Grand Opening Sunday

Although grand opening ceremonies for the new Roses Store in Weaverville Plaza aren't scheduled until Sunday, the 54,000 square foot discount facility is now open for a "sneak preview."

Why would a major discounter want to be open before its grand opening? According to Harold Compton, senior vice president, operations and customers for Rose's Stores, Inc., it just makes sense. "It simply gives us a chance to train our associates under live conditions before we open the gate. And it allows us to get the bugs out of our systems and to make sure they're working right," Compton said.

In addition to helping store associates prepare for the formal opening, Compton said the Roses sneak preview actually is planned with the customer in mind.

"From the overall layout of our stores to our commitment to get shoppers through the registers promptly, we are focused on our customers and how we can make shopping more convenient," Compton said.

Sunday's grand opening will include several give aways and prizes. Among the prizes will be a $100 shopping spree, two $50 shopping sprees, an exercise bike, a 19-inch color TV, a video cassette recorder, a ladies bicycle, a mens bicycle, a vacuum cleaner, a black and white TV and a coffee-maker.

Jefferies To Manage Weaverville Roses

Rose's Stores, Inc., largest discount retail chain based in the Southeast, has named Ken W. Jefferies manager of its new Weaverville store.

Jefferies comes to Weaverville from Franklin, where he was manager of the Roses store located in the Macon County town.

His responsibilities include supervision of 119 Roses associates in the new 54,000 square-foot facility, which anchors Weaverville Plaza.

"We want our customers to know that we're here to serve them," said Jefferies. The company has committed to a "customer first" program that guarantees Roses will treat customers right, he said.

"The company's policy of satisfaction guaranteed is instilled in all Roses associates throughout their training," Jefferies said.

"We believe the customer is the boss. This is a company program but we really believe it," he said.

"We're in the business of providing our customers the first-quality merchandise they want to buy, as well as first-quality courtesy and convenience. That's how we hope to keep them coming back," he said.

Jefferies also said Roses makes every effort to ensure that advertised goods are in stock. "Our goal is to maintain 100 percent in-stock rate on advertised goods," he said.

A native of Birmingham, Ala., Jefferies is in the process of moving his family from Franklin to a new home in Weaverville.

The Jefferies family will be living in the Reems Creek community. Jefferies said the family is looking forward to living there.

"We didn't have a neighborhood in Franklin like the one at Reems Creek. We look forward to living in one," he said.

His family also includes Jefferies' wife, Lee Ann, who works for Blue Ridge Mental Health; a son, Kenny, 15; and a daughter, Kristie, 13.

Jefferies said his family has really liked the mountains of Western North Carolina since the move to Franklin. Jefferies said he enjoys the outdoors, and plans to tackle some of the area fishing holes.

Madison County General Store Opens

Steve Feingold stands outside the front of his new business, the Madison County General Store, located on the Marshall Bypass.

Steve Feingold has announced the opening of his new store, The Madison County General Store, located on the U.S. 25-70 Bypass across from the high school in Marshall.

The store carries a full line of sporting goods, guns and ammunition, hunting and camping and fishing supplies, rainwear, rubber boots, sport shoes, work boots, do-it-yourself needs, certain injectable animal medications, livestock supplies, horse tack, saddles and grooming needs, and rabbit and dog supplies.

The store will also make keys, and sell a variety of magazines. When state officials approve the store's application, it will offer tall men's clothing.

Leila Norton and Josephine Davis will be working at the store daily.

Feingold, who will be at the store as an active owner and manager, was raised nearby in Asheville.

He worked for the Army Store for many years until April when he opened a small horse specialty store in Weaverville for another owner. Feingold then decided to open his own store.

"We will stress customer service and the best values at the lowest possible prices," said Feingold.

Feingold said the store will be getting new merchandise daily for the next few months.

Feingold rides a registered wild horse, raises and trains dobermans and is active in endurance and national trail rides.

Madison County General Store will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday and Saturday. The store will be closed Sunday.

The store's telephone number is 649-9258.

In the extraordinary setting of Jupiter Hills, a classic new village is being created.

The tradition of excellence envisioned for Jupiter Hills by its founders, George Fazio, William Clay Ford, Bob Hope and William Elliot, is the cornerstone upon which a lovely new community is being created.

Under the watchful care of Thomas Matevia, who purchased Mr. Fazio's interests, the rolling land surrounding the Hills and Village Courses is being transformed into low-density clusters of private homes, none imposing on the sanctity of this marvelous natural setting.

These exceptional homes are entirely consistent with the excellence of the golf experience at this fine private golf club, which this year proudly hosts the U.S. Amateur Championship.
