington, served as best man.

Mrs. Gibson, mother of the bride wore a black crepe dress with rhinestone trim and a corsage of red roses and valley lilies.

After the wedding, a breakfast was held at the Lafayette Hotel. The bride's table held a three-tiered wedding cake and red roses and white chrysanthemums decorated the T-shaped table at which the guests were seated.

Following the breakfast, the couple left for a brief wedding trip
