Address all communications to The Dispatch. All departments of the Dispatch can be reached through telephone 155.

Communications upon live topics are invited, but under all circumstances the editor of such communications must furnish us with his name. It is not necessary that the name be given, but we insist that it be given as an evidence of good faith.

Short accounts of weddings, entertainments, club meetings, etc., are invited.

Co-operation on the part of the here in the way of a longer laying season would mean more profit for their owners. In other words, they should not crowd the market by laying all their eggs during a certain period.

Reading the story of the fooling of the physician by the "Fever Girl" brings to mind another instance when a woman fooled a physician. A woman who lived in a nearby county was taken ill. The family physician was called and he advised her that the trouble resulted from her teeth, advising that she have them pulled. Some time later the doctor was called again when the lady was ill. When the doctor entered the room he asked the woman if she had removed those teeth. It was then that the woman replied, "Doctor you are so anxious that I pull my teeth, I am going to pull them for you." She then removed all her teeth, which were of the hand-made variety. The doctor realized that the joke was on him, as the woman had been fitted with the "false" teeth long before he first advised her that her trouble came from her teeth. It might be added that doctors are human and sometimes get fooled.

"Your face looks good, but we can't get in the cash register." This is the notice appearing on the cash register in a Dunn store. Of course, you couldn't afford to ask for credit after reading that.

If husbands were as polite to their wives as they are to other ladies, the demand for the women for divorce wouldn't be so great. Well, it's a fact.

One mighty foe... weevil... in food and feed crops.

Any Dunn citizen will tell you that the town needs a cotton mill. Now that an effort is being made by the Dunn Chamber of Commerce to get one, every citizen who feels that way about it should aid in the movement. Don't talk it down, talk it up.

BOGUS CHECKS
Failure of the Legislature to tighten the laws against bad checks has encouraged bogus check artists to enlarge their activities, according to J. Paul Leonard, executive secretary of the North Carolina Merchants' association. Failure to pass a bogus check law with "teeth" in it was, in our opinion, one of the shortcomings of the recent session of the Legislature. It sometimes happens that good and honest people overdraw, but we believe the person who makes it a habit to give worthless checks is far from honest.

We would much rather one would tell us that they cannot pay than to "pay" with a check drawn on a bank with no funds in the bank to back it up. There are people who would rather write a check, knowing that they had no cash in the bank, than to write one when they had the money there. The bogus check habit is a provoking one, and a law that would check it should be placed on the statute books and enforced.

A BOOK OF INTEREST
"Common Forest Trees of North Carolina—How to Know Them," is the title of a pocket manual recently issued by the North Carolina Geological and Economic Survey. The purpose of the manual, according to the foreword, is to help citizens of the State, especially the young, to recognize the common trees in their locality. The manual contains an interesting descriptive article treating upon all the common trees in the State and a copy should be in every home in the State. In order to get books in the hands of the young people of North Carolina, the survey is selling copies to all State, county and city school officials with the request that it be brought to the attention of the teachers. For classes which want to use the book arrangements have been made for purchasing copies through the North Carolina Forestry association (Chapel Hill) at the nominal price of 10 cents per copy when five or more books are ordered by the same party. It is hoped in this way to secure a general distribution of this book this spring, not only by school children, but women's clubs and other educational improvement forces of the State.

The book carries invaluable information and the reading of it will not only prove interesting, but of value to the reader.

THE GINGERLEAF
The Gingerleaf, the only newspaper published in Dunn, came to life Monday and will pass away today. The paper was published daily in the interest of the training school, which has been in progress at the First Baptist church this week, for the purpose of putting ginger into the school. The staff is composed of Roger Brooks, editor; Misses Janie Ipeck and Eleanor Grimes and Dr. C. D. Bain, associate editors. Ginger is not lacking in the reading matter appearing daily in the Gingerleaf. It is serving its purpose well and is a credit to the staff. We quote from the third number of the "only daily newspaper published in Dunn."
"Only a hen can make money by laying around."
"Be a live wire and you won't be stepped on."
SHOULD COOPERATE
In securing Mr. W. Bruce Mabec, noted boll weevil specialist, to work among the farmers of the Dunn District, the Dunn Chamber of Commerce has "fought a good fight." A number of other towns made a strenuous effort to secure Mr. Mabec to work among the farmers in the rural districts surrounding them. The Federal Government has spent millions of dollars in testing out the best methods for growing cotton under boll weevil conditions. These tests have been conducted for several years and the best methods yet found are the ones which Mr. Mabec will undertake to teach the farmers with whom he will work.

Many new methods are being advocated for combatting the weevil, but many of these are in their infancy and have not been thoroughly tested. The methods which Mr. Mabec will advocate have been tested thoroughly for a number of years, and no farmer should hesitate to follow the plans he will outline. While his work comes free to the farmers, it is costing the government, and the farmers should cooperate with him in his work. They are the ones to reap the reward for his efforts. He has been sent here to help the farmers when they need help. Use him.

ARE YOU INTOXICATED?
"There is danger that the farmers and business men of Dunn and the Dunn District may become intoxicated on 30-cent cotton," said a local citizen while in conversation with the editor of The Dispatch. We have undertaken on previous columns to present high price of cotton results in the farmers taking too great a chance with the boll weevil, then it would have been better that the price had not advanced to its present level. No farmer can afford to attempt to grow cotton at any price under boll weevil conditions to buy food and feed for his family and stock. The farmer who does is gambling with no chance to win. When you hear a farmer say that he can grow a normal cotton crop under boll weevil conditions you can mark it down that he has never done it. In other words, that farmer has never had any experience with a full crop of boll weevils. It can't be done.

The farmer who will win the fight, and the farmer who is entitled to credit, if he needs it, is the farmer who plants plenty of acres in food and feed crops to supply the home demand and cotton only as a surplus crop.

THE EASTERN CAROLINA EXPOSITION
(Editorial Correspondence.)
Wilson, March 20.—The chief purpose of the Eastern Carolina Exposition, which opened here Monday, is to advertise Eastern North Carolina and it is doing that very thing and doing it well. In the more than four acres of exhibits are found hundreds of items that are either made, raised or sold in Eastern North Carolina. These products are pooled, and attractively so, to show to the home-folks and the world what is being done in Eastern Carolina.

To one who has heard that Wilson is the largest leaf tobacco market in the world, the absence of even one tobacco leaf from the "big show" seems odd. Yet the aim is not to advertise Wilson, for it is already advertised, but to advertise the more than forty counties represented. The two large tobacco sales warehouses, in which the exhibits are displayed, present a gorgeous display of decorations seldom seen anywhere. The decorations are inviting and call for many complimentary expressions from visitors.

While all the hundreds of booths are most attractive, perhaps the booth arranged by the Co-operative Cotton Marketing association is the most interesting of them all. In this booth one finds samples of all the staples grown in this section, arranged by Fred Haas, expert classifier. Then there is a whole bale of the fleecy staple, encircled by the emblem of co-operative marketing. A fine collection of boll weevils and illustrations showing how they attack the cotton squares and the deadly effect resulting from the attack is of special interest to visitors to the Exposition.

Livingstone and Blalock, representatives of the Co-operative Marketing association, are preaching co-operation and diversification to the crowds as they pass to inspect the booth.

Another booth which is attracting much attention is the tremendous exhibit brought down by Col. Joseph Hyde Pratt, head of the North Carolina Geological and Economic Survey, Chapel Hill. The display of forestry exhibits are the best that have ever been shown and are adapted wholly to problems of forestry and soil preservation in Eastern North Carolina. A vivid illustration of the disastrous effect of forest fires and the importance of protecting the trees also makes up an interesting part of this exhibit.

Coming next to Dr. Pratt's exhibit is a most elaborate display from the poultry department of the State college, Raleigh.

Aside from what is to be seen, much is to be heard. Noted orators and musicians make up a part of such day's program and there is something doing at all times for the entertainment of the thousands of visitors from far and near.

In order to make up for the time lost Monday, as a result of the inclement weather, the Exposition will last through next Monday, when Billy Sunday, world-famed evangelist, will deliver the closing address at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Taking it as a whole the exposition is a credit, not only to the world, but to Eastern North Carolina. A like Exposition should be held each year in some eastern Carolina town. This section of the State has been too patient in keeping to itself the great achievements which it is making in every respect, and it is through such Expositions as this that the world at large may learn of what is being done in this favored section of the Old North State. CHANGE IN LOCAL HIGHWAY OFFICIALS

C. T. Connor Succeeds Capt. Cole As Head of Highway Maintenance Here

C. T. Connor, formerly of Oxford, arrived yesterday to take active charge of the highway maintenance work on the State highways leading out from Dunn, succeeding Capt. J. E. Cole, who resigned.

Mr. Connor is a native of Macon, this State, but has been engaged in highway maintenance work at Oxford for some time. He began his duties here this morning, and says that he expects to see to it that the State highways in the Dunn District are kept in as good condition as possible.

Mexican Big Boll Cotton grown in North Carolina has won out over the far-famed North Georgia cotton in recent spinning tests conducted by the Federal Department of Agriculture.

LESSON FOR MARCH 25

REVIEW
JESUS THE WORLD'S SAVIOR

GOLDEN TEXT—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—1 Timothy 1:15.

TOPIC—Favorite Story of the Quarter.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Favorite Lesson of the Quarter.
IMMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Lute's Picture of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons From Luke's Gospel.

The method of review must be determined by the grade of the class, by the test of the teachers and by the nature of the studies of the quarter. Three methods are suggested:

(1) Centering in the Topic—Jesus the World's Savior. This method is suggested by Doctor Orinell.

1. The World's Liberator. 2. From Discourses. Lessons 1, 2, & 3. From "Lutherism" Lesson 1. 3. From Psalms. Lessons 2, 3, & 4. From Self-knowledge. Lessons 3, 4, & 5. From Prophecy. Lesson 7. 6. From the Sinful Past. Lesson 7. II. The World's Teacher.

1. About Sin and Salvation. Lesson 2. 2. About Human Duty: (a) To Others. Lessons 2, 3, 4. (b) To God. Lessons 5, 6, 9. (c) To State. Lesson 9. (d) With Money. Lessons 4, 5, 9. 3. About Prayer. Lesson 6. III. The World's Sacrificer.

1. Sacrifice Façade. Adapted. Lesson 10. 2. Sacrifice Rendered. Lesson 11. (3) Modern Applications of the Lessons. This scheme calls for reports by members of the class to whom assignments were previously made. This is taken from Paul's Epistle to the Hebrews.

Lesson 1. "What should we keep of the old-time Sabbath?" Lesson 11. "Why is it hard to be humble today?" Lesson 111. "Are our churches really open to the prodigals?" Lesson 14. "What should our rich men do for our Lessons?" Lesson 15. "Men and women who desire much gratitude and receive little."

Lesson 16. "What may we reasonably expect from a professor?" Lesson 17. "Why is it hard for a modern business man to be a Christian?" Lesson 18. "How the church should utilize its average members."

Lesson 19. "How can we get our church members to give as much as they should?" Lesson 20. "Things that Christians do not give enough for."

Lesson 21. "The message of the cross might be brought to all men in a generation." (B) The Central Teaching of the Lessons:

Lesson 1. There is no malady of man connected with soul or body which Jesus cannot heal. Lesson 2. Unselfishness will move one to humbly take the lowest place in life, esteeming others better than himself. Lesson 3. God is longing and waiting to welcome to His bosom the vilest sinner who comes with contrition of heart.

Lesson 4. The one who lives only for this life shall surely suffer agony and torment in the life to come. Lesson 5. Ingratitude is common to the natural heart. The Lord expects those who experience His salvation to give Him their love.

Lesson 6. Those who pray to God in the right spirit shall surely get the blessings sought. Lesson 7. The supreme purpose of the coming of Jesus Christ to the earth, taking upon Himself our humanity, and dying on the cross was to save lost men.

Lesson 8. Upon those who have not been faithful in the use of gifts the Lord shall execute judgment at His coming. Lesson 9. We are responsible to God, but God measures our gifts by the extent of our ability.

Lesson 10. Rittier agony was suffered by Christ when He bore our sins. Lesson 11. In Christ's death a full price was paid for our sins.

What God Remembers.
"I," says God, "will remember." How sweet to think of what God will, and what He will not, remember! He will remember his own covenant, but He will not remember His people's sins. The cross, which ratifies the former, puts away the latter.—C. E. McIntosh.

God's Offer.
Back of our ignorance and uncertainty God stands with His offer of wisdom and guidance to all who will ask it.

No Truer Picture.
There is no truer picture of what history reveals than a crucifix.—Rev. G. A. Studdert Kennedy.

The Life.
Sin has many trails, but a single trail handles that sin them all.—G. W. Matthews.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS
The Civil Service Commission announces examination for auditor, (title) Internal Revenue agent or Inspector, to be held in Raleigh, N. C., on April 7th 1923. The Internal Revenue Bureau is urging all who can qualify to take this examination.
