

Mars Hill College To Offer Fall Elderhostel Classes

Mars Hill College, one of the first schools in Western North Carolina to sponsor an Elderhostel program, will offer a special three session Fall Elderhostel at the school in September and October.

Elderhostel is a program for older citizens based on the youth hostels of Europe, which provide inexpensive lodging for young tourists and educational experience offered on college campuses. Participants in Elderhostel live in college residence halls, take their meals in the college cafeteria, and participate in a class taught by college faculty.

The program began several years ago as a regional program and has spread to international proportions. Mars Hill has sponsored an Elderhostel program for eight summers and began an experimental fall program last year.

That program met with such success that the school will be offering three sessions on campus in September and October. The first session will be Sept. 29-Oct. 5, and will feature three classes in Appalachian subjects: "Autumn Comes to Appalachia" will be led by botanist Don McLeod and will examine the biogeography of the region, enhancing the fall color spectacle of the mountains; "Family, Kinship, and Politics in Southern Appalachia" will focus on the ways family and kinship patterns have shaped and influenced the political, religious, and educational developments in mountain communities and will be taught by Dr. Don Anderson, chairman of the Division of Social and Behavioral Sciences; "Fotched-On Women" will be the third class and will explore the turn-of-the-century reform movement in the Southern Mountains with an emphasis on the personalities of the women missionaries who launched a host of educational, handicraft, and religious activities. The instructor will be Polly Cheek, and adjunct faculty member and local historian.

The second session will be October 6-12. The three classes included during this week center around subjects that are uniquely American. These classes include the following: "Walt Whitman and William Carlos Williams: In Search of an American Idiom," will be taught by Dr. Pat Verhulst and will focus on the efforts of these two poets to cast aside the impediments of English literary tradition and their pursuit of a distinctive American idiom and style: "America In Our Times," will be taught by Dr. James Lenburg and will examine social issues and political trends which divided our country during the cold war, the civil rights years, and the decade of the so-called "me generation;" "American Values in Film," will be taught by Dr. George Peery and will review popular movies as both mirrors of American culture as well as harbingers of change.

The final session will be held Oct. 13-19, and will feature three unique classes. The first will be "The Cold War and Contemporary Soviet Society," taught by Dr. David Knisley. This class will explore the recent re-emergence of cold war sabre-rattling between the US and the Soviet Union as part of a broader review of the utopian dreams and historical realities that have shaped contemporary Russian society.

"Mind over Math" will be the second class. Taught by Susan Kiser, this examination of mathematical paradoxes is surprisingly entertaining and fascinating. Explanations of problems are sure to provoke discussion because they often fly in the face of common sense and intuition.

The final class is "Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald: The Asheville Years." Taught by Dr. Pat Verhulst, this class is a comprehensive examination of Fitzgerald's "The Great Gatsby," "The Last Tycoon," and "The Break Up," with his wife Zelda's "Save Me the Waltz," as well as examination of their use of Asheville as a refuge and retreat.

Cost for any of the three sessions is $195 and includes meals in the college cafeteria, a room in one of the college's residence halls, tuition, and all field trips.

Registration for any of the Mars Hill classes must be made through Elderhostel's main office in Boston, Mass. Information about registration and application forms are available by contacting Raymond C. Rapp, Director, The Center for Continuing Education, Mars Hill College, Mars Hill, NC 28754, telephone 689-1166.

"Odell is the third Personal Banker I've had, and I've had good service from all of them."

John Hodge
Wachovia Customer

"I've banked with Wachovia for 14 years. It's not like at some banks where you go in and feel like you're on the edge of your seat. I don't go through the same routine of 'what's your name, where do you work, who's your mother' every time I need something done.

"With my Personal Banker, I can get down to the nitty-gritty. If I want to buy a car, he'll say, 'Here's what it's going to take,' versus 'Fill out this form, and fill out this form.'

"My Personal Banker knows me as an individual... knows what I've done in the past and what I'm planning to do in the future.

"The mere fact that I have someone I can talk to individually makes the difference to me."
