

Education Pays

Does it pay to go to school? We mean from a monetary standpoint. Most emphatically, it does. If you ever hear of a boy or girl who wants to quit school, when it is unnecessary; if you ever hear of parents who are thinking of putting their children to work when it is unnecessary, just bring those figures to their attention. Every day spent in school pays the child $2.

Here is the proof, based on the wage scale of 1913.

Uneducated laborers earn on the average of $400 per year for forty years, a total of $20,000.

High school graduates earn on the average $1,000 per year for forty years—not making money. years, a total of $40,000.

This education requires 12 years of school of 180 days each, a total of 2,160 days in the school.

If 2,160 days at school add $20,000 to the income for life, then each day at school adds $9.25.

The child that stays out of school to earn less than $9 a day is losing

Bankers and turtles must have hard shells or they would not survive.

I want it said of me by those who know me best, that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower when I thought a flower would grow.—Lincoln.

These figures are based on an investigation made by Dr. A. Caswell Ellis of the University of Texas, Bulletin of the U. S. Bureau of Education.

Know North Carolina Country—Life Decay

In a general way the flow to the cities is normal and inevitable. Cheap transportation provides the denizens of great cities with food at moderate prices. Hundreds of articles that two generations ago were home made are now factory made and these factories are in cities. Powerdriven machinery on the farm releases a part of the rural population for other pursuits.

The state of affairs has stimulated the exodus of the young people from the hard work and penny-pinching of the farms to the prospering, easy-going cities.

The country has not been keeping a fair share of its brighter boys and girls. It has been the young people with spirit and initiative who have responded to the call of the distant city. Had they stayed on the farm, this spirit of initiative would have shown itself along rural lines.

In certain older parts of the country which have been losing their young people to the West and to the cities for two generations, there is a visible moral decline. The roads are neglected so there is less social intercourse and a smaller turnout to church and public events.

School buildings and grounds have deteriorated. The church is in a rut or has even disappeared. Frivolity engrosses the young because no one organizes singing schools, literary societies, or debating clubs. The next generation, having missed the benefits of the communal institutions, shows itself coarse, sensual, and irresponsible. There is a marked decline of individual and family morality. This is an explanation of the degeneracy that one finds in certain rural parts of New England and the Middle states.

The remedy is to make life on the farms more attractive. There is need of re-directing rural education, re-inspiring the rural church, multiplying societies of recreative opportunities and dispelling the false glamour of the distant city. The young people need to be shown that farming can be made to pay if one puts brains and energy to it. —Dr. E. A. Ross, University of Wisconsin.
