"As he was grumbling over his fall-out fortune a friend said:
"Oh, what's the matter with you? Can't you run over people just as much as ever?"
"Yes," the ex-chauffeur replied, "but formerly I could pick and choose."

NO MEDICINE
But Change of Food Gave Final Relief.

Most diseases start in the alimentary canal—stomach and bowels.
A great deal of our stomach and bowel troubles come from eating too much starchy and greasy food.
The stomach does not digest any of the starchy food we eat—white bread, pastry, potatoes, oats, etc.—these things are digested in the small intestine, and if we eat too much, as most of us do, the organs that should digest this kind of food are overcome by excess of work, so that fermentation, indigestion, and a long train of ailments result.
Too much fat also is hard to digest and this is changed into acids, sour stomach, belching gas, and a bloated, heavy feeling.
In these conditions a change from indigestible foods to Grape-Nuts will work wonders in not only relieving the distress but in building up a strong digestion, clear brain and steady nerves. A Wash woman writes:
"About five years ago I suffered with bad stomach—dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation—caused, I know now, from overeating starchy and greasy food.
"I doctored for two years without any benefit. The doctor told me there was no cure for me. I could not eat anything without suffering severe pain in my back and sides, and I became discouraged.
"A friend recommended Grape-Nuts and I began to use it. In less than two weeks I began to feel better and inside of two months I was a well woman and have been ever since."
"I can eat anything I wish with pleasure. We eat Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast and are very fond of it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

RICH INDIAN LAND

Fort Peck Reservation Ready for Settlers Next Spring.

Last Big Tract Left in West—Still Unusually Productive in Grain, As Shown by Progress Made By Tribes Themselves.

Butte, Mont.—Two million acres of land in Montana, now known as the Fort Peck Indian reservation, will be thrown open for settlement by the government next spring. This is the last large tract of public land in the west that has not been opened to settlers.

Inasmuch as less than one per cent of this land has been cultivated and all of it is said to be fertile, it is estimated that the harvest will be enriched by 20,000,000 bushels of grain a year after it is settled and developed. The share of this tract allotted to Indians of many tribes is 723,693 acres. The rest is uncultivated.

"On the supposition that the uncultivated lands were devoted to the growing of wheat on the summer fallow plan, which would mean that one-half the area would be in crop at one time, an acre on the further supposition that the wheat would yield 25 bushels per acre, which is a moderate estimate for fields on land thus prepared, the aggregate production would be 19,312,500 bushels," Thomas Shaw, agricultural expert, estimates.

Prof. Shaw further says: "If this land were entirely devoted to the growing of barley on the summer fallow plan, the yield would be 30,900,000 bushels, as barley grown on such land should average 40 bushels per acre. If the entire area were devoted to the growing of oats on the same lines, the total production would be 28,625,000 bushels, as 50 bushels per acre would not be an extravagant estimate for land thus farmed."

The Fort Peck reservation will also be the scene of a unique event when the first county fair ever held by Indian tribes will open there. At this fair will be shown the rapid progress made by the red men in extensive agriculture after only a few years of instruction in modern farming methods.

There will be exhibited at this time some unusual specimens of grain and grasses that will also be entered later in the year at eastern land shows in competition with prize products of the white man. This progress has all been made in the last two years, since before that time hardly any of the land was being developed with modern methods.

A year ago the Great Northern railroad sent a representative body of the tribes inhabiting this region to the New York land show to give them an opportunity to see what the white man was doing to wrest a living from the soil. The exhibits there were carefully studied, and the representatives returned to their prairie homes with ideas as revolutionary as they proved to be profitable. Instead of truck farmers living in tepees, they resolved to be ranchers living in comfortable cottages overlooking thousands of acres. That they went to work with a vim is shown by the fact that at the present time there are twice as many acres of land under cultivation as there were a year ago.

Agriculture is not the only form of American civilization the Indians on this reservation have assimilated. They have also learned to play football.

The Indian civilization will not be entirely overshadowed by what has been learned from the white man, however, all the old tribal customs will be perpetuated in dances and ceremonies that have been handed down for centuries.

The Sioux will hold their annual festival at which all the weird rites of their forefathers will be used.

Denver, Colo.—When it comes to narrow escapes on the part of the innocent bystander, George W. Smith thinks he about has the record. Before the deer season opened, Smith left Denver for a visit to Gunnison and a tour of the surrounding deer country.

given up hope, Charley Hutt, who had heard the shots from a distance, appeared on the bank of Darby creek.

He called to the boys to swim across, and when he learned that neither could swim, told them to remain where they were until he summoned help. Hutt communicated with the Collingdale police, and Policemen Diehl, Jones and Trumbuck jumped into a boat and rowed swiftly to the scene.

It was so dark when the rescue boat arrived that the policemen could not see the boys, and had to be guided by their shouts. According to the police, the tree trunk upon which the young men took refuge is completely covered when the tide reaches its highest mark.

JAIL RESTORES HIS MEMORY

Sight of Prison Brings Back Mind of a Convict at Everett, Wash., Jail.

Everett, Wash.—Robert Carlson, a logger, who had forgotten his name and past life, and who had been brought here under guard from Arlington to be examined for insanity, regained his memory at sight of prison walls. He was booked as John Doe Christensen. When the jailer tried to question him, he suddenly blurted out:

GIRL HOOKS SHARK

Man-Eater Pulled in From Deck of Ocean Liner.

Young Tourist in Casting Lines in Water for Amusement When She Gets a Real Bite and Makes a Record Catch.

New York.—Shark fishing has long since assumed the proportions of a gentle art down Costa Rica way, according to the stock tales of returning tourists, but it remained for a winsome Brooklyn girl—Miss Cecile des Places—to startle the natives with a catch that set angler tongues wagging all up and down the wild coast. With fifteen minutes fishing to her credit, Miss Des Places landed a 300-pound man-eating shark that set the populace of Port Limon by the ears and caused her name to be displayed in scarehead type in the Costa Rican dailies. Her coup was set down as an epoch marker in a country where men haul up the monsters of the deep for a living and make big catches every day of the week.

Miss Des Places arrived home aboard the Hamburg-American liner Prinz August Wilhelm, and in key traveling bag were several long teeth pulled from the head of her big sensational catch as souvenirs. She intends to have them appropriately mounted and set up as an ornament in her parlor of the Des Places home in Brooklyn.

The pretty shark catcher manifested considerable diffidence in discussing her coup over at the pier the other morning, but there were plenty of her friends on board who were not averse to telling just how it happened.

"You see, it was this way," one of them explained. "We were anchored in the harbor of Port Limon, one of the prettiest on the Costa Rican coast, by the way, and the tourists on board for want of something more profitable to do fell to casting lines into the clear limpid water that swished so rhythmically alongside the vessel. Miss Des Places watched the bottles of oil, which the two used as an emetic. After the oil Smith's friend made him take a pint of warm lard. To this heretic treatment the Denver man owes his life.

Smith's friend, after administering the emetic, went to secure aid and found the ranchman who owned the cabin. The cattlemen explained that he had dozed the coffee with strychnine to stop blanket thieves who had been visiting his cabin. Steal from a shelter cabin is a high crime on the range.

OTHERS KNOW US TOO WELL

Easy to Deceive Ourselves, but the Rest of the World is Generally Too Wise.

Senator Pomerene has a happy knack of driving home a statement with an epigram.
At a luncheon Senator Pomerene described a would-be litterateur.

"Thanks to whisky and strong cigars," he said, "the poor fellow has failed to make good. He earns a precarious living by newspaper work, but, though he is 50 now, none of the wondrous novels and thrilling stories that he used to prate about have appeared."

"And yet, in his shabby apartment, over a bottle of cheap liquor and a box of cheap cigars, he will boast by the hour—poor, gray, wrinkled duffer—of his unfinished MSS. Oh, they will appear yet! Yes, he will yet illumine the world with the light of his genius."

Senator Pomerene sighed and concluded:
"Ah, if we could deceive others as easily as we deceive ourselves, what reputations we'd all have, to be sure!"

SKIN DISEASE ON FACE

Barthell, Ky.—"I had a skin disease on my face, neck and hands that tormented me all the time and when I would get hot the places would burn so that I had to keep my face wet in cold water. It began as pimples and indeed it was disfiguring, for it would get in spots on my face and hands as large as a quarter of a dollar. It would get into blisters sometimes and I sure did suffer. My face burned all the time. It was this way so bad for about six years and I tried everything that I could hear of, but nothing did any good.

"One day I found the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised and ordered some at once. I would wash my face good with the Cuticura Soap and then apply the Cuticura Ointment and they have cured me. It would take half a tablet to tell all I suffered in those six years." (Signed) Mrs. Della Hill, Jan. 3, 1912.

9 STITCHES TAKEN IN HEART

Remarkable Case in Philadelphia of a Man Who Was Stabbed and Survives Ordeal.

Philadelphia.—John Thompson, a negro, has just left the Pennsylvania hospital well and strong after surviving the operation of having nine stitches taken in his heart.

Thompson was stabbed in a quarrel seventy-seven days ago. The knife penetrated deep into his heart and the hospital doctors had little hope of saving his life. He was operated on within two hours and the wound was sewed up without delay. Not only did he live through the operation, but he began immediately to improve, and today he was declared as well and as strong as before he was wounded.
