Rattlesnakes

Copperhead is another matter. He is well camouflaged in dead leaves and rocky ledges where he prefers to live. Most of the poison snakes are easily identified by their thick body and flat diamond shaped heads. It is typical of poison snakes to be shy and prefer to run rather than attack, yet there is always the exception. In this dry period, all snakes are migrating toward water, so children playing along streams and creeks should be constantly alert and everyone should be briefed on the procedures to follow in case of snake bites.

Hearings

of Democrats in the precinct were listed on the registration book more than one time — many of them three or four times.

The registration book showed that most of them were checked as having voted more than once in the May 30 primary.

Those showing on the book as having voted more than once voted as both Democrats and Republicans, if the registration book was accurate.

Included among more than 300 names on the registration book were several who were dead or long removed from the precinct but who still were recorded as having voted — usually more than once — on May 30.

Big Pine is the fifth precinct to be contested by Norton's attorneys.

They told N. C. Elections Board Chairman William Joslin Saturday that they had evidence of fraud that they had evidence of fraud that they had evidence of fraud to present in several other precincts.

If the state board finds enough weight in Norton's evidence, it can rule invalid all the ballots counted in contested precincts and declare Norton the winner of the Senate seat.

Meantime Ponder's attorneys have started legal maneuvering to head off such a decision and to tie the state board's hands.

No matter how the decisions go in all the preliminary court proceedings, it is considered a foregone conclusion here that the contested Ponder-Norton election will wind up in the N.C. Supreme Court.

EBBS CHAPEL

Testimony Friday coming from the Ebbs Chapel precinct gave the State Board an almost perfect example of how an election should not be held.

The ingredients: an absence of voting booths, poll books and registration book; the presence maybe of a little bit of liquor to keep things lively around the polling place; the informality of a neighborhood cookout; and the secret ballot bedamned.

That, according to about half a dozen witnesses, is just about how the election was held on May 30 in the Ebbs Chapel precinct.

According to testimony from persons who visited or worked at the poll on election day, precinct officials didn't bother keeping a poll book showing the names of all persons who voted.

If a registration book was kept in the Ebbs Chapel precinct, it did little more than collect dust during the day, according to the testimony.

Several times during the day the polling room was left vacant by election officials for as long as 30 minutes at a time.

The collective effect of testimony presented to the state board was that almost anybody in the county could have wandered into the polling place and voted.

At least one member of the state board, Joseph Zaytown of Raleigh, was impressed.

One thing about it, he said, "I call that a free election."

CALIFORNIA CREEK

A key witness Thursday afternoon from the California Creek precinct, James Ramsey, a 32-year-old farmer, testified 35 votes too many were counted.

In one of their strongest moves of the week, Norton's lawyers produced affidavits from at least 25 California Creek residents who said they did not vote May 30 although the survey, a detailed inventory of resources in the five-county area, has been completed. The second phase, an analysis in depth, will be completed in October, he said.

The third phase will be an evaluation of growth possibilities, Kilbourne noted.

The preliminary report includes an inventory of the problems and opportunities of the area in people, agriculture, recreation, water, minerals, industry and public and private institutions.

When completed, the entire survey is expected to cost some $250,000.

In the development of water resources, the TVA favors construction of multi-use dams and impoundment for flood control, recreation, municipal and industrial use, Kilbourne said.

Committee members attending the session Tuesday were Edney, Masburn, B. W. Thomason of Brevard, F. C. Green of Haywood County, Thomas H. Sawyer of Weaverville, Chairman Coke Candler of the Buncombe County Board of Commissioners, Asheville City Manager J. Weldon Weir and George M. Stephens of Asheville.

The board also approved participation of its seven colleges in the Higher Education Facilities Act Congress passed last year. The vote, by a 37-12 margin, followed a 1 1/2-hour discussion. The Rev. Mr. Ferguson was a principal spokesman against the proposal.

Both measures had the backing of the Baptist State Council on Christian Education.

The act passed by Congress enables the federal government to provide one-third of the cost of certain campus buildings.

Earlier, at the final session of the meeting at Fruitland Baptist Assembly near Hendersonville, the board approved creation of two new staff positions — an administrative assistant to the general secretary-treasurer and a statistical secretary.

The work of the assistant to Dr. W. Perry Crouch will be primarily in the field of pastor-church relationships. The position will be filled at a later date.

they were checked off as voting in the precinct registration book. Ponder's attorneys tried to discredit Ramsey's testimony with witnesses who said Ramsey was disorderly at the poll and quoted him as saying: "The Communists are trying to take over."

Norton's lawyers say they have already proven enough boxes should be disqualified to have the election reversed. They indicated, however, they would call witnesses from other precincts when hear-

Concerning Walnut Post Office

Walnut, N. C.
 July 16, 1964
 Postmaster General
 Post Office Department
 Washington 25, D. C.
 Dear Sir:

We wish to strongly protest the proposal to do away with the Walnut, N. C. Post Office by establishing a rural route out of Marshall, N. C., post office to serve the area and reducing the Walnut post office to a rural station.

The destruction of the identity of this community and the elimination of postal service to which this community is entitled, is politically motivated and is a backlash of the destruction of the Walnut School two years ago by the political bosses who have recently brought nationwide publicity and shame to the county after having been exposed in their political conduct.

We understand that some residents have agreed to this proposal as a way to get rid of the present Acting Postmaster at Walnut who is a resident of Marshall. The majority of the patrons of the Walnut postoffice including some patrons who have agreed to the proposal as a means of getting rid of the non-resident Acting Postmaster, prefer that the Post Office Department permit some of the local people who have offered to build a post office here to do so, and put a Postmaster in the office who resides at Walnut. If a rural route is necessary it should be established at the Walnut post office.

We further understand that the Acting Postmaster at Marshall endorses the proposal on behalf of his political bosses. This man has already fired two employees in the Marshall post office for political considerations and who were returned to duty by the Civil Service Commission. The Post Office Department in Washington ordered this Acting Postmaster's removal nearly two years ago... but he has been retained because of the political pressures of these political bosses.

The present Acting Postmaster at Walnut has done his utmost to lower the status of the post office so that it could be eliminated. His belligerent attitude toward the patrons of the office; his refusal to use clerical assistance in the office and requiring the patrons to hunt him in order to get service. We agree that we should have a new post office, which has been offered by the community. The Walnut post office was established in 1906 and we have had satisfactory service with a resident postmaster until the present political machinery has seen fit to take over and ruin the community and county.

It is requested that proper postal authorities meet with the patrons of this post office en masse to obtain the views of the patrons on the proposal and to have exposed the true political motivations of this proposal.
