

Future Timber Supply In Farmers' Woodlots.

Atlanta, Ga., June.—For its future supply of timber the South must look to the farmers' woodlots, says Roland Turner, general agriculture agent of the Southern Railway System, calling attention to the problem and the opportunity which "our vanishing forests" present to the Southern farmer.

The farmer's woodlot can be made to yield a steady cash income as well as to furnish the lumber needed for the farm, says Mr. Turner, in urging careful management of woodlands which are on soil too rough or infertile for tillage but which can be made to pay a profitable dividend by cutting out the mature timber and protecting the young growth from injury by fire and other causes.

What can be done to make the woodlot pay is shown by the fact that in 1921 the farm woodlot of Maryland, where advanced forestry methods have been adopted, showed an average income of $2.75 per acre and each tract was cut over in such a manner that a new crop will follow the old.

As the South's largest consumers of wood as well as the owners of a large part of its present timber supply, farmers have a vital interest in forest preservation on their own farms and can make their wooded lands pay an income as well as to keep down their lumber bill, Mr. Turner concludes.

A Reader

Mrs. J. R. Swann

The World is all too prone to overlook and forget virtues that really count. To many pages of the world's history are devoted to the exploits of Monarchs, and far too few to the value of the lives of such women as Dorcas, Ruth and the other great women of the past. While this is so, yet no thoughtful person will deny the greater influence upon the ultimate history of the world of these noble characters.

Of such mould was Mrs. Swann, highminded, modest, patient, loyal friend, helpful to her community, faithful to her church, and a consistent Christian.

It is such women who offset the evil effect of modern worldliness and selfishness, and keep alive those virtues which preserve the influence of the home the real bulwark of our citizenship.

Young women may will ponder the beautiful Christian life of Mrs. Swann and emulate her example.

It has been truly said that the sweet influence of the Christian life never dies, but gathers fragrance with the ages.

Excellent Stimulus To Youth.

The Masonic Order has set going an admirable thing for lads between the ages of sixteen and twenty one in the period when they are too old for the boy scouts and too young for grown up clubs and fraternities the time of life, too, when they seem to care least for conventional forms of church activity. Hitherto the "Hi-Y" clubs of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Christian Endeavor and other young people's church societies have been about the only organizations reaching out for youth of that age. What the Masons are doing will in no wise conflict with these and will reach many not reached by them. The Masonic undertaking is called the "Order of De Molay", and the initiation ceremonies conduct each candidate through "a symbolic journey" inculcating in succession love of parents, reverence, patriotism, purity, courtesy, comradeship and fidelity. Through under Masonic patronage, the organization is open generally to eligible youths regardless of parentage and does not pledge the participants to become Masons later. It is a development worthy of public gratitude and approbation.

The Wide Scope Of A Small Church.

On behalf of the Home Missions Council, Dr. Lemuel Call Barnes, of the Baptist Mission Society, has prepared a little folder entitled "The Wide Scope of a Small Church." We print five of its twenty-nine excellent suggestions.

Approving wholesome amusement. Practically every young person gives the major portion of his spare time to seeking enjoyment. Whatever the church may feel compelled to disapprove it should make itself known chiefly, not by its negatives, but by its positive sympathies with young life, smiling ten times more than it frowns. Help both silently and vocally to get good things going. Youth makes character through play.

Christianizing industry. The chief occupation of most men is earning a living or a competency. Work is a primary means of grace. How it needs to be made glad and altruistic by the Spirit of Christ! A church may not often know the complicated factors well enough to take sides in a labor dispute. But it is its business constantly to teach the principles of justice and fraternity which alone can finally settle such matters.

Making world sympathy keen. Every continent, country and island of the sea can be lifted above the horizon for study, prayer and good understanding. Pictures are useful. Many a small church has cultivated the interest of common people in far away members of the human family and become a hot bed of universal service.

Co-operating with other churches. In the thousands of cases where there is only one church in a community a manifold program may appear inviting. Where there is more than one church a primary opportunity is that of conferring together as to the welfare of the neighborhood and planning a division of labor in endeavoring to meet certain needs, and joint action in all matters in which that is practicable.

Undertaking only such things as are adopted to the particular makeup and surroundings of your church. Two or three things steadily pushed do more good than twenty things dabbed about. It will make a great difference in certain measures whether a small city church is in a residential or an industrial neighborhood and a small village church is concerned mainly with agricultural or with manufacturing people.
