DUNN, N. C., March 17th, 1915

NO. 50

JARVIS COUNTY MASS MEETING SATURDAY

Last Saturday afternoon at three o'clock a good crowd of the Jarvis county supporters met in mass meeting at the Metropolitan Theatre in Dunn to discuss the formation of the new county and to lay plans to carry the fight into the next campaign and legislature. While the attendance was not as large as it could have been a very enthusiastic meeting was the result. It was representative; there were people from nearly every part of the proposed county. Suggestive speeches from several of the leading men were made along the line of keeping the new county before the people and a committee was appointed to select sub-committees to carry on the work.

Judge C. J. Smith, of Dunn, called the meeting to order and announced its purpose. After making a few remarks he called on Attorney J. C. Clifford for a talk. Mr. Clifford recounted the history of Jarvis county; recounted the fight that had been made before the recent legislature and proved to the crowd that the new county advocates had every reason to be encouraged. He advanced several suggestions as to how the fight should be carried on. Among other things he said that the new county would be made an issue in the next campaign and legislative aspirants would have a platform favoring the new county. He suggested that all committees appointed heretofore be kept intact; that prospectuses and other advertising matter be printed and circulated among the public; that new committees necessary be appointed and set to work. His speech brought forth hearty applause.

Mr. T. H. Webb, of Duke, was called upon and made a short speech. He said that he was proud of the recent fight before the legislature and that he felt greatly encouraged over the prospects. He made a suggestion that when any advocate wrote a letter he ought by all means to mention Jarvis county, and that every man should talk the new county for all he could get. He suggested that the Jarvis county supporters should be organized into a league.

Mr. E. Lee commented on the fight that had been started and said that the new county was coming and all that was necessary was steady, consistent work in its favor. The next legislature, he said, would establish Jarvis county if everybody got behind the movement. Several of the Duke supporters were called upon for speeches. All signified that they were heart and soul behind the movement but that they were not speech-makers and did not make talks.

Sam Parker, one of Dunn's natural citizens, made a ringing speech for Jarvis county. There was a great deal of logic in his short talk and his wit caught the crowd. Nathan Barfoot, the Jarvis county war-horse, was called upon and his remarks were timely and enthusiastic. He is one of the heartiest supporters of Jarvis. His speech before the legislative committee a few weeks ago is now historic, and made him a celebrity overnight. He advocated the plan of asking every member of the Jarvis County Club to pay $1 and declared that he would pay a dollar for everyone of his sons. He also stated that he would give a prize of a suit of clothes to the man securing the largest number of members of the Jarvis County Club. He was generally applauded.

Attorney N. A. Townsend made a motion that a committee be appointed to select sub-committees to carry on active work of the new county movement. He said that this committee should use care and discretion in the selection of these sub-committees; that men should not be appointed who were not willing and anxious to work; that it mattered little whether a man had the ability or not; but that the principal requisite was willingness to sacrifice his time and money for the new county. Judge Smith put the motion and same was carried without a dissenting vote. Following Mr. Townsend's suggested list, he announced that the following men would compose the said committee: Messrs. A. F. Surles, J. C. Clifford, Thomas H. Webb, and Judge C. J. Smith. This committee's duties were to select the committees on publication, finance, boundary and the legislative committee, and any other necessary committee.

E. C. WEST, Principal

Sunday's papers carried dispatches announcing the death of Count Sergius Julovitch Witte, Russia's first prime minister, which occurred Friday night. He was known to the people of the United States on account of the fact that he was one of the Russian plenipotentiaries at the Portsmouth conference in 1905 to negotiate peace between Japan and Russia. He was one of Russia's greatest statesmen and was deeply interested in the country's manufacturing interests and railroads.

After everyone had been given an opportunity to talk and all business had been conducted, a motion was made to adjourn, and the crowd dispersed—to talk Jarvis until it became a reality.

STATE NEWS

The State Board of Education apportioned the school equalizing fund last Friday. Nearly one-half million dollars was distributed to the different counties in the State. The county of Harnett will receive $5,229.91.

Dr. Charles Wesley Bain, Professor of Greek at the University of North Carolina, died suddenly of heart failure Monday morning early at his home at Chapel Hill. He was considered one of the most able teachers in the country.

The big Holt-Morgan cotton mills at Fayetteville have closed down on account of scarcity of dyestuffs. Whether the mills will begin operation in the near future depends on the arrival of the proper colors from Germany. If the colors fail to show up in an expected shipment, the mills will remain inactive until German ports are opened.

Mr. Charles W. Gold, of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, of Greensboro, has recently returned from a business trip through the South. He states that the business conditions show a marked improvement in Georgia. He attributes it largely to the optimistic view taken by the farmers of that State. He says that they have gone on with their preparations with a hopeful view and that they are well up with their work.

Governor Craig has recently announced the names of those who will compose the State Highway Commission, as provided for by an act of the recent legislature. The following compose the personnel: Governor Craig and Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, ex-officio members; Prof. M. H. Stacy, of the engineering department of North Carolina; Professor W. C. Riddick, of the engineering department of the Agricultural and Mechanical College at Raleigh; E. C. Duggan, Republican, of eastern North Carolina; Col. Benjamin Cameron, for Central North Carolina; Guy V. Roberts, for western North Carolina.

BERTHDAY DINNER

Last Saturday, March 13th, was the eighty-fifth birthday anniversary of Dr. John A. McKay, who lived near Buie's Creek. In the celebration of this day a bounteous dinner was served at the home of Dr. Joe F. McKay, the oldest son, who lives near the home of the aged physician. Present at this dinner were all the children living and several of the grand children. The names follow: Dr. Joe F. McKay, wife and two children; Mr. Jno. A. McKay, wife and two children, Lucy and John, of Dunn; Mrs. M. B. Williams and son, Michael, of Dunn; Mrs. J. H. Crawford, of Duke; Mr. D. McN. McKay, of Asheville; Rev. E. J. McKay, of Kentucky.

Dr. John A. McKay is the only surviving member of a very distinguished family. His sister, Miss Isabella McKay, passed away only a few months ago. He lives to see all his children doing well and making their mark in the world's activities. Up until a few months ago his health was excellent, but this winter he suffered a rather severe attack of la grippe and, as a result, his health has not been what it was formerly.

NEWS LETTER FROM DUKE

Duke, N. C., March 16.—Monday night in the Erwin Hall a "Box of Monkeys" was presented to the Duke audience and was highly entertaining. This was a play and musical gotten up by local talent in Dunn and the people there were so thoroughly pleased with it that they decided to give it here. The receipts were divided with the school library fund here and the Methodist Church in Dunn. Such an entertainment was a credit to any community, and the Duke audience was thoroughly pleased and kept in a continuous roar of laughter.

The Right Rev. J. E. Cheshire, bishop of this diocese, preached at St. Stephens Episcopal Church Sunday night and after the services received in the church Miss Anna Lockman. The rector of St. Stephens, Rev. M. C. Dunca, was unable to attend services Sunday on account of illness, but was able to be there Tuesday.

Dr. J. C. Gibbs, presiding elder, held the second quarterly conference with the Methodist Church Sunday night and also preached at the usual hour. The pastor, preaching his report for the quarter, made very high tribute to the High School, stating that it was generally up-to-date in all its methods and measured by the standard set by the Methodist church was a credit to the community.

Rev. E. W. O'Brien, pastor of the Baptist church, has recently completed a religious journal of his town and will divide the same among all the members of the church and turn over to the church all the names of persons not belonging to any church having an inclination towards the same.

Sunday afternoon the hope of the bride, Miss L. O. O'Connell, was married to Mr. E. H. Ross, Jr., of E. Yorktown by the Rev. E. J. McKay, at the home of the bride's parents and with the usual religious services and happy wedding.

The supply merchant, Mr. W. C. Hunt, of Clayton, has been the verdict of the grand jury after weighing the affirmative arguments advanced by Mr. C. G. Stewart, of Brunswick county, and R. E. Price of Cleveland county. The negative arguments were presented by E. G. Joyner and M. J. Davis of Warren county.

The affirmative speakers admitted that the crop lien was a necessity in the days of land-poor and labor-poor just after the war; but contended that the crutch of those days had now become a cross. First the crop lien added poverty, said the affirmative. It kept the victim poor by exacting long profits and high interest rates for accommodation. It encouraged extravagance, wastefulness and irresponsibility; it discouraged the raising of home supplies and the development of thrift.

It is the main-stay of the one-crop, farm-tenancy, supply-merchant system of farming, which allows the farmer to create wealth year by year in cotton and tobacco but makes it impossible for him to retain it. It gives negro tenants an advantage over white tenants; as evidenced by the fact that more than half the farm owners in Warren county are negroes. Negro tenants live upon a lower level, stand the hardships better and rise out of tenancy into farm ownership oftener than white tenants.

The negative speakers contended that abolishing the crop lien affected more than half the farmers of the State, all the tenant farmers and most of the small farm owners; that it meant chaos and confusion in the business of 41 counties, mainly the cotton and tobacco counties of eastern North Carolina, where negro population and tenancy farming are main features in agriculture; that the landlords were not able to finance their tenants directly and without the crop tenants could not live. Farm labor would therefore be compelled to desert this region; and land values would be destroyed; that farming as a business would divide; that the cultivated area would decrease; that seventy-five million dollars of annual wealth in cotton and tobacco crops would be jeopardized, and that the commerce and trade of these counties would be thrown into a hopeless muddle.

It was admitted that the system was bad, but, said the negative, it cannot be safely abolished until a "rational economic substitute can be found. Rural credit associations are everywhere slow in developing strength and power. They could not be a main-stay for landless farmers within the next quarter of a century. —S. R. Whedee.

Dr. Charles W. Stiles, of the United States public health service and scientific secretary for the Rockefeller commission for the eradication of the hookworm disease, said in a recent address at Kenneha City that it was the hookworm and not disease and ill treatment that caused the deaths of 15,000 Union soldiers at Andersonville prison during the Civil War. He also made the statement that it was the hookworm and not overwork or "industrial conditions that caused the "pitiable condition of the children in the cotton mills of the South."

Some writers have ventured the statement that the numerous slides at Okefenokee will be of such constant occurrence that the Panama Canal will be practically useless for several months in the year and thus be a means of making the big ditch a partial failure. It is true that the canal is still in its experimental stage but Colonel Goethals and his assistants knew what they were about even if it was their first job and the American people will have no cause for regret in its vast expenditure of money for a passage-way from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

GENERAL NEWS

The Southern Railway directors, deciding Friday to suspend payment of dividends on preferred stock which is ordinarily payable in April.

Coloban Cut of the Panama canal is again clear after one of those now famous slides, which took place on March 6. There were 25 ships awaiting passage through the canal when it was declared open for traffic.

William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, was operated on for appendicitis at a Washington hospital last Friday. The operation was successful and the patient will be on the road to recovery in a few days.

Governor Yates, of Vermont, signed the prohibition referendum last Friday, and will leave it to the voters of that State to decide in March, 1916 as to whether they desired to substitute State-wide prohibition for local option.

Beginning in April the hands of every clock in Germany will be advanced one hour. It is estimated that one hour of earlier rising during the six months of summer will save $5,000,000 in petroleum. The reason for this is that the German stock of petroleum is running very low.

A late dispatch from Berlin says that the Russian authorities have accepted the German proposal for the exchange of soldiers who are physically unfit for further military service. The Germans made this suggestion last December, but until recently the Russian government had refused to accept it.

During the latter part of last week it is reported to be the biggest battle of the great European war engaged on both sides. The some of the fighting is in North Poland and the Germans are making desperate attempts to break the Russians, who are reported to be falling back. No definite result will be known for several days.

Newer, sprigged, methods for guarding against the loss of nationality in such cases have been suggested by the German officials.

John E. McKenna, a prominent American residing in Mexico City, was killed last Thursday when the Regate forces entered the city. He was originally a resident of Chicago.

It was reported that he was killed on account of his slaying three Zapata soldiers when those forces occupied the city some time ago. The American flag was flying over his house at the time of the murder.

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller died at her home in Tarrytown, N. Y., Friday morning. Mrs. E. Parmaleo Prentiss, a daughter, was the only immediate relative present. Mr. Rockefeller and his son were at Orlando, Florida, when the death occurred and engaged a special train to rush them to New York. Mrs. Rockefeller was 76 years old and her whole life was wrapped up in her husband and children. She was not a society woman.

Lincoln Beachy, probably the most famous aviator, plunged to his death Sunday while engaging in an exhibition fight at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The aviator was attempting a perpendicular drop and had succeeded in performing the feat but when he grasped the control levers to adjust the planes of his monoplane the wings crumpled and the machine and the aviator fell to his death in San Francisco Bay. Millions of people had seen Beachy perform, among them thousands of Tarheels.

MARCH AN UNHEALTHY MONTH

In late winter and early spring vitality is at low ebb. The death rate at this season, especially for the month of March, is decidedly high. It is at this time tuberculosis and pneumonia claim the greatest number of their victims and so do the diseases of the nervous and circulatory systems. Old people find it harder to resist disease now and look with dread to the season's approach.

Why is this? Is it a mental or a physical condition? What is its effect? Scientific investigation shows which is both a mental and a physical condition is a matter of no little import on efficiency and health. Professor Huntington of Yale University has recently made a careful study of the effects of the weather and seasons on the earnings of 500 operatives, engaged in piece-work in the factories of Connecticut. The results showed their earnings followed a regular seasonal curve, that their earnings were lowest in January, February and March, when they began to rise until June. In hot weather they fell again but reached their highest point in November. The same careful observation was made of 1,600 students at West Point and Annapolis and the figures showed the same thing, that the highest points of efficiency were in the fall and late spring and that lowest points were in hot weather and late winter.

The falling off of physical vitality in late winter must necessarily affect health and consequently the death rate. Unfortunately it affects the patent medicine business no little. In some states it furnishes a boom to the corner drug stores where spring tonics, elixirs and brooms are continuously sold across the counter. But nothing suffices in the meeting of this point of stringency like a strong bodily resistance. Perhaps the condition is poor from staying too much in doors in heated rooms, with too little fresh air and exercise during winter, or perhaps from a special strain from a season of hard work. In such cases the remedy is to build up the remaining power of the body. All excesses must be avoided. Anything that saps vitality makes a way for disease. Whoever would avoid the rigors of this season would do well to maintain a strong body and a bright outlook on life.

Japanese troops are occupying the northern part of China. The government officials of Japan are taking every advantage offered by the great European war to secure a permanent foothold in the Chinese republic. The troops are being sent ostensibly to act as a garrison. Owing to the great problems to be solved in the war some England has refrained from taking up the matter with other governments.

The putting-into-port of the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich during the latter part of last week has created much comment and diplomatic tangle. The ship came into Hampton Roads in need of repairs after one of the longest voyages ever undertaken by a vessel. The vessel sank many merchantmen of different nationalities, among them being the American ship, William P. Frye. Notes have been addressed to the German government by the United States authorities in regard to some satisfactory settlement, but at this writing no solution has been reached and the ship is still at anchor at Newport News.

Vice-President Marshall has struck the keynote in saying that those who wish war should be compelled to enlist in the army and put into the foremost rank in the first battle. There is no better way to rid the country of those who would bring on war than thus suggested. We venture to say that many rabid militarists would become ardent peace advocates in a surprisingly short time.
