Society—Its Inestimable Blessing Damable Curses And Greatest Needs

Will be the subject of the hour at the Baptist Church Sunday night. It will be handled without gloves—a straight from the shoulder message—just the kind that real men and real women like, even though they may not perhaps agree with the speaker.

So many have asked us, since we have been here, why we will not play cards and dance. In our message Sunday night we will give our reasons for not so doing. Will be glad to see you there.

In connection with the Evening Service we will have a Little Motion Picture Trip down into South America, going over what is known as The Northern Andes.

"I will look away to the hills, from whence cometh my help and strength," said the Psalmist David. We will do that on Sunday night, as we travel over some of the greatest mountains in the world—the Backbone of the South American Continent. It is a country picturesque, beautiful and rich in undeveloped resources. The Great Wonders of the Almighty will surely be seen in this two five hundred foot reel Travelogue.

Our Sunday morning service will be a most helpful one, we honestly believe. Than Heaven, in the midst of the endless changings of the things of this old world, there is one thing that does not change, and that is the attitude of our blessed Lord toward erring, sinful men in all the "UPS AND DOWN" of life, and they are many, aren't they, it is good to know that JESUS CHRIST is, as the Old Book puts it, "THE SAME YESTERDAY, TO-DAY AND FOREVER." We will preach on it, or, rather, try to, on Sunday morning, and we give you a most cordial invitation to be present.

Best luck in the world to all of you.

Cordially,

EVAN RIDGE EVANS.

Peace And Health And Freedom

People whose lives are regulated mainly by physical health become hypochondriacs, and miss the very object they seek, says Lionel Curtis in "Brittish Outlook on International Problems." "He that seeks to save his life will lose it." Among people whose conduct is guided by the aim to live rightly the general level of physical health will be far higher. And so with states. To them peace is as physical health to the individual. But health is only one element and by no means the chief one. The right system of society is one composed of such men, and therefore one calculated to reproduce them in a higher degree and in greater numbers. As health is worth asking for right living, so is health a product of right living. And as peace is worth asking for freedom, so peace is a product of freedom "He that seeks to lose his life shall save it." The principal is that the test by which all world policies should be proved is not whether they help to avert an immediate war, but whether they tend to advance freedom among men.

Resolutions Of Respect Mr. J. W. Nelson.

On Tuesday night at midnight May 1st. 1923 God in His infinite wisdom saw fit to remove from our midst our beloved brother and Past Worthy Patron

With the utmost love, honor and respect, we the undersigned members of Marshall Chapter No. 35 of the Order of the Eastern Star, wish to express our love and appreciation for him in the following resolutions Resolved First: That by his death we lose our second Worthy Patron who was always willing to do whatever he thought his duty, ever ready to serve his Lord and Master.

Second: That while we deeply mourn his loss and greatly miss him, we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well.

Third: That we extend our love and sympathy to the sorrowing sisters and brothers but whose sorrows should be mingled with joy, remembering he is now enjoying the promised reward.

Fourth: That a copy of these resolutions be sent the Orphans Friend and the News Record and a copy to each of his brothers and sisters and a copy spread upon the minutes.

A Jolly Picnic

Last Sunday June 3rd. abandoning temporarily the cares of the week says, the members of the Spring Creek "Good Time Club" went to a high mountain overlooking Madison, Buncombe, Haywood and other counties for a picnic.

The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smith, Misses Nannie and Dorothy Meadows, Flossie Brown, Lura Brown and Hattie Ledford. Messrs. Hubert and Burnett Worley, Eulas Askew, Romain Meadows and Weaver Duckett.

All you that had an invitation and did not go, just do not know how much you missed. Really, it was lots of fun and the only way to be convinced is to go once, and sure if you go you'll want to go again, for all of us do.

Needless to say, early Sunday morning all the members were on time and at the place appointed for getting together to start, with all their cares and anxieties laid aside to enjoy a wonderful trip and a glorious day—All mounted on their horses and soon were traveling with haste toward the top of View Mountain.

The weather was ideal and it seemed as though nature had prepared some delightful surprises especially for us at each turn of the road. We traveled on, and on, at last we reached the top. In fact, so inspiring was the scenery, that when a hillside with sheep peacefully grazing on it came in view—One boy exclaimed, "Geef those sheep need shearing!" Another called out, "How I'd like to be an artist I would paint all of these beautiful scenes!" We dismounted—Some of the horses were hitched up, some just turned loose to graze with all their "rigging" on them—We gathered up all the boxes, bags etc., that contained the "goodies" for our bountiful feast and marched just under the top to a beautiful spring, and of course under the shade of a tree—After the boys recovered from the effects of riding in the hot sun, gathered wood and kindled a fire, the girls spent much time in discussing who would do the cooking. The boys left the girls for that task and peacefully reclined themselves against some rocks enjoying numbers of past time jokes.

Some of the girls prepared the table and placed the bounties while others cooked—After several tears had been shed on account of smoke that had gone in the eyes while cooking, the table was set in a dainty order. The boys were called—They arrived with hungry looks. Nannie and Mrs. Smith slipped away being afraid they would be the ones to serve Lura and Hattie remained and proved themselves to be "rare maids." Ask anyone of that joyous crowd who were the two bashfullest girls and I'm sure each one will say, "Flossie and Dorothy." Ask Weaver how we know. Well, if he will not tell you, the rest will. Listen! "They would not come to the table and he had to carry their dinner to them."

Oh! all those delicious eats! sandwiches, cake, peaches, plums, candy, straw-berries and such good lemonade, "The half cannot be told." Only in dreams and advertisements do you see such things as those we enjoyed. They are the things that dreams are made of, and like the dreams that vanish at the break of day those goodies vanished.

Dinner being over, souvenirs distributed—We spent the afternoon roaming over the hills collecting in sight the wonderful scenes—The day was spent with full enjoyment and the study of nature was beyond compare. Every-one seemed reluctant to leave the scene of such a happy gathering, but finally decided that even the best of picnics must end. We mounted our horses with happy faces and longing for another good time—We shall always look back with pleasure to that glorious June day.
