

STATE-WIDE CLEAN UP CAMPAIGN IS ON

All Local Citizens Urged To Join In This Important Program

This is "clean-up week," not only in Dunn, but throughout North Carolina. However, Dunn is asked to join in this State-wide movement for cleaning up and dressing up for spring. Mayor J. L. Wade has issued a proclamation in which he urges the citizens of Dunn to "clean up" their premises and make the town more inviting to visitors and more attractive and sanitary for the home-folks.

In order for Dunn to live up to its reputation of being "a well kept town," it becomes necessary for the citizens to not only clean up their premises, but vacant lots around town. This is one movement when every citizen can, and should, do his or her part. Even the children can have a part in this "clean up" program. Make the back yards look like front yards.

The following from the North Carolina Insurance Department relative to "clean up week" is timely: Where We May Find Some Of Our Departed Friends

Those old paint buckets we used while painting up last spring.—Under the house or in the closet. (They are about right now to start a fire or make a fine incubator for mosquitoes, etc.)

The Christmas edition of a New York paper.—It's back behind the kitchen cabinet. (You never want back to read it the second time.)

The shavings and scraps the carpenters left when they remodeled the house.—They are stuck around in little piles under the house and around the yard. (Unsanitary and dangerous.)

The box and packing in which the furniture was packed.—It's up in the attic. We are going to use it some time. (Said that last year.) You are going to use it some time, too, if you don't mind.

Those baskets we mixed the whitewash in last spring.—They are around on the north side of the house. Thought it was best to leave them there where the sun would never reach them.

The hat boxes and tissue paper which came around last Easter's hat and clothes.—They are up in the attic with those from Easter before last. They are doing no good—might do harm. Better clean up and get rid of them.

Take a look around your premises. Clean up. Get those fire-buckets and buckets out of your yard.

This is Clean-up Week—so rid your house and home of that rubbish. Quit sitting with the fire department. Clean up and be safe.

Clean-Up Week—Why
Because the last week of March has been proclaimed as Clean-up week, throughout every city, town, and hamlet in North Carolina.

Who?
Every citizen, white or colored, old or young, rich or poor, who desires to make our town a cleaner and a better place to live in.

What?
Your untidy back yard with its weeds, cans and rubbish. Your dirty outbuildings filled with shavings, paper and trash so liable to fire. Your attic with loose paper and plunder you will never need again.

Your filled up drainways, that are breeding places for mosquitoes and diseases. Your chimney and flues, that may be a risk to you and your neighbor.

When?
During the week of March 25-31, 1923, when your neighbors and all patriotic citizens should be intent on cleaning up their houses and premises.

How?
Let all members of the family do their part in gathering all brush, weeds, bottles, cans, papers, shavings, rubbish and trash, and start it toward the dump heap.

No objection will be made if you spread a little paint or whitewash. Let one and all start that truck on the road to the dump heap.

A safe investment—a well prepared garden.

A BOLL WEEVIL ERROR

Raleigh, March 26.—So much is being said in advertisements and in articles about the importance of killing boll weevils by means of poison or by other methods from the time that they first appear, that it is worth while now to show how easy it is to be deceived on this point, says Franklin Sherman, Chief of the Division of Entomology, North Carolina Experiment Station.

"Weevils invade the cotton fields (experience of 1922) in late May, but no eggs are laid until squares form," says Mr. Sherman. By this time the over-wintered weevils are dying off, and the new generation does not appear until about three weeks or longer after the eggs have been laid. On June 27 and 28, 1922, I entered in my field notes that seven to nine hours search had not found even one adult weevil in Union and Scotland counties, and those notes, made at the time, state that this was evidently the natural interval between the overwintered brood and their progeny.

"On June 30th 1922 a printed statement was issued by a grower in South Carolina (name omitted) to avoid personal controversy) that by certain treatment he had greatly reduced the weevils in his field. He was issuing this statement in the midst of this natural interval, while we were noting the same scarcity of weevils in fields where no treatment had been given.

"This same natural interval deceived many farmers who had been burning their fallen squares. They felt sure, from this practical fact of less weevils that they had the weevils under control. By July 5 to 10 however the next generation was coming on, and thereafter the broods overlapped and intermixed so that there was not another noticeable lessening of weevils."

Mr. Sherman states that this point has misled dozens of farmers and the same point has been and is yet, the deceptive basis of many claims of "remedies," and of advice to kill the early weevils. Mr. Sherman believes that to kill early weevils has some merit; but this natural interval between generations gives it an appearance of importance which it does not genuinely possess, in his opinion.

This is rather a technical point where the training and experience of an entomologist can, and does, point the way to avoid error.

99-YEAR-OLD NEGRO MAN LEAVES WIFE AGED 100

Matthews, Mar. 23.—G. Jimison, colored, died Wednesday at his home on the Zab Morris place, aged 99 years. He is survived by his widow, Lucy Jimison, who is 100 years old. A Bible in the possession of the old woman contains the records of the births of the members of the family. This record shows that Jimison was born in November, 1824, and his wife, August, 1823. Their children are all dead. If their oldest son had lived he would be 80 years old now. The old man was buried Thursday at Bethel church, Morning Star township.

Furniture Prices SENT to ROCK BOTTOM In the Great Barnes & Holliday REMOVAL SALE

You Can Profit In This Great Sale By Acting Now Stock Moves Very Fast

There still is a big stock—not nearly so much as there was a week ago, but still enough to furnish many new homes and refurbish lots that are old. During the past week hundreds of folk have grappled Old Man Opportunity and got the best of him. But he is far from groggy and is waiting here now to meet all comers.

Opportunity neglected is opportunity lost. Lost opportunity is the parent of all sorrow! Act now! The opportunity to possess that piece of furniture, that rug, that trunk, may not be here tomorrow.

Big purchases during the last few days have depleted our finest lines of Bed-room, Dining-room, Living-room and other complete sets of furniture. In many cases we have only one suite. All of these are beauties—priced so low that they are bound to move quickly.

There is a fair-sized stock of the good old reliable rattan-bottom rockers, but they are moving fast.

See Lily, the Wash Lady. She will Save You Money, Time and Worry.

Your Best Chance To Comfortably Furnish Your Home; Come Here Now

The whole stock now is in the main show room. Everything has been moved from the upper floor except several organs. You can see it all without the trouble of climbing stairs.

Another week will probably see the sale closed—certainly all the choice bits will have been picked over by that time.

Lily, the wash lady, is still waiting to see you. She is the only one of her kind in town and will prove a valuable addition to some lady's household before this sale closes.

Only two of those big, roomy, white-enameled refrigerators left in stock. They will save the wife much worry this summer. Either is yours for$38.85
