GEORGE GARDNER HAS A MOST SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Sales of Dunn Traveler Amount to $208,888.07 for Last Year.

Beating his best previous year by 200,000 George W. Gardner, one of the leading salesmen in the state, has just completed his year's work in the Eastern half of North Carolina, according to complications just completed and sent to him by his house, O. Marks & Son of New Bern.

"This was the best year I've had in all the fourteen I have been traveling this territory," Mr. Gardner beamed in talking of the record. "And it is to my good friends in the Eastern half of North Carolina that I owe this success. I cannot say things too good for those merchants who have always saved an order for George. I wish I could see all of them right now and wish them the happiest new year of their existence." Mr. Gardner's best previous year was 1918. That, he thought, was a hummer. Never did he expect to equal it. But now, since he has beaten that record, he is going to start out in the Spring with the one piled up this year.

"Yesir," he says, "I am going out into the territory this year determined to clean up. All of the fellows might as well buy O. Marks shoes, for there are none better any where—and I am going to sell them to those who never bought before."

"I certainly do thank all of my friends for the support they gave me last year and I am going to do my best to show my appreciation by giving them as near perfect service as I can. All of those merchants who bought O. Marks shoes last year got full value and then some—added to that I want them to have the assurance of George Gardner's gratitude."

VOCATIONAL CULTURE

While it is now generally conceded that vocational subjects have an important place in the high school program of studies, it is becoming clearer day by day that we should consider even agricultural subjects from a standpoint not too narrowly vocational. To be sure, in agriculture we want to arouse the interest of boys in the every day problems of the farm and make them meaningful, but the teacher who aims to provide only such knowledge and skill as may be cashed in at the bank, without leaving them with a broader vision of life on the farm, and in the community, and of the possibilities for real satisfaction in country life, is hitting short of the mark. That is to say, we should organize and present our subject matter in such a way that it will function beyond what is ordinarily considered its vocational value. Agricultural subject matter is now so comprehensive and rich that there is plenty of opportunity for the teacher to use his resourcefulness in arousing intellectual interests, creating new needs, and inviting to efforts toward improving community conditions. Let us keep in mind that "The development of the boy is the end point and that subject matter is the means."—L. R. Cook, in the N. C. Vocational Education Monthly.

CASHIER TAKES BUTTONS INSTEAD OF MEDICINE

Wilson, Dec. 27.—A bank cashier of this city a few days ago, came to the conclusion that he had a severe attack of asthma and stopping at a drug store purchased one dozen aspirin tablets.

The box that contained the medicine struck the fancy of one of his daughters as being the very thing to pack a Christmas present in and the cashier's wife took the tablets from the box and placed them in a pin tray and placed the tray in a bureau drawer, and warned him not to forget to take them just before retiring each night until they were all taken.

For several nights in succession the asthmatic forgot his dose until getting between sheets and knowing about where his wife placed them, got up in the dark and gulped them down. The fourth morning his wife in plundering in the bureau drawer found that not a single tablet had been taken, and asked: "Why dear, haven't you taken the aspirin?" He replied: "I have taken the last one and never felt finer in my life."

Instead of the tray with tablets he had been swallowing white pearl shirt buttons from another pin tray, and says he feels "all buttoned up."

THE CALL FOR EDUCATION

Another year of educational work has started. Overcrowded schools, record-breaking enrollments in both high schools and colleges, are evidence of that fact that the call for education is being given greater consideration this year than ever before.

The check that had been placed on college work because of the war, now has loosened and the work bursts forth with vigor and interest. Do the young people that have entered high school and college for the first time this year, fully appreciate the importance of the step they have taken? The call for educated people during this reconstruction period, in all lines of human endeavor and especially agricultural lines, is greater than it ever was before.

With the coming of farmers' organizations and cooperative agricultural business the need for level-headed and broad-minded men, agriculturally reared and agriculturally trained, increases. With the introduction of rural credit systems and the necessity of better rural banking facilities, the call for men trained in banking with an agricultural viewpoint is apparent.

The development of agricultural departments in the high schools affords splendid opportunities for young men with agricultural training to become rural community leaders. The growing demand for county agricultural advisers, official cow-tasters, research men, boys' and girls' club directors, and last, but not least, the need for trained young men and women in farming, make the future secure for the young people of obtaining a higher education.—Indiana Farmers' Guide.

Even Horn Toots.
Ford bought in 1903 Still Doing Service in Oregon and Washington.
A rear tonneau door, two cylinder touring car manufactured by the Ford Motor Company in 1903, the year of that company's organization, and in use since that time is still "on the job." It is an eight horse power car, has a seventy eight inch wheel base, a five gallon gas tank, and is owned by A. C. McCarthy of Portland, Oregon.
Of course the Ford isn't exactly possessed of the latest lines and it is beginning to wear slightly, but mechanically—why even the aged brass horn works. The machine is now being driven on business trips through Oregon and Washington by McCarthy who doesn't expect to be in the market for a new Ford for some years to come since he's kinds got acquainted with the old one.
A Boston grocer was fined $100 for "keeping and exposing intoxicating liquor for sale—to wit, Jamaica Ginger." He was also fined $25 because the Jamaica Ginger was not up to legal standard.
Let the people think!

Out of the more than 3,000,000 Ford cars now in use, about sixty per cent have been sold to farmers. Probably no other one thing has brought to the farm so much of comfort and profit as has the Ford car. It has enlarged the social life, doubled the facilities for marketing, brought the town next door to the farm, multiplied for the farmer the pleasures of living, and by the same token the Ford Touring Car has brought just as much pleasure to the residents of the towns and cities, because it is an every day in the year utility, answering the demand of quick transportation at low expense. A family car without an equal in low cost of operation and maintenance. We solicit your order for one. We have the full line of Ford cars. We carry the genuine Ford Parts, and assure you the best in mechanical service and the most reasonable prices.
