FARMERS SHOULD COME

A big mass meeting, promoted by a committee of Dunn merchants and citizens, and headed by that ever progressive and public spirited citizen, B. O. Townsend, has been called to be held here on Thursday, July 21st. Invitations have been mailed out to hundreds of farmers in Harnett and those counties contiguous to Harnett to be present there on that day.

The object of the mass meeting will be to have explained the process and system of cooperative marketing of cotton and tobacco. According to the committee, able speakers and men who have the cooperative system at heart and are thoroughly acquainted with the movement, will do the explaining to the gathering of farmers here on that day.

Many of the farmers receiving the notice of this meeting will be skeptical as to the merits of any system of cooperative marketing and will doubtless figure that their presence in Dunn on that day would be useless. But the farmers who figure in this way will figure against their own interests and will cut their own throats when they do so.

Very few farmers know what the cooperative system of marketing cotton and tobacco is. Many have only a vague idea of how "the process works." The purpose of this big mass meeting is to have the farmers explained thoroughly just what cooperative marketing is and just how it works. The least that any farmer can do on this day is to be present and have the system explained to him. Then if he fails to see the good in cooperative marketing he will feel satisfied that he at least knows what it is, and turned it down on its face value, and not because he was ignorant as to what it was all about.

It is to the interest of any man to know the best way to get pay for his work. It is to the interest of every merchant to know how to best market his goods. The person that does not know this is a poor business man and can blame only himself when failure comes. The farmer should take as much care in marketing his crops as he does in raising them. He should know every possible market, and then choose the best one.

THE RIGHT IDEA

In an address made from the bench of the Wake County Superior Court yesterday, according to the News and Observer, Judge Bond spoke the following words, in regard to his position on the negro question:

"No darky is more polite to me than I am to him or her."

"The colored man is here through no fault of his own and he is here to stay and the man of either race that stirs up feeling between the races is unfair to himself and to both races; there is nothing about them to hate," he said.

"If the negroes ever leave the South, I think I shall catch the last train and go with them, for whatever else the colored man has done for the South he has kept away the undesirable Europeans that infest other sections of the country," he continued.

"But as much as I think of the colored man and as firmly as I believe in treating him with absolute impartiality I will look him square in the eye and tell him that if he has any idea of having any part in this government or any idea of social equality, he had better get those ideas out of his mind."

Judge Bond expresses our sentiments precisely. The colored race has done a great deal for the South and will continue to do a great deal. He has become an almost necessary part of some of our great labor machines and interests. And the right kind of negro is liked as the right kind of a white man is liked, and there is no real trouble when both races keep to their places and reserve the right attitude.

In his talk the Wake County Judge further said: "It is also true that white women have grown to fear colored men and negroes must remove that fear or they are sowing the wind and will reap the whirlwind."

The frequency of criminal assaults of negroes on white women caused the Judge to make these remarks, and he is thoroughly justified in making them. In sections where happenings of this kind have occurred often there is bound to be trouble between the races and peace cannot be present.

We believe that such cases should be dealt with as firmly as the law permits. If the law will go its limit when such cases come up, and if the people will allow the law to take its course and go the limit the negroes will soon wake up to the fact that it doesn't pay. Judge Bond has spoken some great words, and we agree with him perfectly.

I ever get or till tomorrow what you can do today—it may be prohibited then.—New Haven Register.

LOCATION OF THE SCHOOL

The school bond issue has been passed, and the school board already is making plans for issuing the $125,000 in serial bonds which will be taken out this year, in order to begin work as early as possible on the two buildings allowed in the building program for this year.

The first consideration facing the school board is an ideal location for the grammar school building, which is to be on a site somewhere east of the railroad. The advertisement calling for proposals of a site for location of this building requests that the proposal be for a full city block.

That is well. The building should, by all means, not be located on a site less than a full city block. The grounds of a school building are nearly as important as the building itself, and should be large and spacious. Considerable care should be taken in choosing a site for the construction of this building. It should not be in an undesirable neighborhood, and should be selected with a consideration for the convenience for the majority of the school children. It should be remembered that when the building is built it is built to stay, and there will Dunn's younger children receive their primary education for many days to come.

ABANDONMENT FREQUENT

Just two weeks ago a case of abandonment and desertion came up in the Recorder's Court here, and Wednesday a similar case was tried before Recorder Godwin. In both cases it was an alleged husband's abandonment of wife, and in both cases quarrels and disagreements seemed to be the bottom of the affairs. In one case the wife, who claimed to have been deserted by her husband, brought suit against her husband, and in the other case the woman's father, who claimed his son-in-law would not provide and support for his wife, and that he was having to provide for her.

The evidence brought out in each of these cases showed that the depression of present times had something to do with the alleged abandonments. The husbands, who had not been in the best financial conditions, apparently had figured that one could live cheaper than two.

The frequency of the abandonment cases in this section is startling. The bottom of the whole thing is mismanagement in the first place. The divorce courts are full of just such cases, failure of husband and wife to get along with each other subsequent desertion and failure to provide by the husband. Two persons can not live together and when their ideas of life and what is good and what is evil are entirely different. If the young people would take care to see and figure about these things before going to the altar then perhaps our courts would not be flooded with cases of abandonment and divorce. The old saying that it is much easier to get married than it is to get unmarried is a wise proverb. The best way is to figure in a business like way about all these things before deciding to jump into the unsettled waves of matrimonial waters.

BASEBALL EVERYWHERE

Clinton, our Sampson neighbor, has gotten in style and joined a baseball league. The league to which Clinton belongs and which opened Thursday, is composed of Falson, Wallace, and Wilmington.

The news that the Sampson capital has joined a league only impresses us more with the fact of the wide prevalence of baseball everywhere this summer. In North Carolina there are more semi-professional leagues than there have ever been in any season past, and for the most part a sterling brand of baseball is being played in all of them.

To the south of us is the league to which Smithfield, Wendell, and two other towns belong; to the north of us a little further down the road is the Lumberton league; over about Sanford there are several independent strong teams; and right here about us is our own East Central organization. Then down east is the famous East Carolina League, and all over the state there are scattered four towns and six town leagues.

What is most impressive is the fact that all these little leagues are composed of well known and good ball players. Nearly every league town have two or three players that have distinguished themselves, and have played baseball in higher circles. The next impressive fact is the big attendance and wide spread interest and enthusiasm being taken in the sport. In most of the little league towns baseball is the chief subject of conversation for merchants, society, and young people alike.

Baseball is distinguishing itself as being truly the National game, as it has never done before. And why not? It is a healthful summer sport that furnishes amusement and recreation to both player and fan. It is a business diversion worth attending and promotes love and loyalty to town. In the hot summer afternoon when business is dull, what is there that can bring more happiness than witnessing a close, scrapping baseball contest between the home town and a rival neighbor.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Less than a week ago farmers of this section were complaining of the extended period of dry weather and the damage it was about to do to the crops. Since that time rain has set in and has continued to pour until now it looks as if the wet spell is about to hurt the crops. It has rained nearly every day this week, and over the river especially has there been an unusual amount of rain which is about to damage the crops considerably.

But in spite of the dry spell and the wet spell which followed, crops in this section are looking good now. If the weather man will treat the farmers better from now on the crops will be in fine shape, and a good crop year will be in evidence. Farmers now are in good spirits—those that we have talked to—and feel confident of good returns for their work. The only thing that is worrying them now is the price they will get for their products next fall.

It is the general opinion that prices will be better next fall than for the season past. We believe that the depression will let up considerably, and that money will flow much easier than this year. But there will be no landslide of gold dollars. Cotton will not be twenty-five or thirty cents. The growth of the situation back to a normal status will be gradual and slow. We must take it as it comes, make the best crops possible, and market them with the wisdom and foresight of good business men. We must be satisfied with decent weather and decent prices, and we must not forget that ordinary prices are much better than inflated prices in the long run. The depression that we are now suffering ought to teach us that lesson, if nothing else.

JAMS

Jam is much easier to make than preserves and is a marketable product. It differs from preserves in the method of cooking, the object here being to cook the fruit into a soft pulp that can be mashed and blended into a smooth paste. Blackberries, strawberries, raspberries, and such soft fruits as clearstone peaches and figs make excellent jam.

As in preserves, 1 pound of fruit to 3-4 pounds of sugar is the proportion used. Put fruit and sugar into preserving kettle with enough water to prevent burning. Boil slowly until tender, mash fruit with wooden bat or spoon, and continue to cook slowly until fruit is a smooth, thick mass. Jam is much thicker when cold than when hot.

Packing Jams—After jam is done it should be poured immediately into jam pot or jar which has been thoroughly sterilized and allowed to stand in hot water. If the jam pot is used, the jam should be poured into it while boiling hot and the stopper cork forced in very tightly. If the jar is used, while the jar is standing jam, fit rubber, and fasten top tightly and quickly. These jams will require no processing if sealing is done while product is boiling hot.

Blackberry Jam—Select wild berries if possible; they are well flavored and have small seed. Be sure they are fully ripe. Use 1 pound of fruit to 3-4 pound of sugar and proceed as in directions for jam.

Peach Jam—Select soft, ripe, clear stone peaches. Cut in small pieces, mash and add sugar. Use 1 pound of fruit to 3-4 pound of sugar and proceed as in directions for jam. Pack in 4-H jam pot or in jar.

Fig Jam—Select soft, thoroughly ripe figs. Peel and mash. Use 1 pound fruit to 3-4 pound sugar with juice of 1-2 lemon for every pound of fruit and proceed as in directions for jam. Pack in 4-H jam pot or in jar.

Dansan Jam—Wash fruit and pick off stems. To seed place a small quantity in a colander and lower into hot water. Allow them to boil slowly.

WILSON & LEE, DRUGGISTS Dunn, N. C. "Once a Trial—Always Nyal"

MANY of you car owners have learned that quantity production of itself doesn't put long and satisfactory service into a tire.

You find something more to your liking in the policy of the makers of Hartford Tires.

They think too much of the Hartford Tire reputation to produce a single tire beyond the limit of careful and painstaking workmanship. And more people daily appreciate the real economy in this method of tire-building.
