NEWS OF HEALTH

Good News For Aged
People are living longer and have more leisure time to enjoy the activities so often put off during the rush of year spent at raising families and full-time jobs.
But in later years many people have less physical stamina. They may suffer a loss of appetite and withdrawal from the very activities they now have time for.
These symptoms may be partially due to a depletion of vitamin-mineral stores. To deal with this situation, scientists have come up with a wealth of products. One, for instance, helps people make the most of foods they eat to help renew vitality. It may spark the appetite, particularly when taken before meals. In cases of marginal vitamin-mineral shortages, it helps supplement the diet. Interestingly, to motivate people to take the liquid regularly, it has a tasty sherry wine base.
Wisely, doctors know that even this vitamin-mineral supplement called Gevabon is not a total answer. But with such supplements, plus the psychological stimulation of friends who encourage activity, the extra years and leisure people have can mean a lot of extra pleasure.

Accidents in home cut by safety glass

By LEROY POPPE, NEW YORK (UPI)—Although 20 states now have laws requiring safety glazing in shower and tub enclosure, glass doors, storm doors and wall panels or partitions in homes, most of these laws didn't go on the books before 1969.
And although many contractors voluntarily put safety glazing into these areas, the Consumers Safety Glazing Committee says there are hundreds of thousands of older homes with shower stalls, glass doors and the like made of dangerous ordinary glass.
Such glass hazards in homes and other buildings cause 225,000 accidents a year, some of them fatal. The worst thing, the committee says, is that 40 percent of the accident victims are children under 15.
It only costs $50 to $100 more to put safety glazing in an old home's danger spots with safety glazing.

But the committee says even then the cost is trivial compared with the cost of a single accident.
There are four kinds of safety glazing:
Polycarbonate rigid plastic made by Rowland Products, Inc., of Kensington, Conn., and General Electric Co. It is 250 times as strong as even laminated safety glass.
Acrylic plastic, made by Rohm & Haas, Inc., of Pittsburgh, under the name Plexiglas. It is five to 20 times as strong as laminated safety glass, according to thickness.
Tempered glass, which is five times as strong as laminated glass.
Laminated glass—the common automobile windshield glass, which is several times stronger than common flat glass.
None of these will break up into big shards with murderous cutting edges if people walk or fall into them. Tempered glass must be made to size at the factory before it is tempered. The others can be cut and trimmed on the job. Polycarbonate is the most costly but its expense is more than justified where the risk is high or there is a vandalism peril.
The committee said transparent glass in dangerous areas always should be decorated with decals so people will see it.
