This Is Year Of Decision For All-America Confer.
 This 1948 season will be the "year of decision" for the All-America Football Conference. Whether it stands or whether it falls will be decided.
 Most authorities are inclined to agree that it is here to stay. During the early part of the league's life, some of the clubs operated at a loss, but that is a thing of the past. Owner Dan Topping of the New York Yankees football club says that the All-America conference has enough backing now to hold its own with the National Football league. The clubs are located in the larger cities throughout the states. The players are of higher quality each year. These things will help it to stand.

Cattle or Game?
 There is more than one way to reduce the wildlife of the game.
 In Idaho, where as many as 100,000 are killed each year by sport hunters as game, a livestock grower has an idea how to reduce the killing of cattle.
 "Every year," says John Highmore, "scores of cattle—to say nothing of horses, mules, sheep, and other animals—are shot by hunters who mistake them for game animals. Deer and elk are thereby saved, and continue to roam our hills in unabated numbers. All we have to do is declare an open season on cattle and close the season on deer and elk."

STATE COLLEGE ANSWERS TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION — Why has Ladino clover proved so popular in North Carolina?
ANSWER — The popularity of this clover is due to the great carrying capacity, long grazing season, high mineral and protein content, and its perennial nature. In addition, it apparently has the ability to recover more quickly following droughts than other legumes commonly grown. It contains 20 to 30 per cent protein, is high in minerals, and has been producing from 3500 to 5000 pounds of dry matter per acre in this State.

QUESTION — Do turkeys on range need shade?
ANSWER — Yes, enough should be provided for all the birds on range, especially during the hot summer weather. Range shelters are practical for supplying shade, since it is better for birds to congregate on wire or slatted floors than in small shady spots. Crowding in a shaded or heavily contaminated soil and may lead to the development of disease and bad habits. Dense shade is not desirable, for green feed will not grow in densely shaded areas, and the beneficial action of sunlight on the soil is lost.

QUESTION — Can a pasture be "undrained"?
ANSWER — Yes. While not usually as serious as overgrazing, undergrazing may be harmful to permanent pastures. Since a good permanent pasture depends upon the proper balance between two or more species of plants, any practice which favors one species too much may upset the balance. Where grasses such as Kentucky bluegrass or orchard grass are allowed to make excessive growth in the spring, they will crowd out lespedeza. This was especially noticeable in North Carolina Experiment demonstrations in the dry spring of 1941. Undergrazing usually seems to favor the grasses to the detriment of white clover. Excessive growth of carpet grass, particularly in the fall, also tends to crowd out legumes.

Although rapid progress has been made in bringing electric power to North Carolina farms during the past 14 years, the State average in ownership of home electrical equipment is well below that of the nation as a whole.
