Why Veedol Medium is the Ideal Lubricant for the Ford.

Every car has different lubricating problems. In the Ford these arise from the exclusive and ingenious construction by which the disc clutch and transmission gears are en closed in the engine.

In other makes of cars these parts are separate and the oiling requirements of each are met by a different lubricant. In the Ford, one oil must lubricate all three of these parts—the engine, disc clutch and transmission gears.

Ford owners are rapidly learning that Veedol Medium is the ideal lubricant for their cars. It is heavy enough for the engine, yet light enough so that the clutch does not drag.

Veedol Medium, besides making the Ford engine run like new, reduces operating expense to the minimum. Ford owners get 25 per cent to 50 per cent more mileage per gallon with Veedol Medium, because it not only resists destruction by heat and minimizes the consequent formation of sediment, but also reduces loss by evaporation to a negligible quantity.

Ford Owners find that, figured by miles of service, if not by cost per gallon, Veedul medium proves much more enonomical than ordinary oils.

If you haven't secured one of our booklets on lubrication, you should call around and get it. Its yours for the asking.
