TOUPEE TROUBLE; CAUSES A SUIT

An interesting development has reached the news columns concerning a toupee. It seems that one Robert Owens, of Honolulu, Hawaii, bought a toupee. He was wearing it down the street one day and a friend of his approached and looked it over. His friend's conclusion was that he should take the toupee off. Owens, according to the news account, took the toupee off but thought he looked worse than ever because he was tanned below the hairline and not where the toupee had rested. Therefore, he concluded, the toupee made him look ridiculous. The net result of this mix-up is that Owens is suing a hair clinic for $5,600 in compensation. The compensation is supposed to be for making him look ridiculous. All of which goes to prove law suits can crop up out of the strangest things. We will be interested to know if Owens collects, and if he does, we suppose the price of toupees — already reported high — will be increased.

DOG OWNERS—RABIES CLINICS ARE SCHEDULED

Rabies is a communicable disease which is spread from rabid animals to man through an abrasion in the skin, usually due to one or more bites inflicted by the mad animal. Like most of our communicable diseases it can be prevented if enough people who have dogs will see that they are vaccinated. This year we have available a new vaccine which will protect your dog from rabies for three years instead of only one year as formerly used. Some counties in Western North Carolina have had rabid dogs recently. These dogs have bitten foxes, the foxes have bitten cattle, and some farmers have lost whole herds of cattle because of rabies. This loss could have been entirely prevented if each county would put on a Rabies Control Program and each dog owner have his dogs vaccinated. It is not only loss of livestock that we are interested in but the protection of human beings. Many children are given fourteen doses of the rabies prophylactic vaccine each year because of dog bites. The children of Madison County should be protected from rabid dogs. Your Health Department has asked Dr. Julian Cornwell to hold the following clinics in our county:

Ramsey Reviews

Government shared approximately 60% of the cost with farmers. The record reveals the total gross cost-share borne (small payment included) by the Government with the farmers under the 1956 ACP amounted to $101,691.60. The participating farmers contributed about the same amount in cash as the Government did in purchasing the needed conservation materials for the practices performed and also provided all labor cost involved. The total cost of all practices completed for credit under last year's ACP within the county is estimated to be near a quarter of a million dollars, according to Ramsey.

A breakdown on the extent, the cost borne by the Government and the number of farms carrying out approved practices indicates the following: (1) Establishing a vegetative cover in crop rotation for hay or pasture, 2162 acres, $42,029.00 on 670 farms; (2) Establishing permanent pasture 79 acres, $1,366.00 on 23 farms; (3) Lining material along on farmland 821 acres, $5,240.00 on 164 farms; (4) Improvement of pasture or hay 4048 acres, $34,289.00 on 616 farms; (5) Tile drainage 2,730 feet, $218.00 on 9 farms; and (6) Establishing winter cover crop 2350 acres, $5,296.00 on 1134 farms. The total farmland on all farms participating in the program last year amounted to 152,939 acres, the cropland to 38, 351 acres and the noncrop pasture to 36,962 acres.

Ramsey pointed out the fact that more county farmers took part in the ACP in 1956 than for any previous year. The package type practice became a requirement back in 1953. He explained that the package deal required the use of lime and fertilizer when establishing a vegetative cover for hay or pasture unless the farmer has a recent soil analysis test indicating they are not needed.

In conclusion, the office manager said that even though the County ASC Committee and personnel are responsible for the administration of the Agricultural Conservation Program within the county, that the program could not have been successful without the wholehearted cooperation and help provided by each of the other county agricultural agencies, the county vendors, the business firms, the farm organizations, the press and radio, and that the contribution of each was greatly appreciated.

A closing thought: Any nation is rich so long as its supply of soil resources is greater than the needs of its people.

EARLY START

South Charleston, W. Va. — When Detective John W. Fenimore Jr., and John W. Parkins finally overtook a stolen car after a chase of several miles, on a wild, 60-mile-an-hour ride through city streets, out stepped a 14 year old boy, who admitted three other auto thefts and one motorcycle theft. The youth said he had been driving since he was six years old.

Gabriels Creek

(Brought From First Page)
Max Ammons and Vern Cody, got together at a meeting to determine what could be done to lessen or eliminate the damages to their crops and soil which they were experiencing each year. They invited the Soil Conservation Technician, Mr. John Nesbitt, and the county agent to meet with them and help them decide the best method which they might use to control the flood waters of Gabriels Creek.

Plans were made at this meeting and agreed upon by the farmers to control the overflow of Gabriels Creek. Since that time the stream bed has been widened and lowered to the extent recommended by the soil conservationist who made a thorough study of the area necessary to be included in the stream bed to carry the highest expected water over a 50 year period. Since this was a community project the French Broad Electric Membership Corporation loaned to the farmers a air compressor and made available to them an operator for the compressor and for the drilling to be used for blasting the rock from the streams.

The farmers involved agree that this has been an expensive project but they feel that their losses during the past two years have been as great as the expense involved in straightening, widening and making the stream bed deep enough to carry the expected flow of water. They plan further to stabilize the banks of Gabriels Creek through their farms so that future floods will not change the course of the stream and dig into their most precious possession, their bottom lands.

Individual action in controlling the flood waters is very difficult and in some instances impossible. Group action of neighbors working together can do almost anything which they desire if they work together as the farmers along the middle section of Gabriels Creek have done.
