in my being. It makes me sad to sever relations with such a fine group of men as you three. Again it makes me sad to have to leave this office with so little accomplished. I realize we have been handicapped without adequate finances to accomplish those things so much needed. I wish that I might have contributed a real service and something of everlasting value to the fine people of Marshall. They are a part of the salt of the earth and they will always be a part of me.

Farm Income

crop is being made and it appears now that our 1964 crop can be increased to an adequate average to justify building and operating a local market.

Personal assistance, meetings, tours, field meetings, radio and newspaper communications made by the Madison County Extension Service Agents required 105 days of time in 1962. Greater efforts will be made in 1963. If these efforts and those of 1964 are fruitful, they can result in enough tomatoes in the county for a local market. Farm income from the sale of vine-ripe tomatoes can equal the $275,000 goal established for 1966 by the projection planning board.

Here is an opportunity of increased farm income for many Madison County farmers. The land used is little, labor use is high per acre, investment necessary is low. The soil and climate in most of Madison County is favorable for this crop and farmers in the county learn rapidly the necessary new knowledge for successful production of this high yielding crop.

Topdressing

analysis material such as 0-30-30 or 0-60-0 was used. The pilot, with the aid of a truck with two way radio, and some markers had no trouble locating the fields and spreading fertilizer on it uniformly. The results were good. Mr. Jack Caldwell stated that he could have put up hay from his pasture land which was topdressed by airplane. Mr. Lon Sluder, whose pasture on Little Pine was topdressed from a landing strip on Sandy Mush, said, "I wasn't sure that pilot would ever find my field but he spread the fertilizer smoother than I could and I want to use him again." P. R. Elam had pasture land on Big Laurel topdressed from a landing strip on Roy McDevitt's farm on Brush Creek. Mr. Rice, who lives just below Elam's pasture, said this week that the pilot sure did a good job and you could tell exactly where the fertilizer went that it did a good job.

Madison County farmers who are interested in having pasture land topdressed by airplane are urged to contact the county agricultural agent's office. Arrangements are being made for this service in 1963. The county agents will coordinate the program for this work, assist in locating landing strips, secure pilots for applying the fertilizer, order high analysis material when needed by a group, and furnish assistance in helping the pilots locate the fields. This can be done as demonstrations.

Xmas Observance

and forbade them by law. Christmas came to the American colonies while it was the subject of strenuous controversy in England. English Puritans condemned it as "popish" and the secular celebration as a "wanton Bacchanalian feast."

Opposition of the English Puritans to festivals culminated in an act of Parliament in 1647 which abolished the observance of Christmas, Easter and Whitsuntide. This was echoed in the American colonies in 1659 when Puritans enacted a law in the general court of Massachusetts to punish those who "kept Christmas."

The law read "Whosoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like, either by forbearing of labor, feasting, or in any other way... shall be subject to a fine of five shillings."

The law was repealed in 1681 but many of the Puritans were not reconciled to this action. Secular reveling at Christmas had often interfered with religious devotions and offended the Puritans' moral sense. This intensified their sectarian hostility to the religious observance of Christmas—an attitude they maintained for the better part of two centuries in parts of New England.

The fun-loving Dutch colonists of New Amsterdam, however, celebrated Christmas as their chief holiday. They brought the old customs from their homeland, especially the Christmas stocking and observance of the feast day of St. Nicholas.

In the Southern colonies, the planters celebrated the yuletide with feasting, singing, and dancing. On many plantations slaves were given a holiday as long as the great yule log burned.

The latter half of the eighteenth century saw a swing of attention to the realm of economics and politics and religious controversies became of less importance. The fact that English and Hessian troops celebrated Christmas during the Revolutionary War may have added a patriotic note to the denominational controversy.

General Washington crossed the Delaware River on the night of December 25, 1776, to surprise and defeat the Hessian troops stationed at Trenton, N. J. In the opinion of one writer, Washington's bold venture succeeded because the Hessians were enjoying their customary Christmas revels and failed to maintain the usual watch and patrols.

However, denominational opposition to the ecclesiastical observance of Christmas continued into the second half of the nineteenth century. An account in the New York Daily Times for December 26, 1885, read: "The churches of the Presbyterians, Baptist, and Methodists were not open on Dec. 25 except where some Mission Schools had a celebration. They do not accept the day as a Holy One, but the Episcopalians, Catholics and German Churches were all open. Inside they were decked with evergreens."

In the twentieth century, all denominations have embraced Christmas widely both as a religious and as a social celebration. Today, men, women and children in every Christian land crowd into churches to give their thanks. More than one fourth of the world's population—about 800 million people profess some form of Christian faith.

The splendor and beauty of Christmas observances is very different from the humble stable in Bethlehem where Christ was born; but the message He brought to the world is the same—"Glory be to God in the highest; and on earth peace, good will toward men."
