It can sustain us in time of great tribulation; bowed in grief, or troubled beyond human endurance, it is then our faith comes to the fore. We turn to God for help, and if we put ourselves in His hands without reservations of any kind, He invariably responds. We gain a new dimension of strength and endurance; we are comforted, and know an inner peace that is an armour to our souls. We come through our period of despondency a stronger, more understanding person — a better servant of the Lord, and someone worth knowing.

All of us live by faith of one kind or another; even the atheist has his belief in his non-belief. But let us not squander our potentials by practicing a non-active faith; that is more deadly a sin than atheism. Let us practice an active faith, for our actions determine whether we are passive in our acceptance of our beliefs, or ardent.

International Sunday School Lesson for JANUARY 2, 1966

WHAT IT MEANS TO BELIEVE

Memory Selection: "To all who received him, who believed in his name, he gave power to become children of God." — (John 1:12). Lesson Text: Matthew 8:5-13; Acts 16:25-34; Hebrews 11:1-6; James 2:18-26; 1 Peter 3:15. Today, as we start a brand new year, we would do well to reflect on the year that is gone, our mistakes and shortcomings, and then consider the year that lies ahead, and make a firm resolve to rectify our failures in the past. In this connection, there is no better place to begin than to examine our beliefs and our faith, because certainly this is a very personal matter; what we innately believe, and whether or not we have a live, assertive, practicing faith (or an innately dormant one) is the sum total of us as a person. Note that "belief" and "faith" are not necessarily one and the same. Our beliefs represent our viewpoints or our convictions. Faith goes deeper — right to the core of our very souls. As Christians we believe in God, in Christ, in the Crucifixion, in the Resurrection — and in life after death. If we are true Christians, we add the faith that makes the difference. We practice actively what we believe, and we take many forms to demonstrate that FAITH.

We attend church regularly, and draw from that attendance sustenance for our souls as we battle our way through our workday world, with all its conflicts and tensions. Such inner strength will not come to those who go through the outward motions of church attendance alone. We believe that Jesus truly went to prepare a place for us in His Father's house, and we strive valiantly with our lives in order that we may avail ourselves of the glorious promise that He made to us as he suffered and died. And, believing, we recognize with humility of spirit the greatness of the faith of the Centurion as depicted in our Scripture for today. The soldier knew that Jesus did not have to actually set foot in his home in order to cure his paralyzed servant; his faith was so great, so impressive, that he knew Jesus had but to command and a cure would be effected. Such a faith can move mountains; it is certainly such a personal thing that it can inspire us to reach unbelievable heights, and accomplish deeds that, on the face of it, seem impossible.
