Everyone knows that our country is ex period of depression, due to the return of the the country to the condition that existed between All classes of people are affected by the and all should work together to relieve page

Those best qualified to speak on the there is no reason to fear serious conseque the prices paid for labor and farm product lower, so are the prices on everything else the sales of all kinds of goods at greatly reds In a short time these matters will be adjuste will still find ourselves the wealthiest and people on earth.

The vast majority of men are honest in ings, and if given time will meet every oblighted. every an consider the men with whom he ness, and judge for himself how many there number who would defraud him.

Now while the most of the business done in try by farmers, merchants, bankers, mechan facturers, etc., is done on paper, it must be mind that this paper is given by men, the vity of whom, as has been already said, are addition to this, ninety-five per cent of this pasecured as to make it worth one hundred. secured as to make it worth one hundred co

These things being so, it follows that who needed in a period of depression, like the on which we are now passing, is for men to be pull together. Nearly every dellar of indicated by could be collected by foreclosure, but why shadow? be done?

Why force the farmers to sell out at a sacrific given another year or two he will pay all test? Why crowd the banks too close, if such is possible and cause them to be more drastic collections than they desire to be. Suppose you run on a bank and force it to close its doors to the collections that they desire to be supposed you run on a bank and force it to close its doors to the collections that they desire to be supposed you run on a bank and force it to close its doors to the collections that they are the are they are t ily, it only means that it in turn will forcibly casacrifice, from its debtors, and thus cancel it tions. Aboard Steamship Parismina, Nov. 21.—"The troubles of my heart are calarged; Oh, bring thou me out of my distresses."

So read the President elect of the United States this evening from the Twenty-Fifth Psalm, as he read the religious services in the women's as loon of the ship, which is taking him to the Canal Zone, to companions gathered about him as he solemnly intoned the words of David.

There seemed a peculiar and dramatic significance to the simple lines he had deliberately selected from the appeal of the Psalmist, and as he read the county, but, seeing last year, as he thought; big money is the girning business, he catablished a modern and my pain; and forgive all my sina. Consider mine enemies for they are many; and they that hate me with truel hard. Let integrity and uprightcousness preserve me; for I walt on Thee."

Sonator Harding made it clear that the veapers revealed and reflected his attitude toward the assumption of the Presidency and his further prayer, quoting from the same psalm was:

"Remember not the sin of my youth nor my tranagressions; according to Thy mercy, ramember Thou me for Thy Goodness sake, Oh Lord."
