MRS. MCKEE

August 19, 1913.

A number of North Carolina Governors recognized Mrs. McKee's ability in the field of state schools and public institutions and she was named by many of them to serve on very important boards and committees, some of which were: She was named by Governor Broughton as the only woman on the twelve man State Board of Education, thereby becoming North Carolina's first woman constitutional official.

She was appointed in 1931 as a trustee of the University of North Carolina and continued to hold that appointment under each Governor until death. She was also a member of the board which brought about the consolidation of the Greater University of North Carolina.

She was recognized as a na authority on welfare and was appointed to the board that investigated our state prisons and mental institutions some years ago. It was through her efforts that much was done to improve these institutions.

She sponsored and saw passed into legislation the McKee Child Labor bill which has become recognized throughout the nation as one of the best laws enacted along this line.

She has served on and been chairman of many other important boards and committees.

She was president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, 1925-'27, and president of the North Carolina Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, 1928-'30.

Mrs. McKee also served as president of the Southern Council of Federated Clubwomen, 1928-'28; member, North Carolina Education Commission, 1929-'29; chairman, Jackson County Board of Education, 1933-'35; trustee, Western Carolina Teachers College, 1921-'25; trustee, Peace College, 1930; trustee, Brevard College, 1934; and member of the commission for consolidation of the University of North Carolina, 1931.

Mrs. McKee was also a member of the State Board of Public Welfare, the Jackson County Library Board, and had been active in church and club activities in Sylva. She had been acclaimed one of the best public speakers in Western North Carolina.

Mrs. McKee and her husband were owners of the famous High Hampton Inn.

Her work in the General Assembly in the field of welfare attracted much attention and a measure which she sponsored for North Carolina has been copied by a number of other states.

Woman's College of the University of North Carolina conferred upon her the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

The Training School building at Western North Carolina Teachers College, the Getrude Dills McKee Building, was named in her honor.

Her activities in the field of education, both in and outside the General Assembly, had been credited with having much influence on the school life of North Carolina.

The district in which Mrs. McKee held the office of State Senator was composed of Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, Polk, and Transylvania counties. The district is entitled to two senators. The other one is W. B. Hodges of Henderson county.

The 1949-50 season is considered a crucial period in cotton since domestic prices of cotton already are at loan levels and prospects are that both the domestic and world carryover will increase during the current year.
