

30 Mars Hill Seniors Named To Who's Who

Thirty seniors from Mars Hill College have been selected for Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities, according to associate dean for academic affairs Robert R. Chapman. These seniors were nominated by a panel of 15 students and five faculty members using the following criteria: participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship.

The students will receive their certificates of recognition during Honors Day activities this spring. The Who's Who program has annually honored outstanding campus leaders for over 45 years. Since 1934, Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities has furthered the aims of higher education by rewarding and recognizing individual excellence on a national level.

With the support of over 1,000 colleges and universities in all sections of the nation, this program reflects the caliber of the American college student. In addition to having their singular accomplishments presented in the 1979-80 edition of Who's Who, the student members of the program are entitled to use the special reference placement service maintained for the exclusive assistance of students seeking post-graduate employment of
