Broadcloth And Mink

Navy blue with fur trim.

By VERA WINSTON

THIS YEAR'S crop of winter coats is particularly good, with something worthwhile available for almost every taste and price level. Mutation mink and navy broadcloth combine for a really handsome town coat. The fur collar is on the front of the bolero which ends at the side seams to emphasize the blouse back, a detail that marks many of the new coats. The straight skirt is relieved in front by a few gathers at either side of the waist.

State Honors to North Carolina 4-H'ers

IN recognition of their top ranking records in the 1949 National 4-H Better Methods, Canning, Soil Conservation, Meat Animal and Home Grounds Beautification programs, five North Carolina club members received State championship awards. The state winners and brief outlines of their records follow:

Douglas Eason, 16, of Macleesfield, put into practice the lessons learned in the National 4-H Meat Animal program during the last six years, and became the 1949 state winner. Including premiums, awards and profit from sales, Douglas has a cash balance of $2,202. He plans to use the money for college. From seven calves, he has developed two grand champions and one reserve. He also won county championship in beef calf, and placed second in fitting and showmanship. An all-around 4-H'er, Douglas completed 12 projects. As a reward for his achievements, Thos. E. Wilson, awards donor, provided a 17-jewel gold watch.

Putting to practical use the know-how gained through participation in the 1949 National 4-H Better Methods Electric program won for Horace Layden, 18, of Hertford, highest state honors. Horace began his Better Methods project by improving the way in which he watered the cattle and hogs. He installed a pump at the well and piped water to the various troughs, tanks and stalls. His reward is an educational trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, provided by Westinghouse Educational Foundation.

State honors in the 1949 National 4-H Canning Achievement program went to Doris Strickland, 20, of Halifax. Besides having an outstanding canning record, she did a good job in other phases of 4-H work, completing 37 projects. Doris canned 1,980 quarts of fruits, vegetables and meats without help and 2,671 quarts with help. This contribution to the family food supply not only cut costs, but added a greater variety of healthful meals. She has been county winner in food preservation for four years. Doris has held every office in her local club. In recognition of her achievements, the Kerr Glass Mfg. Corp. gave Doris an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Doing a vital job in 4-H Soil Conservation work not only improved the home farm, but gave Franklin Hoffman, 17, of Dallas a valuable knowledge of land use and management. His record was judged state winner in the 1949 National 4-H Soil Conservation program. Aided by the conservation service, Franklin is carrying out a conservation plan on the 50-acre farm. He wants to go into grade A dairying, so is getting the soil into condition first. He expects to sow all the land in pasture and alfalfa. Terraces and waterways have already been built. Neighboring farmers are watching his progress and asking for advice. He is now running the farm by himself. In recognition of his achievement, Franklin was presented with a $50 U. S. savings bond by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., donor of awards.

To receive State honors in the 1949 National 4-H Home Grounds Beautification program means that a lot of planning and hard work have gone into the project. It means, too, that the results not only reward the winner, but provide lasting joy and beauty for other members of the 4-H family. This honor went to James Revele, Jr., 16, of Conway, who completed 12 4-H projects in five years. He underpinned the home, built new brick steps to replace old wooden ones, and removed scrubby shrubs and trees, replacing them with 32 new shrubs and six trees. A demonstration on "Painting for the Interior," which he gave for 4-H Club week at State College in Raleigh, was one of the first of its kind and had an attendance of 1,450 people.

Mrs. Charles R. Waigren, sponsor of the program, presented James with a handsome 17-jewel gold wrist watch.

All of these activities are conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperating.
