

Heard And Seen

By POP

With all the bad news these days, it's refreshing to see and hear of good things going on. For instance at the recent VICA convention in Wilmington, Tim Metcalf, Ronald Rice and Keith Flynn of Madison High School, won top honors in the entire state... (writeup elsewhere in this issue). In addition to the VICA honors, I became more aware of the splendid work Jack Cole and Garland Woody and staff are doing with the Vo-Ag Education program at Madison High... more than 22 individual FFA awards were presented students as well as team and chapter awards, including local, district and state honors. (writeup of FFA Banquet in this issue)... Garland invited me to the classroom to see the trophies last Friday and I was amazed to see so many beautiful trophies... in fact, so many, all of them haven't been placed on the wall. Congratulations to the VICA and FFA members at Madison High for their achievements... everyone is proud, also, of the Madison High Band, under the direction of Bill Stell... he (Stell) has done a remarkable job as band director for several years and the accomplishments in music by the students will be an asset throughout their lives... other outstanding accomplishments at Madison High point to a continuing program which we can be proud... congratulations to David Wyatt, the faculty and coaches and the entire Madison High School personnel.

Mrs. Mrs. W. T. McKinney Is Hostess To Book Club

Mrs. W.T. McKinney was hostess to the Marshall Book Club on May 21. Following the business session during which Mrs. James Story, president, presided in celebration of the 75th anniversary of the founding of the Ford Motor Co. The Cars That Henry Ford Built by Beverly Rae Kimes. Much was written about Henry Ford during his lifetime and historians are still searching for the real man in the different perspective that only time affords. Some writers gave him only scathing criticism, others adulatory praise; only now is he emerging as simply a man, at the same time an extraordinary human being, neither godlike nor satanic as he was sometimes pictured, the man who put America on wheels. Beverly Kimes in her book has used a different approach in examining the man and his times: in the context of the cars he built and the environment within and without the company in which they were produced. "How like Henry they were through the years", she says. "This in itself is not unusual, a strong personality always places his individual imprint on his creation. Henry Ford probably mirrored his cars more accurately than any other single individual in the history of the industry, ad vice versa. His cars were Henry." Though seeking objectivity, the author admits to painting a sympathetic portrait, a tribute to the man and what he created. Members attending were Mrs. J.L. Baker, Mrs. Corbett, Mrs. P.R. Elam, Mrs. O.A. Gregory, Mrs. J.L. McElroy, Mrs. McKinney, Mrs. R.R. Ramsey, Mrs. Walter Ramsey, Mrs. Story and Mrs. E.C. Teague. Mrs. Marjorie Chandler was a guest. Mrs. R.R. Ramsey will host the June meeting, with Mrs. P. R. Elam presening the program.

Care Of Blueberries

By WILEY DuVALL
Agricultural Extension Agent

At the time of setting, blueberry plants should be cut back sufficiently to remove all fruit buds. After one growing season, prune during the winter to remove weak and bushy growth. Cut back the remaining shoots to remove one-half of the fruit buds. Pruning in later years consists of removing brushy growth, moderate thinning and tipping back of the fruiting shoots to leave five or six fruit buds.

After newly set plants start growing in the spring, apply one level tablespoon of a special azalea fertilizer or 10-10-10 in a circle one foot in diameter around each plant. Repeat this application twice at six week intervals the first year. Gradually increase the fertilizer each year, still making three applications until a total of one pint is being used the fifth year.
