"Go ahead and Plant your cotton AND Leave the Boll weevil To me"

You can raise cotton as though there were no boll-weevil, and keep this pesky insect from getting one boll of your cotton, if you'll just follow my advice.

I'm speaking from experience, not theory, as I raised 604 bales of cotton on 812 acres of land in Burke County, Georgia in 1922, by protecting my cotton with my own boll-weevil poison—Hill's Mixture. I spent thousands of dollars and years of hard labor in perfecting this poison, but have made it back on my increased cotton production in the last two years.

No Machinery—No Night Work!

Not only is my poison the cheapest that you can buy, costing half or less than the dusting method, but it requires no machinery for its application, and can be put on any hour of the day! Simply make a mop out of a stick and a rag, and walk along the row, touching the bud of each plant one time, as you pass by. An inexperienced boy or girl can cover 5 to 6 acres a day.

HILL'S MIXTURE
Protect Your Cotton at Minimum Cost

The Price of Hill's Mixture is 77c per gallon. Compare this with the dusting method, which is much less effective, more trouble, and more expensive.

Hill's Mixture is composed of three elements; calcium arsenate as a base, molasses as a binder, and a third (secret) element which ATTRACTS THE WEEVIL, and makes him eat it in preference to any part of the cotton plant! This is the only poison that the weevil seeks! The molasses acts as a binder, and is washed away by only the heaviest rains.

Place your order for Hill's Mixture at once with my agent for your territory whose name appears below; price $38.50 per 50-gal. bbl., freight prepaid in North Carolina, plus $3.00 for the bbl. Small freight charges to other states. We will refund this to you when the bbl. is returned in good condition.
