

Girls Basketball Players Receive Invitation To Play In Europe

A team of Madison High School girls' basketball players has been invited to play in a summer basketball tournament next year in Europe. The Lady Patriots will compete in a series of games with teams from England, France and Italy during their two-week tour of Europe.

During the tour, games will be scheduled against foreign opposition in London, Paris and Rome. The 25-member Lady Patriot squad will be accompanied by several dozen parents and head coach Ricky McDevitt. The Lady Patriots and two other American teams will compete in the tournament against the European high school teams.

Ricky McDevitt told reporters that the invitation to compete was an honor for Madison High School. "Madison High School was chosen because of the strength of our program and the ability of our girls. The committee looked at our players' academic grades as well as our playing record. They weren't looking for a powerhouse team. They were looking for girls who could represent the United States overseas."

McDevitt said that the team will be conducting a series of fund-raising efforts throughout the year to offset the costs of the 14-day tour. The coach said that more than $40,000 will have to be raised to cover the costs of transportation, uniforms and meals for the players. Parents accompanying the team will pay their own expenses.

A meeting to discuss the fund-raising effort will be held at Madison High School on June 5. Anyone interested in helping in the effort to send Madison's Lady Patriots to Europe is invited to attend. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for these girls," McDevitt said. "The tournament itself is only part of the tour. The kids will also have the chance to see many places of great cultural and educational value. The side trips to places like the Coliseum in Rome and the Louvre in Paris are all part of the tour. It gives American kids and European kids the chance to get to know more about each other."

Main Street Program Expanded

The North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development has announced that its Main Street program has been expanded to include small towns. Application are now being accepted from towns and cities with less than 50,000 residents.

Five more North Carolina towns will be added to the Main Street program Sept. The goal of the Main Street program, administered by the NRCD's Division of Community Assistance, is to encourage revitalization within the contexts of historical preservation. To participate in the program, a municipality must agree to hire a full-time project manager for two years and to cover expenses for the manager's training. Designated Main Street cities receive no state or federal funds for the program. North Carolina cities taking part in the program include Tarboro, New Bern, Shelby, Salisbury, Wilson, Statesville and Morganton.

Women Around The World To Gather In Mars Hill

Women community leaders from around the world will be gathering from August 27 to September 13, for an exchange entitled "Rethinking Development: An International Exchange Among Women Community Leaders." The participants will be at Mars Hill College for a week-long forum from September 1 through 6.

The exchange will bring together women leaders from the U.S. and developing countries to devise strategies from the community perspective on how to serve the basic human and economic needs of food, clothing, shelter, and health care. Participants will explore compelling human problems and share ideas, skills, and projects to creatively solve problems.

cultural understanding, particularly from a community base. It believes that local approaches are the best way to generate new thinking at higher levels of planning and policy formulation in the field of development. The exchange will be a three-phase experience for the participants this summer. The first phase will be on-site visits to key rural and urban communities across the U.S., which will be hosted by carefully chosen organizations at the local level. Here, they will meet women with concerns resembling their own, benefiting from the experience of projects that have met with success. The second part of the three-part summer event will be a forum at Mars Hill College. Here, the participants will be joined by economists, technologists, futurists, church leaders, business leaders, and media representatives for intensive working sessions which will bridge cultural diversities, improve leadership and communication skills, provide information and project sharing, and offer training sessions that can be used at the local level. The final part of the exchange will be a visit to Washington, D.C. to meet with individuals and organizations involved in global economic development to discuss issues critical to community economic development. For additional information concerning the forum at Mars Hill College, contact The Center for Continuing Education, Mars Hill College, Mars Hill, N.C. 28754, telephone 689-1166. For further information about In Our Way, write them at 2437 Fifteenth Street, Washington, D.C. 20006.

Something of this magnitude represents a first for Madison County, but to make this trip a reality, the young ladies will need help from the community."

The Tiller That's Really a Walk-Behind Tractor

BCS tillers do a lot more than till. Because the tiller unit can be replaced by a lot of other implements. Like the snow blower, or a lawn mower. Or a sickle-bar cutter. And it only takes a few minutes to make the change. But you really have to see it to appreciate it.

Come in and check out this mechanical masterpiece. Ask to see the BCS in action.

COUPON COOKBOOK CORNER

Eating healthy food is "in". Vegetables are "in". And being thin is "in". To help you accomplish all of these, use vegetables as much as possible and cut down on red meats. Medical experts are now telling us that increasing our vegetable consumption may actually add healthy years to our lives. Be aware that the low calorie and low fat benefits of vegetables are frequently lost by adding flavor enhancers as butter and most margarines. For the calorie and cholesterol conscious, Weight Watchers™ Margarine has 50% less fat and calories than regular margarine and is high in polyunsaturated fats. When frying, prevent the margarine from burning by starting in a cool to medium pan. These carrots are delicious as an accompaniment to other vegetable and meat dishes.

•USE COUPON BELOW•
