

Laurel Med Center Ready To Render Services

Dedication ceremonies were held Friday, and now the $170,000 Laurel Medical Center is officially ready to offer almost a dozen different services to close to a third of the county's population.

Coordinated by the Hot Springs Health Program these services are also offered at the Marshall-Walnut and Hot Springs centers, but the Laurel center's importance is in extending these services to a largely populated area of the county.

The schedule of the personnel providing these services at Laurel and the other centers can be obtained by contacting any of the clinics, according to spokesmen for the HSHP. The services now offered at the Laurel facility are:

MEDICAL — Management and therapy of acute and chronic illnesses and minor trauma. Referrals to specialist will also be made through the office.

LABORATORY — Routine procedures including blood count, urinalysis, blood clotting times, cultures, blood sugars, cholesterol and kidney function tests. Less routine tests will be sent off to a reference lab with results obtainable usually the following day.

INSURANCE — Assistance in completing medical insurance forms.

PHARMACY — Dispensing of the most commonly used drugs.

HEALTH EDUCATION — Special sessions to aid in better understanding and dealing with a chronic illness and other health problems. First Aid classes and special talks to community groups.

FAMILY PLANNING — Information and eligibility determination for family planning services will be offered in conjunction with the Department of Social Services.

MENTAL HEALTH — Counseling for problems related to stress, family or job tensions, and "nerves."

Counseling will be offered on a weekly basis.

HOME HEALTH — Home visits by specially trained nurses and aids for patients homebound by their illnesses.

SOCIAL WORK — Assistance relating to the management of medical, financial or family problems.

NUTRITION — Through the Health Department, a visiting nurse will conduct special sessions to discuss diets that may be helpful in best managing certain chronic illnesses.

TRANSPORTATION — Rides to and from the Medical Center several times a week and to Asheville and back on Fridays on the Health Program vans.

In addition to the new Laurel Medical Center, the Hot Springs Health Program has two relatively new staff persons to contribute their services to the center and the program.

Dr. Gary Sollazzo, psychologist, will be working in the mental health services offered by the HSHP at all three medical centers. A native of Iowa, Dr. Sollazzo received his doctorate degree in psychology at the University of Maryland at College Park, and his Masters of Social Work at the University of Maryland at Baltimore. He has worked in geriatrics and with children in counseling.

Dr. Tim Sizemore, dentist, has worked in the HSHP since early August. Dr. Sizemore is a native of Augusta, Ga. where he attended Augusta College. He also attended the University of South Carolina and he received his degree in dentistry from the Medical University of Charleston.

Sizemore previously worked in public health in Columbia, S.C. before coming to Madison County.

Parking Situation Greatly Improves

By KEN EDWARDS

The parking situation that's been plaguing merchants and shoppers in downtown Marshall for some time "has improved tremendously," according to Marshall Police Chief Bill Lisenbee.

"The people have been very cooperative — well, most of them," Lisenbee said, referring to employees and various people who have been using street parking spaces during working hours.

"As far as I know, there has been only one ticket issued," Lisenbee said. He added it didn't take issuing parking citations to solve the problem, only the help of the townspeople.

Lisenbee now thinks "the people understand what the problem is." He stated he is grateful to the people for their cooperation, and "I hope it continues."

The Marshall merchants and the police department went before the town Board of Aldermen earlier this month complaining that too many employees, government workers and "daily visitors" were monopolizing the parking spaces downtown, preventing shoppers from patronizing local businesses. The merchants and the police asked for the aldermen's full backing in issuing tickets and clearing up the problem.

EMPTY PARKING SPACES were seldom seen in downtown Marshall before the merchants and police department brought the matter of all-day parkers to the attention of the Board of Aldermen. This was the scene near the Post Office last Friday at 1:35 p.m.

Rep. Ramsey Critical Of 'Quota System'

N.C. House Representative Liston B Ramsey of Marshall and State Senator Harold Hardison of Lenoir County voiced strong criticism against a system the Highway Patrol is using to evaluate trooper performance. But, Gov. Jim Hunt denied last week that a patrolman's pay is based on the number of tickets he writes.

Ramsey and Hardison said they are opposed to what they see as setting a "quota system" for a trooper's pay raises and promotions.

Ramsey, who will be the next speaker of the House, said he has felt the Highway Patrol required troopers to meet quotas in writing tickets for year, but "this is the first time they've admitted it."

Burley Mitchell, secretary of crime control and public safety, has defended the system. He said the system will not set quotas for tickets. Gary Pearce, Hunt's press secretary, said last Thursday the system has been in operation for about a year, and has been misrepresented by its critics.

"It's not a quota system. It's based on a program we are using throughout state government, and is only one of 13 factors that they look at," Pearce said.

Pearce said the other factors used in evaluating patrolmen include how many times a trooper renders assistance to motorists, how many accidents are investigated, how clean he keeps his patrol car and his personal appearance.

As far as ticket writing is concerned, the overall picture in a county is looked at closely. For example, Pearce said if a county has six troopers and four of them are writing between 25 and 30 tickets a month, another is handing out only five tickets, and the sixth is ticketing 75 motorists, the latter two will be closely watched.

"It works both ways — too little or too many," Pearce said. It's one of a number of things they look at to try to determine whether somebody is doing their job. And it's particularly important to the patrol, because everybody knows in the past all promotions and raises were based on whether or not you have a friend in the colonel's office."

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green has said he would bring the matter before the Governmental Operations Committee, which he chairs.

"I think we'll probably be taking a look at it," Green said of the evaluation system. He said he doubts the system is in the state's best interests.

100 Attend Medical Center Dedication

By SUSAN Y. EDWARDS

Over 100 people, along with several local dignitaries, attended the formal dedication ceremonies of the Laurel Medical Center held Friday on the lawn of the Belva Baptist Church.

"A dream has now become a reality," said Louie Zimmerman as he opened the ceremonies. The community was pleased with its new $170,000 medical center which will take the place of a two story white house that was being used for their medical facility. Funding for the center came from contributions by community members along with the Appalachian Regional Commission and other grants.

President and chairman of the board, Tom Wallin said he was very proud of the community which came through with over $20,000. He said 102 people each contributed $100 or more to the funding of the new facility. Wallin said the new medical center, along with the two located in Hot Springs and Marshall-Walnut, would accommodate somewhere in the neighborhood of 16,000 families. Each center, however, operates independently.

Wallin added that at one time the area had only one doctor who rotated but now there was one physician at each of the three stations.

Liston Ramsey, N.C. House representative from Madison County, said the construction of the facility was "a real team effort." He offered his congratulations to the people who gave their time and money to the building of the center.

Ramsey, who uses the medical center at Marshall-Walnut himself, said he hoped people would make full use of the new facility because it would enable the community to have the finest medical care without having to make trips to Asheville or Greenville, Tenn.

The keynote speaker was Al Smith, chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission. Smith said he first came to Madison County in April, while the clinic was still under construction. He saw the enthusiasm shown by the people of the community and was very impressed and decided to come back for the official dedication ceremonies.

While talking with Gov. Jim Hunt last week, Smith said they both agreed that the N.C. health program was one of the best in the world. According to Smith, too many children die in rural America because of health care. "Rural America is where it's all at as far as I'm concerned."

In his speech, Smith said he felt that two things most important to Madison County were to give young people the opportunity to live in Madison County and raise their children here if they want to and to help young people as they grow to receive skills so they can have careers elsewhere if they desire to do so. Smith added, "We want to have strong, sturdy, vibrant kids."

"I believe we have built the best medical center in this part of the state," said Michael Norrins, director of the Hot Springs Health Program. (Continued on Page 3)

Accident Claims Life Of Marshall Resident

A 32 year old Marshall woman was pronounced dead shortly after arriving at Mission Memorial Hospital in Asheville late Sunday night following what appeared to be a single car accident in Marshall.

Penny Greene Haynie received fatal injuries when the 1978 Mercury she was driving left the road and traveled down an embankment on Highway 25-70 Business just south of Hayes Run Road at approximately 10 p.m. Sunday night.

Officer Lawrence Brady of the Marshall Police Department said the accident was reported to the sheriff's department at 10:01 p.m.

Investigating the accident for the police department, Brady said the Haynie vehicle was traveling north on 25-70, and skid marks measuring 130 feet indicated the car swerved to the left side of the road and traveled approximately 85 feet before hitting and uprooting a tree. The car continued down a steep bank and came to rest about 40 feet from the railroad track below the highway.

Brady said Ms. Haynie was the only occupant of the vehicle, and that it appeared the car was traveling at a normal rate of speed.

Investigation of the accident is still continuing, according to Brady.

Rain Sends 'Riverfest' Floating

Heavy gray clouds hovered over Marshall Saturday morning threatening to dump rain on the participants of the 'Riverfest' on the island at the Marshall Elementary School.

The activities got underway at 11 a.m. with a larger than usual number of vendors showing up for the Saturday morning flea market. Mrs. Lewis Rudisil pleaded with a bystander to do something to keep the rain away. "I've already loaded this stuff back in the van one time this morning because of a shower, and I don't want to do it again," she said.

Curiously seekers and bargain hunters strolled among the vendors wares awaiting the rest of the day's activities connected with the week-long French Broad River Week celebration.

During the morning hours, most of the activity centered around Joe Penland Jr.'s tent where he had set up arts and crafts from his Turnpike Gallery. The main drawing card at Penland's "outdoor craft shop" seemed to be the impromptu music session provided by area musicians who would stop by, pick up a guitar or banjo and pick a tune or two.

Bill Cummings

from the Walnut area, and Louie Estler on banjo formed the core of the bluegrass and old time jam session while Penland would take time from selling his goods to add rhythmic guitar to the group.

Stations at flooded out from under the tent and caught the attention of both children and old timers as they milled about the island.
