Mother's Hollyhocks

By A. J. DUNLAP

There's a hollyhock down by the gate
 All aflame in the warm summer air,
 And the fair hand is withered with age
 That so carefully planted it there.
 When she's gone from the old family circle,
 In the quiet repose of the tomb
 Here'll be beautiful memories of mother
 When the hollyhocks burst into bloom.

There are wonderful flowers of the spirit;
 Lovely blossoms with petals of gold
 That will bloom in our memories forever.
 When the bubbles of life are grown old,
 We'll remember her singing at twilight,
 Rock of Ages and Never Alone.

By the temple not builded with hands
 And angels around the white throne,
 And she planted the red rose of courage
 In our hearts with an infinite care.

With the daisies of kindness and mercy,
 And the blue bells of penitent prayer.

Though our lives may be troubled and limited,
 To love that is goodness of God
 Is a wonderful fruit of the Holy Spirit
 Which the prophets foretold.
