HOME BUYER CLINIC
By Richard H. Howlett
President-Elect
American Land Title Association

Unpredictable Hazards

When buying a home, it is virtually impossible to predict whether unforeseen developments from the near or distant past will arise to adversely affect your ownership. Purchasers in New York learned this recently when former owners of their real estate began legal action to void the sale and reclaim the property which had originally been lost through a mortgage foreclosure. In court proceedings, the former owner who held title to the property claimed that the required legal papers had never been served upon her — and she alleged that her husband had intercepted mortgage checks she mailed. The former owner also said she did not know her husband had been served with papers in the action. After additional proceedings, the court ruled in favor of the purchasers currently in title. Although they successfully defended their ownership against this land title challenge, the purchasers then were faced with paying legal fees. Fortunately, the purchasers had obtained owner's title insurance at the time they bought the property. Through the protection of their owner's title policy, the title company paid for the expense of defending the title and the purchasers were spared a financial loss. The time to learn about purchasing real estate and taking precautions is before you buy. For free information on the subject, write American Land Title Association, Box 566, Washington, D.C.

NEWS OF ENERGY

NADER CHALLENGED

Six young scientists with environmental credentials have challenged Ralph Nader's position that there should be a moratorium on nuclear power plants. The six charge that Nader is using scare tactics and disseminating factual errors to advance his view. The six, whose average age is 28, are Dr. Ian A. Forbes, Chairman, Department of Nuclear Engineering, Lowell Technological Institute; Marc W. Goldsmith, nuclear engineer, Dr. Joseph P. Kearney, nuclear scientist, Dr. Andrew C. Kadak, nuclear engineer, Dr. Joe C. Turnage, nuclear scientist, and Dr. Gilbert J. Brown, nuclear engineering instructor. They have each belonged to various environmentalist groups, including the Union of Concerned Scientists and the Natural Resources Defense Council. These young nuclear power experts firmly disagree with Nader, they say, because nuclear energy is more than acceptable as an ultimate answer to the energy crisis and is, in fact, preferable to coal or oil. According to spokesman Forbes, the viable energy choices for the next 25 years are coal, oil, and nuclear. But both coal and oil prices have risen so rapidly that electricity generated by them now costs nearly two thirds more than electricity generated by nuclear fuel. And, he points out, nuclear power is also verifiably clean and has a perfect safety record. Any moratorium on construction of nuclear plants, therefore, would deprive the country of an important source of electric power, Forbes adds, at a time when we are striving for energy self-sufficiency.

COMMODITY BOOM

Whether you have a lot of money to invest or just a little, you'll want to know how to make it grow faster. Commodity trading — where small and large investors alike may constructively employ investment and risk capital by choosing from a wide variety of liquid, viable markets — is a booming field with proven methods, strategies and techniques of profitable trading and investing that perceptive persons can learn and utilize. Commodity trading deals in options, silver bullion, silver coins, foreign exchange, and other investment potentials. There's money to be made by smart investors — investors who know what they're doing, exactly what their money is worth and how much it can grow, given the right knowledge and the right choices. You can receive free information on commodity trading, including a complimentary copy of the internationally known "Commodity Journal," by writing to: Arthur N. Economou, President, American Association of Commodity Traders, 286-A Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10001. Who knows? You may find out that there exists within yourself a real tycoon!
