STATE COLLEGE ANSWERS TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION:—What should be done with broody hens?

ANSWER:—Broody hens in laying or in breeding flocks are a source of great annoyance and loss to the poultryman. Broodiness is inherited and through controlled breeding practices may be reduced to a very low level. From a state-wide standpoint great progress in reducing broodiness would be made if those poultrymen producing eggs for hatching purposes would cull every chicken as soon as it becomes broody. This would prevent a large portion of eggs from broody hens going into the incubators. The poultryman should consider the relationship of the broody hens to the feed bill for the non-producing broody bird must still be fed during the period of non-production. The duration of the periods of broodiness vary but usually one period of broodiness is quickly followed by another, which fact makes broody hens of questionable economic value.

QUESTION:—How does dehydrated sweet potato meal compare with corn when fed to milking cows?

ANSWER:— Dehydrated sweet

NBC Inserts Four Minor Changes Into Basketball Rules

Four minor changes were inserted into the rules of basketball last Friday by the National Basketball Committee in its annual meeting in New York.

The revisions each received unanimous approval. They follow:

1. Elimination of the requirement for a substitute to report to the referee upon entering the game after he has already reported to the scorekeeper.

2. All jump balls will be held in the nearest center circle or foul circle.

3. A player on whom a foul is called is expected to raise his hand above his head for identification, but there is no penalty incurred for failure to do so.

4. During a charged time-out (and in the cases of high schools, during intermission between quarters) a team may go to the vicinity of its bench and talk to its coach.

potato meal was nearly equal to corn when fed to milking cows. One trial with five cows in each of two groups, has been completed at State College. The potato meal or corn made up 40 per cent of grain mixtures containing 18.5 per cent protein. These two mixtures were compared in a double reversal feeding trial with periods 30 days in length. Slightly more milk was produced while the cows were receiving the ration with corn, but the difference was only 4 per cent fat corrected milk, an amount considered insignificant.

QUESTION:—Why is the quality of seed so important?

ANSWER:— High yields per acre don't just happen; they are made by a combination of good land, good seed, and good farming practices. Since it costs almost as much to grow a poor crop from inferior seed as it does a good crop from good seed, the difference in return might well be considered an extra profit. Buying good seed instead of poor ones is an investment which will pay dividends.

SHEEP PRODUCTION CAN BE PROFITABLE

Sheep production in North Carolina, on the decline in recent years because of shortages of fencing material and labor, should increase in the near future because of the profits which can be obtained, according to L. I. Case, in charge of Animal Husbandry Extension at State College.

There is no question about the profits to be derived from sheep growing when the animals are given proper attention, Mr. Case said. Last year growers in North Carolina received a gross income of nearly $21 per ewe after spending only one-fourth of that amount to feed each ewe for 12 months.

Good feeding is one of the essentials for economical production of market lambs and wool, the Extension worker declared. The

N. C. FARMERS ASKED TO GROW MORE GRAIN

With a heavy demand for food still existing both in this country and abroad, North Carolina farmers are being asked to grow more corn, oats, barley and other grain crops during 1948, according to G. T. Scott, State director of the Production and Marketing Administration.

In announcing 1948 farm production goals for the State as set by the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Scott said the critical feed supply situation has made necessary a reduction in the goals for livestock and poultry.

The 1948 goal for corn production is 2,358,000 acres, and increase of 9 per cent over 1947 acreage. The goal for wheat is 600,000 acres, an increase of 15 per cent, and for oats, 523,000 acres, an increase of 1 per cent.

Farmers are asked to produce 1,221,000 acres of tame hay, about the same as last year. The goal for cotton is 794,000 acres, an increase of 27 per cent, and for Irish potatoes, 73,800 acres, an increase of 2 per cent.

The greatest decrease is seen in the goal for blue-cured tobacco, which is 602,000 acres as compared with an acreage of 800,000 in 1947. The burley tobacco goal is up 21 per cent, from 9,600 to 11,577 acres.

The goal for sweet potatoes is 63,000 acres, a decrease of 2 per cent. State goal for peanuts has been announced, but the recommended national goal is 16 per cent below the 1947 acreage, picked and threshed.

If when renewing elastic in a garment the end of the new elastic is pinned to the old, the worn elastic can be pulled out as the new is pulled in. Simple and quick.

To keep a short-stemmed flower fresh in a slim vase, slit the end of the flower a little and wrap around it one end of a pipe cleaner. The pipe cleaner extended into the water acts as a wick for the flower.

Cut a small round washer from sandpaper about one and one-half inches in diameter and slip it over the screw on the inside of the flower between the nut and the head. Then when the screw is tightened the abrasive surface of the sand paper will hold the knob securely.

Keep a small box or dish of ordinary rubber bands handy in the kitchen and use them for holding sheets of waxed paper firmly over the top of dishes containing food; for helping wrapped foods stay wrapped; and for slipping around cartons and packages which, after once slit, refuse to stay closed.

A folding card table is light to carry and easy to take from room to room; try using it in the following ways: When cleaning the refrigerator place on it all the articles taken out of the refrigerator while it is being cleaned. When cleaning book cases, use the table to hold the books while they are being dusted. When mending, spread the stockings out on the table to sort and pair them.
